

BECKER MAY TELL ABOUT POLICE GRAFT

Prison Keepers Say Accused Police Official Is On Verge of Breaking Down

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Times prison keepers seemed to think today that Police Lieutenant Becker was on the point of break-down and there were reports at the public prosecutor's office that the police officer under indictment for the murder of Herman Rosenthal might turn state's evidence. District Attorney Whitman conferred with John F. McIntyre, counsel for Becker, but said no terms for a confession were discussed. Whitman said: "I have hopes that Becker who is a shrewd man, may decide that his best interests will require him to tell the whole truth. If he should do this I would have to think over pretty carefully what my attitude should be. While murder is a grave crime than blackmail it might be that I would decide in the event of a confession to ask some clemency for Becker. One of the greatest accomplishments for the good of the community would be to find out who are the big blackmailers in the police department and to abolish forever that treacherous and wicked system."

The grand jury is said to have learned many things to show that

Becker has made money very rapidly within the last few months. In one savings bank Becker was found to have $3000 on deposit, while the prosecutor has been told of other savings bank accounts which will be investigated. "Dad Jack" Rose in his confession says that Becker told him that he cleaned up $30,000 in four months. Within a few days the grand jury will hand down about six additional indictments. These will be drawn against Louis Rosenzweig, "Whitely" Lewis, Harry Horowitz, Frank Croft and probably Jack Sullivan and Sam Schepps. Indictments against certain police officials for grafting will be drawn later.

NEW INDICTMENTS EXPECTED IN THE ROSENTHAL MURDER CASE

MILK DEALERS FINED IN THE POLICE COURT

They Were Charged With Having Watered Milk in Their Possession

Martin L. Kennelly of Bilerica was charged with having watered milk in his possession and after a rather lengthy hearing was found guilty and a fine of $50 was imposed. Robert W. Stowell of this city was charged with a similar offense and after being found guilty was fined $50. State Inspector Frederick L. Marion, of Winchester, conducted the prosecution in both cases.

Was Fined $15
Gilbert C. Turple, aged about 30 years, had been having a great time for a couple of days up until last night when he was arrested in Lakeview avenue by Patrolman Frank J. Donovan. Turple had been enjoying long distance buggy rides, took in several places of amusement in the vicinity of Lowell and also was well supplied with whiskey and entertained several lady friends, but owing to the depleted condition of his pocketbook he could not afford to purchase food for the tired horse which he was driving, neither could he find a better bed than the ground in the open air by the night.

Turple went to A. G. Humphries stable in Middlesex street Wednesday morning and engaged a horse and carriage until noon. He returned the animal at noon and during the early part of the afternoon returned to the stable and secured the same horse, stating that he wanted it for the afternoon. When he failed to put in an appearance late at night it was thought that something had happened and early yesterday morning the matter was reported to the police. In the afternoon the different police officers were given a description of the horse and carriage and shortly before 7 o'clock last night Patrolman Frank Donovan saw the outfit in Lakeview avenue and drove the horse and Turple to the police station.

When questioned at the station, Turple said that he had taken a relative of his out for a ride during the day and later secured some whiskey and after driving up the boulevard and enjoying the beautiful scenery near the new Hampshire-Massachusetts boundary line, drove into some woods, unhitched the horse and after having a few more drinks of liquor fell asleep on the grass. Yesterday he drove around and met a young woman whom he took to Lakeview park and other points of interest and he was on his way home when placed under arrest. In court this morning the man was charged with depriving a horse of necessary and proper sustenance. He entered a plea of not guilty, but after the court heard the testimony in the case Turple was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $15.

Drunken Offenders
Samuel Adams, who was before the court the day before yesterday and sentenced to four months in jail after being found guilty, reappeared in court this morning and withdrew his appeal. Josephine Mitchell, who resides in Lancaster, N. H., came before Judge Enright on a complaint charging her with drunkenness. According to the testimony offered during the course of the hearing it appeared that she had been living in this city for several months. She fell in with dissolute companions and the arresting officer testified to having seen the woman drunk on numerous occasions. The prosecuting officer stated that it was her third appearance before the court in the short period of one month. The woman, however, pleaded to be given a chance to return to her home in New Hampshire. The woman's husband, who is working in this city, testified that he thought she would go back to her sisters and brothers if given a chance, but he had no desire to go back with her.

Massachusetts as neither the defendant nor her husband had enough of money to pay the fare to Lancaster, the court continued the case until Monday, and if at that time the money is forthcoming the woman will be given a suspended sentence in case she still wishes to go to her home.

John Tracy has been hanging around barrooms, getting drunk and loitering on the South common, according to the testimony of Patrolmen Leighton and Killory. Tracy was sentenced to the state farm.

Patrick H. Murphy, who is also a habitue of Middlesex street and vicinity, was in for the 39th time, but Murphy pleaded for leniency and inasmuch as the man is deformed the court decided to consider the case and continued the man for sentence until Monday morning.

John F. Curran and John McPherson were each ordered to pay $5.

PRESIDENT TAFT VETOED THE BILL

For the Revision of the Wool Tariff WILL ALSO VETO THE COTTON BILL As Well as the Steel Measure

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—For the second time within a year President Taft today vetoed a bill to revise the wool tariff—Schedule K of the Payne-Aldrich law. With a message of disapproval the president returned to congress the bill evolved as a compromise between the house and senate, holding that its low rates would bring disaster to home industries. He appealed to congress, however, not to adjourn until it had enacted a measure to "substantially reduce unnecessary existing duties without destroying protection for the wool industry in the United States."

The president's disapproval of the wool bill is to be followed with similar vetoes of the steel bill and the cotton bill. The sugar bill is likely to be vetoed, as is the excise tax bill, the president believes it unconstitutional. "I shall stand by my pledges to maintain a degree of protection necessary to offset the differences in cost of production here and abroad, and will heartily approve of any bill reducing duties to this level," wrote Mr. Taft. While the bill vetoed today and the one disapproved last year were identical in terms, the president's reasons differed. He vetoed the former bill because it had been framed before the tariff board's report—the latter because he said it had been framed with disregard for the board's findings.

"Most of the rates in the submitted bill," wrote the President, "are so low in themselves that if enacted into law, the inevitable result would be a ruinous injury to the wool growing industry, the enforced idleness of much of our wool combing and spinning machinery and of thousands of looms, and the consequent throwing out of employment of thousands of workmen."

The bill sent to the White House imposed an ad valorem duty of 25 per cent on raw wool and on cloths of 45 per cent. Both rates Mr. Taft held were insufficient to protect the wool grower and the manufacturer. It was predicted today that the wool bill might be passed by the house over Mr. Taft's veto, but there was some doubt as to its fate in the senate. Republican leaders were inclined to believe that it would fail in passage there as it did in the house.

The president declared in his message that he was anxious to see Schedule K revised downward and that he would be glad to see congress remain in Washington until a bill he considered proper was sent to the White House. He found it impossible, he said, in view of the platform on which he was elected, to approve the submitted measure, but he was very appreciable to the members of the house ways and means committee.

"I strongly desire to reduce duties," read the message, "provided only that the protective system be maintained and that industries now established be not destroyed. It now appears from the tariff board's report and from bills introduced into the house and senate, that a bill may be drawn so as to be within the requirements of protection and still offer a reduction of 25 per cent on most wools and of from 20 per cent to 50 per cent on cloths."

"I cannot act on the assumption that a majority of either house will refuse to pass a bill of this kind. I therefore urge upon congress that it does not adjourn without taking advantage of the plain opportunity afforded to effectually to reduce unnecessary existing duties. I appeal to congress to reconsider the measure, which I now return without my approval, and to adopt a substitute therefor, making substantial reductions below the rates of the present act, which the tariff board shows possible, without destroying any established industry, or throwing any wage earner out of employment, and which I will promptly approve."

"Despite the efforts that have been made to discredit the work of the tariff board, their report on this schedule has been accepted with scarcely a dissenting vote by all those familiar with the problems discussed, including active representatives of organizations formed in the interest of the public and the consumer."

PRECIOUS STONES WORTH $20,000

Were Found in a Barn in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Jewelry and precious stones valued at $20,000 were found in a barn at 1711 Carroll avenue by detectives last night and Adolph Dumont was arrested on a charge of having stolen them. The jewelry was identified as that stolen under the eyes of Patrick McDermott in front of the Silver Smith building on July 18. McDermott had been employed to carry a suit case containing jewels for a salesman for an eastern manufacturing firm. The salesman left McDermott outside of the building while he went inside to call on a customer. When he returned the suitcase was gone and McDermott could offer no explanation for the disappearance of the valuables.

NATIONAL FUNERAL FOR PRESIDENT OF HAITI WHO PERISHED IN FIRE

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 9.—The body of the late President Leconte, who perished in the fire at the national palace yesterday, was found today lying on the iron bed on which he had slept. It was completely carbonized. The authorities are making arrangements for a national funeral. The transmission of powers to the new president, Faustin, was carried out today in perfect tranquility. A strong force of firemen continues to search the ruins of the palace and the adjacent powder magazine for the bodies of victims of the fire and of the explosion. The terrible force of the explosion is indicated by the fact that all the houses within a radius of three-quarters of a mile around the palace were greatly damaged by the shock. A house situated 200 yards from the national palace was pierced from side to side by a shell which, however, did not injure any of the inmates.

TWO BIG WAGONS BECAME WEDGED IN DECATUR STREET THIS MORNING

The necessity of widening Decatur street was again demonstrated this morning when two heavy vehicles were wedged together in the narrow street. One was a large truck owned by Mr. Corcoran and the other was a delivery wagon. The truck entered the street from Merrimack street and the other wagon from Salem street. The drivers thought they could get by but when the wagons reached a point opposite Undertaker Archambault's block the two wagons were wedged together in such a manner that the aid of several men was required to unlock them. Large stones were placed under the truck and with the aid of crowbars the heavy wagon was placed on the sidewalk, but when the horses were started the wheels caught the fence and tore off several boards as well as the cap of the fence.

CANAL BILL VOTE THIS AFTERNOON

Will be Taken in the U. S. Senate

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—With a vote on the Panama canal bill and all amendments to it set for five o'clock this afternoon, the senate began final consideration of that measure with a renewal of the fight against railroad-owned ships.

The committee amendment providing that a railroad-owned vessel might pass through the canal provided that the fifty per cent of its cargo was destined to foreign ports was the chief subject of discussion. Control over New England steamship lines by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad provoked another lively debate between Senator Poindexter and Senator Lippitt, who had clashed in last night's session. Senator Poindexter read a letter from Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, declaring New England was in the grip of an "unbearable railroad monopoly."

A NEW BRIDGE MAY BE BUILT

Across the Wamesit Canal—The Proposition Includes Widening of Lawrence St.

The city, the Bay State Street Railway company and the Wamesit Power Co. are considering a proposition for a new bridge across the Wamesit canal in Lawrence street opposite the premises of the U. S. Cartridge Co. The proposition includes the widening of the street about ten feet at that point. The paving work in Lawrence street has been held up pending the decision of the parties concerned as to the feasibility of building a new bridge. The bridge would cost about $11,000 and the expense would be divided between the city and the companies interested.

Permits are issued
Permits for the erection of the new building on the Chaffoux estate in Merrimack square and a reinforced concrete store house in Summer street were issued at the office of the inspector of buildings at city hall this afternoon. The Chaffoux building will be of steel construction and will be four stories high. The estimated cost is $35,000. The contract, it was stated, has not yet been awarded. The store house will be built by Matthew Connor for John F. Saunders. The storehouse will be four stories and the estimated cost is $12,000.

TWO OFFENDERS IN JUVENILE COURT

Cases Continued for One Week

Two young boys, Ephrem Rondeau and Arthur Giguere, aged 15 and 17 years respectively, were arraigned before Judge Enright in the juvenile session of the police court on complaints charging them, Rondeau with breaking and entering the property of Deputy Chief Saunders and stealing therefrom 50 cookies, the property of D. H. Bradt, while the Giguere boy was arraigned on a charge of being a stubborn child. They both admitted their guilt and the cases were continued for sentence for a week. According to the boys' story, they in company with other boys about their age left home two weeks ago and boarded freight cars and "blind" baggage cars and went to Nashua and Manchester, N. H. They returned to Nashua and there they secured a bread walk back to Lowell and in the middle of the night feeling hungry broke into Bradt's baker shop in Whiting street by way of the bulkhead and stole some cookies. As he came out of Gage street, he was seen by Patrolman Ferris who shouted to him to stop, but instead the boy threw the bag of cookies into the street and started on a run, the officer in pursuit. He was apprehended in Decatur street and sent to the station.

When arraigned in court the boy pleaded guilty and inasmuch as he told the judge he wished to join the United States navy, but could not do it until February when he will be 17 years old, he was placed in the care of the probation officer, until that time, providing he goes to work and does what is right in the meantime. The case of Giguere was continued for a week in order to ascertain if there is room for him at Shirley, where he will probably be sent. The boy's father testified that his son left home on several occasions, being gone for weeks, and that he absolutely refuses to work. He said the little fellow was placed on probation some time ago but this did not help him any and he doubts if the boy will reform unless sent away for some time. Giguere told the court how he traveled on freight cars while away from home and also about sleeping on the side of the road. He promised if given a chance that he will reform, but, however, his case was continued until next Friday.

RED CROSS SOCIETY TO AID STARVING Will Help the People in Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Conditions among the poverty-stricken and revolution-ridden people of Nicaragua have become so acute that the American National Red Cross has authorized the expenditure of $1000 of its funds yesterday for the purchase of food supplies for destitute Nicaraguans. This is virtually the first time that the Red Cross has found it necessary or desirable to relieve distress in Central America not arising from the conflicts of revolution or disaster such as earthquakes.

It was announced at the state department that, as a result of continued crop failures and drought already augmented by the insupportable exhaustion which the regime of President Zelaya bequeathed to Nicaragua, the situation has become serious in that country, amounting in some districts to famine. It is expected the present revolutionary disturbance fomented by Gen. Moya, the former minister of war, will accentuate this condition.

Accordingly the Red Cross has expended $1000 to Panama to be expended in the purchase of rice, beans, corn, flour, potatoes and other necessities to be taken to Nicaragua. These supplies will be purchased from the commissary department of the United States army at the lowest prices and sent to Corinto, Nicaragua, on the coast, which is the port to carry 450 carloads of the supplies to the interior. The distribution of the supplies will be under the supervision of United States Minister Weitzel, aided by other Americans in the country.

It is feared further contributions of money and food supplies will be necessary if the present desperate situation is to be alleviated. Reports received in the last few days from Honduras points state that similar conditions prevail in that country. The prices of beans, corn and flour have risen to four and five times normal figures, and destitution and suffering are widespread. The Honduras government is endeavoring to meet the situation with the distribution of such supplies as it can obtain, but it is stated authoritatively that the government is not in a situation to lend much substantial aid to its people owing to the emptiness of the national treasury in face of incipient revolutionary disturbances.

While shortage of crops is one cause of the suffering in both Nicaragua and Honduras, it is said the real cause of the people is in a large measure due to the stagnation of business and industry which followed the shelving by the United States senate of the Nicaraguan and Honduran loan conventions. The governments of these two countries waited for more than a year in the confident expectation of the ratification of the loan treaties by the senate. Business men in both the republics were holding on almost solely in the hope of their ratification. With their shelving, however, demoralization of commerce and industry set in at once, and it was then predicted that the two republics would be in dire straits within two months. These predictions are now fulfilled by actual conditions in both countries, especially in Nicaragua. In the latter republic the revolution which it was feared would follow the rejection of the treaties, has begun under the leadership of Gen. Mena, who called his followers into the field last week when his resignation was demanded. Commandant Urbina called the navy department Wednesday that there is little change in the situation as regards the revolution in Nicaragua. Railroad and telegraph communications between Managua and the capital, where the 1000 blue jackets from the gunboat Annapolis are stationed, and Corinto, the coast port, have been broken. No apprehensions are felt for the safety of the Americans, however. Efforts are still being made by Minister Weitzel to induce Gen. Mena to cease his hostilities.

MAN DROWNED

PEOPLE ON SHORE LAUGHED AT CRIES FOR HELP

WINTHROP, Aug. 9.—Thomas F. Waters, an employee of the Customs House service at Long wharf, Boston, who lived at 61 Prospect avenue, was drowned at noon yesterday, and his companion, John A. Dolan, who is employed as a deck hand by the B. R. B. & L. railroad, was rescued in the nick of time when their canoe capsized in a choppy sea about 400 yards off shore. Both young men were poor swimmers. They started out shortly before 11 with the intention of paddling along the shore. When about 400 yards out, just off Locust street, their frail craft was swamped. According to those who were very cool and together they attempted to right the canoe.

Suddenly Waters was swept away by the current and sank before those on the beach, who only laughed at his cries for help, realized that it wasn't a joke. Dolan struck his head on his chin, but his strength failed and he sank twice. On coming to the surface the second time he made a final grab for the overturned canoe and fortunately got a hold.

Henry A. Dolan of 365 Winthrop street and Albert Pusifer of Hawthorne avenue set out in a canoe and rescued Dolan as he was about to sink. Dolan was taken ashore and was so affected by the death of his chum and his exertions that he became unconscious.

FINE CONCERT

GIVEN BY THE LOWELL MILITARY BAND LAST NIGHT

The Lowell Military band rendered the second of the series of municipal concerts on the South common last evening, with William Regan as director.

The program was nicely chosen and the attendance was large. Mr. Regan showed excellent taste in the arrangement of his program and selected a pleasing variety of music, including a judicious mixture of popular music and the classics. Most of the former came from the composer, Lompe, and Theo. Bendix's melody was also rendered.

Among the pieces were Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," "Morning, Noon and Night," "I Dreamt I Dwell in Marble Halls." The program also included several snappy marches. The brass and cornet solos of Messrs. Stewart and Dolan were highly appreciated.

60TH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING

Lowell Residents

METHUEN, Aug. 8.—With their grandchildren and great-grandchildren present, but without any formal celebration, owing to the poor health of Mrs. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ezra Wood yesterday observed the 60th anniversary of their marriage at their home at 163 Oakland Avenue. While they were no formalities, the occasion was made pleasant for the aged couple by many congratulatory letters and postcards and by the personal visits of many of the townspeople who knew of the occasion.

Although Mrs. Wood is unable to leave the house owing to rheumatism, Mr. Wood enjoys good health and is remarkably active for one of his age, he being in his 81st year. He is janitor at the Baptist church, and although he has had to travel nearly two miles to the church edifice, often in heavy snow storms, he has not missed a church service Sunday or week night, nor a session of Sunday school in the nearly 15 years that he has served as janitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood have resided in Methuen for 22 years. They were married in Biddeford, Me. Mrs. Wood, whose maiden name was Rebecca Hodgdon, was born in South, N. H., in 1832, and her early life was passed there. When a girl she remained in Biddeford, Me., where she first met Mr. Wood.

Mr. Wood was born in Biddeford, Me., and in early life he learned the mill business in his town. He remained in the business up to 15 years ago. From the Lacoona mills in Biddeford he went to Lowell, where he held responsible positions in the Tremont & Suffolk mills from 1855 to 1888. He took a position with the Salmon Falls Manufacturing company in Lowell and later went to the Beacon mills in Weymouth. He next went to the Troy mills in Fall River as overseer of carding, and in 1892 went to Richard Bond's mill in Fall River as superintendent.

He stayed 17 years, going from there to Lowell to become superintendent of the Tremont & Suffolk mills. In 1890 he came to Methuen to take a position as overseer of the carding department at the Methuen cotton mills, remaining after several years of service. Mr. and Mrs. Wood have two grandsons, William H. Wood, who is married and has two children and lives at Forest Hills, and George H. Wood, who is married and lives in Methuen.

Both sons and the two daughters of William Wood visited the aged couple yesterday.

LOWELL VETERANS

HAVE RECEIVED CHECKS FOR $125 FROM STATE TREASURER

Eleven veterans of the Civil war who reside in Lowell and vicinity have received checks, each good for $125, from the state treasurer, in payment of their claims under the "gratuity bill" which was passed by the legislature at the last session. These payments are made to veterans who never received a bounty from the state or John O'Connell, 35 High street; Charles A. Monahan, 19 James street; Charles R. Hadley, 201 Middlesex street; Archibald Higgins, Jr., 31 Nichols street; Thomas Burns, 130 High street; Matthew Smith, 246 Moody street; Henry Hart, 148 Wightman street; Philip Mooney, 331 Lakeview avenue; Alvan Shaw, Pinchurst Manor, Billerica; Emory W. Fass, Chelmsford.

The reason for making these payments is fully explained in the first section of the bill which reads as follows:

"For the purpose of promoting the spirit of loyalty and patriotism, and in recognition of the sacrifice made both for the commonwealth and for the United States by these veteran soldiers and sailors who volunteered their services in the Civil war, and for the purpose of promoting the public welfare, by giving visible evidence to this generation and to future generations that it is the duty of the state to honor those who have sacrificed for the nation and the state, should again come for men, Massachusetts shall not forget the great service of those who volunteered."

Those living in Lowell and vicinity who have received the checks are as follows:

George H. Ball, 163 Ludlum street; Edward J. O'Connell, 35 High street; Charles A. Monahan, 19 James street; Charles R. Hadley, 201 Middlesex street; Archibald Higgins, Jr., 31 Nichols street; Thomas Burns, 130 High street; Matthew Smith, 246 Moody street; Henry Hart, 148 Wightman street; Philip Mooney, 331 Lakeview avenue; Alvan Shaw, Pinchurst Manor, Billerica; Emory W. Fass, Chelmsford.

Man Says That He Thought
and He Used Revolver

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Matthew O'Callaghan, a cotton merchant, living in a fashionable section of Brooklyn, was taken into custody early today on the charge of shooting his wife, Lillian, who, he declared, he mistook for a burglar. Mrs. O'Callaghan said that her husband was intoxicated and that the shooting was deliberate. She is suffering from three bullet wounds. Her condition is critical.

Mrs. O'Callaghan is 37 years old. She told the police that she arose early this morning and as she was leaving the room her husband threatened to shoot her. She said she saw that he was drunk and decided to hurry to her son-in-law's apartment on the top floor. Mrs. O'Callaghan said that her husband fired three times through a glass door panel at her. She said she had been married six years and had never had any trouble with her husband. O'Callaghan told the police that he thought his wife was a burglar. He is 60 years old.

DEPOT NEWS

To quote the expression of one of the prominent officials, affairs at the Boston and Maine railroad station "are holding the even tenor of their way."

Summer traffic still continues large. Thus far the beaches have been the most favored haven of rest of the vacationists, who seem to choose them in preference to the mountain resorts. This has usually been the case in the early part of the season. However, at present the travel to the White mountains is on the increase and bids fair to exceed that of the beaches.
Of the latter traffic, the greater part has been to the Maine resorts, Old Orchard and Bar Harbor, the tourists coming to a great extent from New York city and vicinity. Trains going to New York carry no more than the ordinary business but those from New York to the East are crowded daily and much difficulty is experienced in checking and disposing of the baggage.

WM. ROCKEFELLER

TO ALLOW HIS NAME TO REMAIN ON TABLET

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 9.—William Rockefeller has changed his mind, and will allow his name to remain on the tablet which is to be placed on the Irving memorial bridge. The cost of constructing the bridge was defrayed by Mr. Rockefeller but he declined a few days ago to permit that fact to be told on the bronze tablet which the town committee donated. His decision to accept the honor surprised his neighbors.

New Remedy

SAYS VAR-NE-SIS CURED HIS AILMENTS

Many prominent people have come forward to endorse this new remedy, Var-ne-sis which Mr. W. A. Varney, the discoverer, is introducing to the people of Lowell at the Dows' drug store, corner of Merrimack and Central streets. Yesterday was a busy day at his headquarters and it was explained that this remedy in not a cure-all, but intended for several forms of stomach trouble and rheumatism. The numerous testimonials he has from people in this city and the surrounding towns are almost beyond belief.

Mr. Hadfield, associate of medical men through his position as official fumigator of Lawrence, Mass., says: "Until such time as I had taken your medicine, Var-ne-sis, I believe as many others undoubtedly do, that there was no cure for rheumatism after it had reached a certain stage. For 13 years I suffered with articular rheumatism; every joint in my body was affected, and at times it was an utter impossibility to get my hands to my head. My stomach was in a very bad condition and I suffered from indigestion and constipation. The rheumatic medicines that I tried seemed to increase my stomach trouble."

When I commenced to take Var-ne-sis I was so afflicted that my hands and feet were swollen to three times their natural size and what I suffered can only be understood by one who was afflicted as I was. This medicine not only cured my rheumatism, but I am today free from stomach trouble and constipation and can eat anything I care to without distress. Mr. Hadfield lives at 126 Market street.

Mr. Varney said: My headquarters are at Dows' drug store, Merrimack and Central streets and the doctor will be pleased to tell the public more about this remedy every day from 10 in the morning to 6 at night.

HURLED FROM TRAIN
MAN BADLY HURT

Miles an Hour

BOSTON, August 9.—While his train was making up lost time and running at the rate of 35 miles an hour, Sylvester O. Cheney of Hyde Park avenue, Boston, the baggage man, lost his balance and fell through the baggage car door of the 9:35 Providence to Boston local at the roadbed near Green Lodge station on the New Haven road last night and suffered a fracture of the left arm and multiple contusions of the head and body. His absence was not discovered until the train arrived at Readville. The Merchants' Limited, the following train, which was flagged, picked up Cheney and brought him to Boston.

Grand Lodge is a dog stop, and Cheney was leaning out of the car door peering ahead to see if the stop light was displayed at the station. A sudden lurch of the train sent him headlong to the roadbed and he rolled over and over. At Readville, where the baggage was waiting to be loaded, his absence was discovered and it was immediately surmised he had fallen off. His wife, who was on the train, made anxious inquiries, but her fears were allayed by the trainmen, who told her he had been left behind at the last stop.

Telegraph and telephone were used to locate the missing man by the train dispatchers and searchers finally located Cheney grittingly making his way toward Green Lodge station, his left arm hanging useless and his head covered with blood.

The Merchants' Limited from New York was late and with a clear track was making up time fast when flagged by the trainmen. Behind time and with no timetable restrictions the engineer of the Limited started station agents and operators on the way to Boston with the speed with which he drove his train by stations.

Again Cheney showed his grit on arriving at the South station. Although suffering agony from his hurts he declined the use of a stretcher and was wheeled in a chair to an ambulance.

SHOT IN NECK

MAN DID NOT KNOW THAT GUN WAS LOADED

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—George S. Fraser, 25, of 64 South Huntington avenue, Roxbury, a bartender in the Parker house, accidentally discharged a 11-calibre rifle he was cleaning yesterday noon, sending a big slug through his neck. He is at the City hospital in a critical condition.

Without examining the weapon to see if it was loaded, Fraser started to clean and oil it. He was rubbing vigorously around the lock when his fingers released the hair trigger, which was set. The report that followed brought persons from all over the block. Mrs. Fraser rushed to her husband's side. She is a trained nurse, and stopped the flow of blood, otherwise he would have died in a few moments.

Dr. Adams of 1894 Tremont street ordered Fraser's removal to the City hospital. Mrs. Fraser assisting the doctor until the arrival of the police ambulance.

Two priests administered the last rites as Fraser lay on the stretcher. Mrs. Fraser was restrained with difficulty from entering the ambulance with her husband.

Examination at the hospital revealed an ugly wound.

EIGHT YEARS OF MISERY WITH ITCHING HUMOR

Resinol Gave Instant Relief
and Cured in Two Weeks

Here is proof indeed of what Resinol can do for sufferers from itching, burning skin eruptions. This Pittsburgh woman writes: "I had better eight years, and it itched and burned so bad that I did not sleep a wink at night. I had eight years of misery and torture, it affected my hands and feet so bad that at times I could not put my shoes on. My feet would itch and then they would all split open and then they would bleed so bad at times that I would try and get relief by scratching, and that would just make matters worse. Then I would have to suffer. Night after night I would have to walk the floor, and though I tried many salves I was not helped at all until I sent for a sample of Resinol Soap and Ointment, and found instant relief. I used two boxes of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap, and in two weeks it disappeared and have not had it since. And today I am entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. R. D. White, 120 Larimer Ave., East End, June 1, 1912.

Resinol Ointment stops itching instantly, and with the aid of Resinol Soap is the best household remedy for skin eruptions, pimples, blackheads, dandruff, itches, eczema, etc. Your druggist sells Resinol Soap (50c) and Ointment (50c), but for a free sample of each, write to Dept. 64, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

BIG LOAN CONCERN SUSPENDS BUSINESS

State Commissioner Walker Says
There May be a Shortage

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—The Continental Building and Loan association did not open its doors for business today. An investigation conducted by John S. Walker, state building and loan commissioner, with the aid of President Edward Sweeney of the association, resulted late yesterday in Walker's throwing the concern into immediate liquidation. This can be done under California laws, which also give the directors the right to show cause in court within ten days why the action should not be permanent. Sweeney is superintendent of the San Francisco mint. Walker, in a statement made public today, says an expert's report, showing a shortage of $300,000 "is not far out of the way." The shareholders are mostly persons of small means. This report, Walker adds, shows that investors not only have been defrauded in the past but this has continued up to the present time. Today the accounts show, according to the report, that the borrowers also are being mulcted and the amounts placed to their credits on retainments are short more than $50,000. People have been "fined" out without any authority of law; liabilities have been concealed and assets have been padded. The members of the board of directors are responsible for these conditions only to the extent that they have lent their respectable names to the association and failed to keep posted on what was going on. The president of the association, Mr. Sweeney, went out of his way to aid this association. Gavin McNabb, attorney for the association, said: "A majority of the directors, including myself, have had no financial interest in the Continental Building and Loan association with the idea of working it into a more prosperous condition. They decided themselves that it would be wise to liquidate."

JAMES H. HORSFALL CALLED BEFORE THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—An investigation into the second fatality caused by the automobile of James H. Horsfall of Lowell was begun Tuesday by the highway commission, in an effort to determine what part Mr. Horsfall had in the accident on Tuesday, when the machine crushed out the life of Rosie Pearlio, aged 5, of 273 Math street, Woburn.

Horsfall lost his driving license a year ago when his car ran over and killed an aged woman at Wilmington. Since then he has used a chauffeur. On the result of the inquiry will depend whether Horsfall will lose his car license.

FREED FROM HUSBAND OF MANY NAMES

He Already Had Three
Wives

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—In granting yesterday the annulment of the marriage of a young woman to a man who had been married three times before under three different names, Supreme Court Justice McCall directed that the minutes in the case be sent to District Attorney Whitman.

The suit was brought by Grace L. Wood, under her maiden name, against Frank Hardy, known also as Frank LeRoy, Lawrence Hamilton and Francois Volter. The defendant married Miss Wood under the name of LeRoy, but at the time he had been going also under the name of Volter. He was served with the papers at the Hotel Plaster in Milwaukee. While he was in New York the defendant gave characteristic sketches in vaudeville.

In her complaint Miss Wood said she married the defendant on Jan. 9, 1910, as the result of fraud, at which time she was 21 and he was 36 years old. He represented that he was an upright man and that there was no stain upon his character, but Miss Wood says she has learned that his real name was Frank Hardy and that he assumed the name of LeRoy "to conceal various crimes and misdemeanors committed by him in the United States and elsewhere."

The complaint states that Hardy was married at St. Paul in 1892 to Rebecca Villemont and lived with her until 1895, when he deserted her and their infant daughter. He went to New Orleans and assumed the name of Hamilton. He was married there in 1897 to Margaret Hall and lived with her until the next year, when she got a divorce. In order to escape paying alimony it is alleged that he left New Orleans and came to New York, assuming the name of Volter. He studied French, associated with French people, and posed as a Frenchman.

The complaint alleges that Hardy was married at Cambridge, N. Y., in 1900, to Lois E. Jones, and lived with her until 1903, when she learned of his record and had her marriage annulled by Supreme Court Justice Davis. His daughter by his first marriage is now living in Detroit and is 15 years old.

Miss Wood said that because of the defendant's deception she "suffered in the eyes of her friends and acquired shame and humiliation amounting to ignominy." She said that Hardy abused her and forfeited her respect, and that she left him as soon as she learned of his previous marriages.

HELD AS FUGITIVE

OF MAN

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Burton H. White, alias Gilbert Brazell, 54, formerly engaged in the electrical business in Washington, D. C., was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Tighe and Police Inspector Gaddis, yesterday, on a warrant charging him with being a fugitive from justice from Washington. There, it is claimed, White is under indictment on the charge of non-support of his wife and child.

Before United States Commissioner Grinnell the defendant pleaded not guilty and was held in $200 for a hearing on Aug. 12. White told Deputy Tighe that he was never married, and again he is alleged to have told the arresting officers that he had a wife.

White claims to have spent $200 in the last three months. While some time ago he bought a horse and carriage at Auburn, Me., for $300 and drove to Boston. He made stops at different cities and towns and took life easy. As his funds were growing low he sold the outfit to a Charlestown street man. Word was passed to the police of the sale and, as it was suspected that the rig was stolen, Chief Inspector McGarr was asked to notify the Portland police.

McGarr for more than a week had a complaint to arrest White on the non-support charge, and he at once recognized the name of the man who sold the horse and ordered him apprehended and held for the federal officers. White was taken to the last Cambridge jail. He has been living at 9 Blackwood street, South End.

ROSENTHAL CASE

ments will accuse Jack Sullivan, Sam Schepps, Louis Rosenzweig, Louis, Frank Miller (White Lewis), Harry Horowitz (Gyp the Blood), and Frank Cirochi (Dago Frank).

Only complete confessions can save Sullivan and Schepps from first degree indictments.

A new witness, Giovanni Stanich, identified Jack Sullivan yesterday as the man he had seen standing with the four murderers, while they were firing at Herman Rosenthal.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollok testified that Schepps had been a go-between for Lieut. Becker and Jack Rose after the murder.

The district attorney learned also that shortly after Lieut. Becker employed Rose as his gambling house collector Becker had on deposit in the West Side Savings Bank $3000, the maximum deposit permitted by the savings bank law. It was learned also that Becker had told Rose that his "cleanup" in four months was $50,000 for himself alone.

Corroboration of Rose

Much actual progress was made yesterday in corroborating Rose's confession and statement. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollok, who were grand jury witnesses, said that they had testified not only that Becker had called upon them at their house, that Becker had sent John W. Hart and a notary public, named Burgard, to see Rose, but that Pollok, at Rose's request, had called on Becker at police headquarters to tell Becker that Rose wanted to see him.

The session of the grand jury yesterday was the most important since the unprecedented night meeting that resulted in the indictment of Lieut. Becker. There were sixteen witnesses before the grand jury—Mrs. Herman Rosenthal, Lieut. Dominick, Kelly, Max Margolis, Mary Rose, a trained nurse employed by Jack Rose, Mary Storr and Anna Glatner, Rose's servants; Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, Giovanni Stanich, Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss, Harry Pollok, Mrs. Carrie Pollok, Louis Kree, Dr. Otto H. Shultz, Policeman John J. Brady, Thomas Smith, head waiter at the Metropole, Joseph Clavin, bellboy at the Metropole, and Mrs. Herman Rosenthal.

All of these witnesses were called for the purpose of securing additional indictments for murder. It was necessary in laying the groundwork for six more indictments to present to the grand jury substantially the same evidence that had been offered against Lieut. Becker. But some of the witnesses gave information that was entirely new and about as sensational as anything that had previously developed.

Becker Had Bank Limit

Not from the grand jury proceedings, although it is probable that the grand jury has been apprised of the facts, it was learned that Lieut. Becker had been making money pretty rapidly while he was in command of the strong arm raiding squad.

The hearing about Jack Rose made an agreement about a year ago which was profitable, according to Rose's story, for both of them. Shortly after Rose began work as a collector Becker began to deposit in the West Side savings bank. Within a few weeks he had on deposit there all that could be accepted in one account—$5000.

The district attorney, having heard that Becker had four other such savings bank accounts, began an investigation yesterday to locate these accounts. He has already questioned two officials of a savings bank and other bank officials will be subpoenaed. Jack Rose has already told something about Becker's savings bank accounts. Rose's story is that Becker had bragged of his success in getting money.

"I have cleared up $50,000 for myself in four months," Becker told Rose, according to the latter's story. Rose for Stanich the most important witnesses before the grand jury were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollok. It is not known of course what they testified to inside the grand jury room, but after they left the grand jury they told a complete story of Rose's stay in their apartments at Riverside Drive and 15th street.

JACK SULLIVAN

PUT IN CELL NEAR ROSE AND WEBBER

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Jacob Reich, better known as Jack Sullivan, "King of the Newsboys," who has been a prisoner in the Tombs on a murder charge pending the Rosenthal investigation, was suddenly removed yesterday to the West Side prison, where Rose, Webber and Vallon are confined.

Reports spread at once that Sullivan had made a complete confession to the district attorney and was afraid to remain within the Tombs walls.

Shortly afterward the report was circulated that new witnesses to the grand jury, who were attaches of the Hotel Lincoln and a West Side savings bank, had startling testimony to give concerning the $500 that Sullivan says he took to Sam Paul immediately after the Rosenthal murder. It is understood, however, that Sullivan's removal to the West Side prison surprised him quite as much as any one. It was said District Attorney Whitman had received some new line from Rose, which decided him upon sending Sullivan to the prison where Rose was confined. It was intimated that Rose expected to influence Sullivan to give some startling corroborative information and to get him to talk about alleged relations with Lieutenant Becker.

If such was the plan, it was detailed that Webber would have no part in it. But Harry Vallon is said to have agreed to aid Rose in his efforts to quit Sullivan. Vallon yesterday retained James M. Sullivan, who has been attorney for Rose since the latter became a prisoner.

However, when Sullivan reached the West Side prison it is related that he was asked if he wished to be placed in a cell convenient to the three confessions—Rose, Webber and Vallon—and that he protested against the proposition.

"I do not want to go up there with those fellows or have anything to do with them," Sullivan is reported to have said to the prison keeper. "Just put me anywhere else that you please but not there."

It was said last night that the district attorney hopes to obtain from Sullivan, above all else, a positive identification of the men who actually murdered Rosenthal. Just why this is expected was not revealed. In every story Sullivan has told he has declared he was not within sight of the actual shooting, but in a store around the corner.

Shortly after Sullivan was placed in his new quarters he received a visit from his counsel, Attorney Hartford T. Marshall, former assistant district attorney. After a brief talk with Sullivan the attorney left. Later he said: "Sullivan does not know why he was removed from the Tombs. It was not at his request. He told me again emphatically that he had nothing to add to the story he has told so often, and reiterated he knew absolutely nothing about the murder of Rosenthal. He said that as soon as he was placed in a cell on the first tier he found out that the three squealers—Rose, Webber and Vallon—also had been placed on the first tier. But I have advised Jack to refuse to talk about the case to anybody, and I am sure he will do so. If Rose or any one else tries to get him to stand for something that is untrue it won't work. Sullivan is innocent, and they have nothing on him."

Before leaving the Tombs Sullivan confided to a friend that he had no sympathy for the men who confessed and would have nothing to do with them. The outcome of his new incarceration may prove startling.

MAN SENTENCED

ARTIST PAINTER CHARGED WITH BEING FLIRT

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—John Hernandez, 35, of 117 East 122d street, who gave his occupation as "artist painter," was sentenced to ten days in the workhouse by Magistrate Krotel yesterday for annoying Mrs. Mary Wilson, an attractive young woman of 25 East 18th street.

Mrs. Wilson said Hernandez rode on the same elevated train from Harlem, and tried to attract her attention, even going so far as to press her foot with his. She got off the train at 25th street. Hernandez followed, and Mrs. Wilson called a policeman.

Hernandez admitted the allegations. "I had no bad intention, judge," he said. "Her face was so sweet, and I was looking at her. I would like to make her acquaintance."

CHILD INJURED

AND ACCIDENT LED TO TWO OTHERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—A boy fell off a roof at No. 30 Pike street yesterday afternoon and an ambulance was called from Governor hospital. Another boy on the top of the tenement house at No. 123 East Broadway looked over into the street to see what the ambulance was there for and fell to the roof of No. 11 Pike street. A man who ran into the street to see what the ambulance had dashed up—for another was called for the second boy—slipped on a piece of banana peel and fractured his right leg, besides spraining his ankle.

The series of accidents started when Reuben Gluckfield, four and a half years old, tried to fly a kite from the roof of his home and stumbled into space. His horse are not serious, a number of clothes lines breaking his six-story fall.

Abraham Levy it was who in his eagerness to see the ambulance fell from the roof of No. 123 East Broadway. His injuries are trivial.

Charles S. Rand, 56 years old, an inspector of the Empire City Subway Company, who lives at No. 333 Henry street, Brooklyn, rushed out on hearing the ambulance gone, and his fall on the sidewalk resulted in severe cuts and bruises.

MADE ITS FORMAL BOW IN U. S. SENATE TODAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The progressive party made its formal bow today in the senate. Senator Poinsett, as a member of the new party, asked that Colonel Roosevelt's speech at Chicago on Aug. 6 be printed as a public document.

The request followed one by Senator Brandegee that Senator Root's speech of nomination and President Taft's speech of acceptance also be printed as a public document. Senator Culberson had asked that Senator-elect James' nomination speech and Governor Wilson's acceptance be printed as another document. All three requests were granted.

JACK JOHNSON TELLS OF PUGILIST ART

Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, has made a confession. In Chicago recently he told the secret of his success in the prize ring for the first time.

"You want to know the real secret—what got me started right away back when I was a kid?" he asked. "I'll tell you. It was my father, who was a slave before the war and who drove a United States army wagon through almost all the struggle. He was the most perfect physical specimen I have ever seen, and he gave me the first lessons I ever had in taking proper care of myself, which is the basis of all physical culture. Father was not a giant in stature, but he was built like the old Roman gladiators. He could lift enormous weights and was a fairly good wrestler, but he never did any boxing. He died in Texas six years ago, eighty-four years old, and strong till the day of his death.

"When I got started on my career as a boxer I always used to remember that instruction he gave me. I had such admiration for his physical strength that whatever he said made a strong impression on me. I realize now that I got my real start toward success in those old days down south, watching my daddy and heeding the advice which he gave me."

The negro champion is interesting at all times, which is more than may be said of most heavyweight champions. He keeps himself guarded like a cabinet officer against all attacks of the pad and pencil brigade, and it is necessary to pass a horde of zealous sentinels before one can get a word with him.

The champion welcomed his visitor with the softest British drawl ever heard in the "black belt." His pronunciation is almost fussy in its preciseness. He slurs his "r's" and says "eyether," and then elevates his eyebrows.

"I didn't intend to see any one at all today," he said, "but as long as you're here, why, stay as long as you like. Keeps me pretty busy here looking after my booze parlor, you see. Such a jolly big lot of things to worry about. What do you think of my place anyhow?"

The reporter declared his conviction that it was fine, whereupon Jack launched into a discussion of the reasons why he had chosen to enter business.

"I'm no millionaire, and I've got sense enough to know that Old Dame Nature is going to take the speed and strength away from Jack Johnson the same as she did from Sullivan, Jeffries and the rest of them. So I'm just getting ready for that time. When a man gets to my age the training grind gets to be too much of a strain on him anyway, which brings me to something I want you to say for me. From now on Jack Johnson is really through with the fighting game forever, and that goes. What's the use of risking sickness for the sake of a few dollars more or less?"

Jack admitted that life ran along pretty slowly for him when he could not find any one good enough to step into the ring with him.

"Between fights I did nothing at all," was his way of expressing it. "I would get up in the morning, take a run out to the park in my racer and come home to breakfast. Then maybe I'd finker with the car a little and take it out again. Usually I would pass the afternoon going around among my friends and at night my wife and I generally would visit. Now that I have something to look after and occupy my mind time will not be so burdensome."

"I have two hobbies now which take up lots of time, too," he went on. "One of them is the study of the tubercular germ, and the other an invention of mine, a triple compound cylinder for a steam engine which, I believe, ought to be a good thing. I've always been fascinated by machinery. When the Lake Shore and Pennsylvania first put on their eighteen hour trains between Chicago and New York I used to go down to South Bend often just to watch them go through, and it was on one of these trips that I conceived the idea of my invention. Some day I expect to put money into it and push it hard."

Johnson announced he was engaged in writing a monograph on the tuberculosis germ and how to exterminate it. Some years ago, when his wife was threatened with pulmonary trouble, he made an extensive study of this scourge, with the result that he has formed some positive opinions.

SOME FROZEN DESSERTS

That Give Pleasure on Hot Days

Put four ounces of granulated sugar in a frying pan and stir over the fire until the sugar melts, turns brown, boils and smokes. At this point, have ready one pint of boiling milk. Into this turn the burnt sugar and set it over the fire for one minute, then stand away to cool. When cold add a half pound of sugar, one quart of rich cream and one tablespoonful of vanilla extract. Mix well and freeze. When this is frozen remove the dasher, stir into the cream one pint of whipped cream, repack, cover and let it stand to ripen for two hours. This recipe will make enough for twelve persons.

Pineapple Ice Cream

Put one pint of thick cream in a farina boiler with a half pound of sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Then take from the fire and stand aside to cool. Pare one good sized pineapple, take out the eyes and core, then grate the rest, mix with it another half pound of sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add a pint of cream to the sweetened cream and freeze. Add the juice of one lemon to the pineapple and stir into the frozen cream, beat thoroughly and pack in the freezer to ripen for about two hours.

Orange Souffle (Frozen)

Cover half a box of gelatin with a half cup of cold water and soak one hour, then add half a cup of boiling water and stir until dissolved. Mix one pint of orange juice and one pound of sugar together until they form a syrup. Beat the yolks of six eggs to a cream. Whip one quart of rich cream. Now mix together the yolks of the eggs and the syrup in a tin basin and stand the basin in a pan of ice water. Strain the gelatin into it and stir until it begins to thicken, then stir in last and lightly the whipped cream. Turn the mixture into an ice cream mold, pack in salt and ice and freeze two hours. This souffle should not be frozen as hard as ice cream.

Frozen Custard

Put one quart of cream on to boil in a farina boiler. Beat the yolks of six eggs with a half pound of sugar together until light and stir into the boiling cream. Stir continually until it thickens, take from the fire, add one tablespoonful of vanilla and stand aside to cool. When cold freeze. This amount will serve eight persons.

Bisque Ice Cream

Crush one-quarter of a pound of macaroons, kisses and lady fingers (which should be stale) through a colander. Put one pint of cream on to boil and add to it a half pound of sugar. Stir until boiling hot. Take the mixture from the fire and add one pint more of cream. When cold turn into a freezer and freeze. When frozen add one teaspoonful of vanilla and one teaspoonful of caramel and the crushed cakes and (if you use it) five tablespoonfuls of sherry. Beat the whole until perfectly smooth. Drain the water from the tub, add more salt and ice, remove the dasher, cover the freezer and let stand for three or four hours to ripen.

Alaska Bake

Take a quart brick of ice cream and cover thickly with a meringue made from the whites of six eggs and six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Stand the dish on a board and place it in a very quick oven to brown. The meringue acts as a nonconductor and prevents the heat from melting the ice cream. This is a very dainty and attractive dessert.

HOT WEATHER TIPS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

First.—Do most of the cooking in the earlier, cooler hours of the morning.

Second.—Use the fireless cooker for meats and vegetables which require long cooking. It will not only save fuel and money, but will keep the kitchen and consequently the whole house cooler.

Third.—Keep bottles of water in the refrigerator. Do not put ice in the water.

Fourth.—Squeeze lemon juice into a bottle and sweeten as desired. Cork the bottle and keep it on the ice. Then at any time lemonade can be made with very little trouble to host or guest.

Fifth.—When making tea allow for a surplus, which can be kept for iced tea.

Sixth.—The same rule can be applied to the making of coffee.

Seventh.—One egg shaken in a glass of milk with the addition of a scant powdering of cinnamon makes a comforting and wholesome warm weather drink.

Eighth.—Keep all the food covered. Food becomes a menace if subjected to the inroads of flies. A special effort should be made in this direction.

Ninth.—The new vacuum bottles, made in fancy styles, are convenient for cool drinks, as well as for hot. Especially useful are they in the sick-room and dining-room.

Tenth.—If your refrigerator is using up too much ice and if the chest is not cool enough why not look for a device which can be introduced to save ice and money?

Eleventh.—There are many good fly killers in the shops. Every housekeeper should be equipped with at least one.

TWO NOVEL BLOUSE SETS

Two novel designs in blouse sets are of comparatively inexpensive materials, and both are easily made. The more practical of these sets is in heavy white linen and includes a collar, undersleeves and cuffs. The collar, one of the innumerable plays upon the well known nautical model, forms a straight horizontal line across the middle of the back, covers the shoulders to the armpits and in front reaches barely to the tops of the collar bones, where the ends form two blunt squares that are separated by a V shaped chemiselet, also of heavy linen. The undersleeves fit the forearms closely and smoothly, at the inner side fasten blindly with tiny hooks and are finished at the wrists with narrow turned back cuffs, which also close at the inner side of the arm. The collar, the top of the stiff stock and the cuffs have hemstitched borders, which may be done in all white or with a colored thread.

For a V-necked and elbow sleeved blouse there is a sailor collar which forms a perfect square at the back and from the shoulder tops halfway to the bust two other perfect squares. This sort of blouse set may be made up in white crepe de chine, chambray or chiffon cloth and edged all around with an inch wide band of black and white striped satin, but weighted across the lower edges at back and front with loops of the twisted plain material, terminating with tiny buttons covered with a matching fabric. The cuffs are merely straight, broad bands of crape, chambray or chiffon cloth, top bordered with the striped satin, and where their two ends come almost together at the outer side of the elbow they are lattice joined by a series of three twisted loops and covered buttons.

AN EARLY FALL COSTUME

Wool ratine is a material that bids fair to be much used in the making of fall and early winter costumes. This fabric is particularly happy when employed for the one piece frock, and such a model is to be seen in the illustration. It is made of striped green and white ratine, with touches of black velvet. The natty little hat is an autumn shape that will be found serviceable for everyday wear. It is of hunter's green felt, soft and pliable, as are all the hats of the season, and it is trimmed with a hint of green and black feathers where the shape turns up at one side of the front.

THE MIMIC WARFARE WILL OPEN TOMORROW

The Military Events Are to be
Scale

STRATFORD, Conn., Aug. 9.—The mimic warfare which will open in the southwest corner of New England on Aug. 10th between the armies of "Reds" and "Blues" with some 10,000 men on each side presupposes military events on a large scale. It will be officially known as the Connecticut Maneuver Campaign, and is planned for maneuvers and field instruction of various arms of both the regular army and the volunteer militia. A number of organizations of regulars have already been ordered to take the field and militia of four of the New England states together with portions of the National Guard of New York and New Jersey will be placed in active service for a ten-day period.

The campaign will be the most extensive in aggregate of numbers involved, and will have the hardest problems to work out of any heretofore held since the introduction of joint operations between the United States army and the National Guard under the general plan of making the latter the second line of national defense.

Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, commanding the department of the east, United States army, with headquarters at Governor's Island, New York, will be commander of the maneuver campaign. He will have under him not only his own staff but a large detail of army officers, estimated at over one hundred of all ranks, drawn from the various branches and departments. In addition the operations of the two armies will be observed by officers designated as umpires, of whom General Bliss himself will be the chief, who will make reports of their observations as the movements of various bodies of soldiers proceed.

The Campaign
The campaign is brought about by a number of military circumstances, theoretically grouped into a problem of major military tactics. The problem is described in this way: A war has been precipitated in the United States by a great European power which has defeated and blockaded the principal United States fleet at Hampton Roads. An invading army of the European "Reds" has landed at New Bedford, Mass., advanced on Boston, defeated a "Blue" army and is pursuing it on its retreat towards Albany, N. Y., via Worcester, and Springfield, Mass. Meanwhile, a division of the "Red" army has occupied Providence, R. I., moved westward unopposed, placing small garrisons in New London, Willimantic, Hartford and Middletown, but the main divisional body is pressing on to New Haven, driving back a "Blue" regiment from the latter city and later occupying with a detached force the city. In the meantime a second supporting "Red" army of 100,000 men has been landed at New Bedford. The main objective of the whole "Red" army of 200,000 men and its campaign is New York City. But the immediate scene of the maneuvers is the minor strategy of the division of the "Reds" advanced to New Haven and Waterbury, two cities about thirty miles apart and occupying the region adjacent to and between each point which is cut by the Housatonic and Naugatuck rivers. The "Reds" however, have been unable in their quick advance to seize the region lying further northwest, the apex of which (under theoretical limitations of the operations) is at Danbury which becomes a potential flank point and which is held by the defending "Blues."

The "Blue" Army
The immediate strategy of the "Blue" army comprehends the withdrawal to New York City and Albany of the rolling stock of the New England railroads; and the organization near New York of a provisional "Blue" division rushed towards Danbury and Bridgeport. The official outlines of the maneuvers shows a kind of divisional campaign intended to protect New York from the quick and direct attack on that city by the advanced division of the "Reds" at New Haven, Waterbury and the region between as the base line of their future advance. Fronting this advance will be the various detachments of the "Blue" army reaching northward from Paradise Green in Stratford, the headquarters of General Bliss, U. S. A., who will direct, by means of various methods of communication, field telegraphs and telephones, heliographs and other signaling devices, and airplanes, all the general movements on other sides.

The "Red" Army
The "Red" Army of invasion will be commanded by General Frederick A. Smith, of the Central Army division, while the defenders, or "Blues," will be under the direction of General Edward J. McClelland, of the Pacific division. Concentration points are not yet definitely known, but there will be field artillery at Danbury, cavalry at Bridgeport and Milford, and infantry scattered at the outset in camps extending from New Haven to the New York state line east from Poughkeepsie and all along a line which would be established as a protective screen to the extensive Croton watershed of New York City.

The first concentration of forces on either side will be for a few hours only and is intended simply to bring the various bodies into the sphere of operations. The moment the maneuvers begin to take place, the commanders will begin to shuffle the pieces about to cover strategic points in accordance with the plans laid down for the game. An illustration of the concentration is furnished by the orders to the 1st and 2d Connecticut infantry, which on August 10th will be rushed from its home station to Seymour on the banks of the Housatonic river, there to make a base. The Housatonic river is the theoretical line to which the "Reds" advance has come. There is at Seymour one of the main bridges over the river, Zoar bridge, and the presumption is that the Connecticut forces will have as its object the seizure of this bridge, which is a means of direct highway communication with New York City. The Connecticut regiments will then make a camp and await reinforcements in the shape of a Maine regiment which then is coming by train. This point also places

PIMPLES CAME IN BLOTCHES

On Hand, Scratched So They Bled,
Spread to Other Hand and Face,
Ashamed to Go Out, Cured By Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

318 67th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.—"About a year ago I noticed a pimple on the back of my hand. I picked it, and the next day my hand became full of pimples. They came in blotches about a half dozen together. When they first appeared they were red and inflamed and itched very much. I scratched them so they bled and then they developed into sores. The disease spread to my other hand, and face. At one time my face got so full of pimples and they itched so much I was ashamed to go out on the street."

"When I bathed they became inflamed. I treated for them but instead of getting better I became worse, and by this time my disease became so bad that I could not sleep or eat. Finally when I began to despair of getting better a friend told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for samples and used them. I took a hot bath, used Cuticura Soap, and then applied the Cuticura Ointment to the affected parts before going to bed. When I woke up the next morning the itching had stopped. Within three weeks I had no sign of a pimple. I was entirely cured."

the brigade, which will be commanded by Colonel Coles of the Plattsburgh Barracks, in a position either to attempt or prevent a flanking movement on or from Danbury.

The preliminary orders for the campaign do not specify exactly which commands will be assigned to either side but the execution of orders to move from their home stations and take the field will quickly clear the matter and by nightfall of the 10th the lines of the two armies will be well established. Danbury appears to be a point of strategic importance, and the anticipation is that the two days' battle which will follow the five days of instruction will be fought somewhere in that direction.

The Front Line
The front line of the divisional and immediate campaign is about 25 miles long with very nearly the same distance added for a line of movements from Zoar bridge to Danbury. There lies a southern zone about 12 miles broad between Paradise Green and New Haven directly between the "Blues" headquarters at the former place and the main body of the advancing "Reds" at New Haven which seems to forecast an early engagement thereabouts, although for obvious reasons the actual movements and strategy of the contending forces is concealed.

There will take part in the theatre of war about 3500 regular troops made up of the 5th infantry, the 10th cavalry, the 2nd battalion of the 3d field artillery (less one battery), Co. B, 1st battalion of engineers, field company A, signal corps, and one section of the aviation service. The National Guard will be made up as follows: From New York, the 7th, 12th, 69th and 171st infantry of the first brigade; the 14th, 23rd and 47th infantry of the second brigade; the 1st and 2nd cavalry, the 1st and 2nd battalions and Battery A of field artillery; the 2nd regiment of engineers; the 1st and 2nd companies of the signal corps; the 1st and 2nd field hospitals and the 1st and 2nd ambulance companies. From New Jersey will come the 1st, 4th and 5th infantry of the first brigade, 1st and 2nd troops of cavalry, batteries A and B, field artillery, signal corps, and 1st field hospital. From Massachusetts there will be the 2nd and 6th infantry of the first brigade, the 5th and 9th infantry of the second brigade, 1st company, signal corps, 1st field hospital, 1st ambulance corps. The Connecticut forces will be the 1st and 2nd infantry, 1st separate company (colored), 1st company, signal corps, field hospital and ambulance company. Maine will send its 2nd infantry. Vermont its 1st infantry. Sanitary troops will accompany organizations to which they are attached. The volunteers' forces will number about 16,000, about 5000 of the latter coming from New York state. Upon arrival at their training stations all organizations will be met by an "umpire instructor" who will give information as to their exact destination for the mobilization and will designate as each day's operations are completed the over-night camp. The plan for the campaign provides for strict adherence to prearranged action by each unit, instead of more or less individual action by commanders of various bodies as was the case in the Battle of Boston fought a few years ago.

THE LAYOUT OF MANEUVERS BETWEEN "REDS" AND "BLUES"

STRATFORD, Conn., Aug. 9.—The geographical layout of the army maneuvers of the "Reds" and "Blues" attacking and defending New York city next week may be roughly described as a truncated triangle with its lower apex cut off by a line of some 12 miles between Stratford and New Haven. The upper base of the triangle, some 30 miles long, reaches from Waterbury, the right wing of the advance division of "Reds," to Danbury, the westernmost point of the "Blues," and another side of some 20 miles stretches from Stratford to Danbury. The whole region which includes some 450 square miles adapts itself well to military maneuvers.

Near the shore of Long Island sound on the south the land dips to gently rolling meadows and levels which fit well into the scheme of open tactics. There brigades and regiments can meet in plain battle without intervening hill or concealing woodlands. But a few miles inland and the lay of the land changes. The open levels give way to the bold fronts, the sharp curves and thick woods and underbrush of the Housatonic and Naugatuck valleys. There are ravines, hills that in tight places rise to the level of the mountains, and large areas given over to the hunter in October and the trout fisherman in the spring.

Two rivers, the Housatonic and its largest lower tributary, the Naugatuck, cut the campaign territory each with many smaller streams and connecting valleys. Of these the Naugatuck, with its many bridges, easily fordable at almost every point, is a formidable barrier in summer drought falling to the size of a trout brook, has small bearing on the maneuvers except in the most theoretic sense. The Housatonic, however, cuts a large figure in the campaign. It has few bridges and for some 15 miles from its mouth, including its tidal waters and the long set-back of three miles by the Derby dam, it is non-fordable. It thus affects about two-thirds of the distance of the frontal strategy of the mimic campaign. But above in its swifter and broader reaches less than knee deep it can be crossed readily by the offensive and defensive armies.

The highway system of the region also lends itself well to strategy. Country roads cut in all directions and intersect at angles, a network of high roads with its improved bed skirts the shore of the sound; another traverses the whole Naugatuck valley and part of the Housatonic; and there is another "fine road" from Stratford to Danbury. Open meadows in fair abundance save in the wooded areas give camping grounds and the farm houses as bases of supplies are supplemented usually by villages not far from the campaign.

The railroad system of the region adapts itself to maneuvers apart from its value in the preliminary detaching. The Housatonic line not far back from the river is not only a base of military supplies but a line for reconcentration of troops for an advance on retreat. Its branch from Hawleyville to Stratford can do the same strategic work on a line east and west; the Danbury and Norwalk branch of the New Haven road connects with Danbury, one of the mobilization points and would bring a retreating force some 15 miles nearer to New York; the double track of the Naugatuck reaches along or near the whole campaign front from the Derby dam to an advance post of the "Reds"; and finally there is the main stem of the six-tracked New Haven road, the line along which the advance of the "Red" division, in the theory of the campaign, has been pushed from Providence to New Haven. It is the road of what in this campaign seems the line of great resistance—at least in a region where the railroad as an elemental fact of modern warfare may have vivid illustration.

"On the west there are lines of the New York Central paralleling the Hudson river and dividing up that contiguous territory, but little can be said of them as they are outside the sphere of operations and incidentally figure in the movements only as a means by which various forces from New York state are rushed into the war area to make up the extended line of the "Blue" defense.

The entire area for the war game is in the quadrangles of Danbury, Derby, New Haven, Bridgeport and Norwalk, from the U. S. geological surveys. The war maps which have been supplied to officers show the limitations of the field of movements. The southern boundary is that portion of Long Island sound which runs from Bridgeport and then continued on a line through Fairfield and Wilton to the Norwalk line. The eastern boundary starting from the latter point runs through Naugatuck just above the business section and thence through Middlebury and Bridgeport to the center of New Fairfield, giving about ten miles of the latter town as a field for flanking movements westward. The line, the extreme right objective of the invaders, very close to the New York state boundary which at the upper part of the westernmost boundary forms a portion of the line running to the junction with the southern boundary in Norwalk.

Nearly every town in the area can be designated a hill town. The towns over which warfare will be conducted are: Prospect, Naugatuck, Oxford, Seymour, Woodbridge, Derby, Orange, Milford, Stratford, Huntington, Monrovia, Trumbull, Southbury, Middlebury, Bridgeport, Brookfield, Newtown, Bethel, Redding, Easton, Weston, Wilton, Ridgefield, and the cities of New Haven, Bridgeport, Danbury, Ansonia and Derby.

The entire theatre is vastly different from that over which the advance on Boston was made a few years ago. Presumably the activities on both sides will be confined to the towns which are directly on the watersheds of the two large rivers already mentioned. In the area outside of the cities there are few facilities for securing information of the whereabouts of the various commands. The entire district is a place in which summer visitors resort and wherever the troops go they will see crowds of summer girls and matrons, who will look upon the maneuvers as an added attraction of their summer sojourn. The cities of the Housatonic valleys are hives of industry as well as from Bridgeport to Waterbury is the largest section given up to copper and brass industry in the United States. Excellent country roads will give opportunities for automobile owners to be in the very center of military activities.

They divided the road into sections and it is said the entire road will be finished in about three months. The engineers for the Bay State Street Railway company were also in that vicinity figuring for a double track from Bridge street to Belle Grove, and this would be a good move, as it may bring about better service. In order to put the state highway through to Methuen it may be necessary to have a number of camps removed several feet, and also the poles of the street car company. Essex county, which constructed the end of the road through Methuen from the Dracut line to Lawrence, has a spare tract of land of 12 feet, which later they may turn into a macadamized road, making a double boulevard to Lawrence.

LIBRARY NOTES
This is an extremely dull season at the city library and the circulation at this time is exceedingly small. During the vacation season a new system of circulation has been introduced. The holder of a card may take as many as ten books out and these are all dated returnable on Sept. 16. Recent fiction is not included on this list. As soon as the city appropriation becomes available, work will be begun on the new stack, the plans for which were made some time ago. At present the library lacks sufficient shelf space.

BOY ARRESTED

IS CHARGED WITH LARCENY OF CIGARETTES

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Detained in Somerville, where he had been arrested by Patrolman Cummings on a charge of walking the railroad tracks in violation of the trespass law, Cyrus Girouard, 17 years of age, on whose person sixteen packages of cigarettes and a large quantity of tobacco were found at the police station, was yesterday arrested by Capt. Charles L. Stevens of the Dover, N. H., police, on a charge of breaking and entering a store in Dover on Tuesday night.

When the cigarettes and tobacco were found, young Girouard was questioned by Chief of Police Kendall, and he claimed that he rode from Portland, Me., to Somerville on a freight car, and while en route another fellow got aboard the car at Dover with a bag and gave him the tobacco. Chief Kendall communicated with the Dover police and learned that a store had been entered and cigarettes similar to the ones in Girouard's possession, stolen. He was held until the arrival of Capt. Stevens, who took him to Dover, N. H.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Boy Fell Into the Suffolk Canal

Woulfa Cartara, aged 1 year, whose parents live at 310 Adams street, had a narrow escape from drowning late yesterday afternoon when he fell into the Suffolk canal while playing. Fortunately for the little fellow three men, James Leontis, Bill Soukarakas and Gorgakakos, arrived on the scene in the nick of time and succeeded in pulling him out.

Young Cartara, who is left alone at home, both his parents working, was playing on the banks of the canal at the corner of Suffolk and Merrimack streets, where a rope hangs over the water from the limb of a tree, and which is used by the many boys who occasionally take a dip in that place. After some time the little fellow decided he would try a swing at the rope and he did, but when his body remained suspended over the water he became frightened and cried for help.

WEAR RUBBERS

This Winter

There was nobody in the immediate vicinity and the boy, not being able to hold on longer, dropped into the water. At that moment Leontis, Soukarakas and Gorgakakos came along, having heard the outcries from Market street. They vaulted the fence and dived into the canal and reached the boy at a spot opposite St. Patrick's school, just as he was sinking for the third time. They managed to bring the boy to shore and the ambulance was called, and removed the little fellow to his home.

BROCKTON WOMAN

ANTICIPATED ACTION IN A LIQUOR CASE

BROCKTON, Aug. 9.—"This is such a bother," said Mrs. Mary Wallow, 23, of 113 Ames street, as she appeared at the office of the police in the district court building yesterday. Mrs. Wallow held in her hand the sum of $75 in bills.

"I have come to pay my fine," she said. "Mrs. Wallow's house was raided by the police, who found and carried away five gallons of ale, besides numerous cases of beer and 15 quarts of whiskey. No complaint for Mrs. Wallow's arrest had been made and she had not even been summoned into court.

Inspector Long looked up from his desk. "Your fine?" he asked. "Yes," replied Mrs. Wallow, "you raided my house yesterday, you know, and I suppose it's up to me to settle." She plunked the $75 down on the desk. "Is that right?" she asked. "There is just a little formality to be gone through before I can give you a receipt," said the inspector politely. "Just wait a minute." He rushed over to the office of the clerk of courts and swore out a complaint against Mrs. Wallow. In 20 minutes she was tried, found guilty, and fined $75 for selling liquor against the law.

"I thought I was right about the fine," she said as she departed. "It is generally $75."

INSANE BRIDE

ALLOWED TO REMAIN TO TAKE SHIP FOR FRANCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Lucinda Corra, the bride of Alberto Corra, a young chemist of Colon, Panama, both of whom arrived last week on a honeymoon trip on the United Fruit liner Carrillo, on which trip the young bride showed signs of being demented, will be allowed to stay in this country long enough to sail for France with her husband next Tuesday.

She had been detained at Ellis Is.

land and was ordered deported by a special board of inquiry. Her husband was very anxious that she might be allowed to land in New York, and go to a sanitarium, and offered to give bond that when she was better they would return to Colon, but this was refused. As a last resort he asked that they might be allowed to stay long enough to sail for Paris, where he has a cousin who is a specialist in mental diseases. As this was refused he got a New York lawyer, who took the matter up to Washington. The bridegroom got notification yesterday from the secretary of commerce and labor that they might stay long enough to take French next Tuesday.

the steamer sailing for Cherbourg next Tuesday if the United Fruit company would guarantee to take them back to Colon in case the French authorities at Cherbourg should refuse to allow them to land in France. The United Fruit company said they would agree to do that, and so the couple will sail for French next Tuesday.

POLICEMAN SENTENCED AND ENTERED APPEAL

Then He Resigned From the Department—Was Charged With Assault

WORCESTER, Aug. 9.—Police Patrolman Charles E. Kenney of the Worcester department was sentenced to serve two months in the house of correction yesterday by Judge Stobbs in the district court on a charge of assaulting with his club John J. Crimmins of 36 Suffolk street at Lake Quinsigamond the night of July 31. He appealed from the court sentence and was placed under $200 bonds for his appearance before the superior court. As soon as he was bailed he tendered to Chief David A. Matthews his resignation as a member of the police department.

Patrolman Patrick J. Fogarty, who was arraigned with Kenney on the assault charge, was discharged.

The arraignment of the officers grew out of a fracas in the Lincoln Park dance hall the night of July 31. According to the stories told the court by Crimmins, his sister Katherine, Lawyer Charles J. O'Connell, Albert Fyrborg and Irving Pengelly, Crimmins went to the lake with his sister, and between dances he leaned against a screen accidentally and tipped it over. Officer Fogarty, who was on duty in the park, ran up to Crimmins and ordered him to be more careful. Crimmins told the officer it was an accident, but in the argument which followed Officer Fogarty placed Crimmins under arrest and started him toward station 3 on Belmont street. Witnesses for Crimmins say that on the way the officer struck Crimmins with his club, when such action was unnecessary.

As the officer was taking Crimmins across the street, followed by a crowd, Crimmins came along in a trolley car from the Shawbury side of the lake. He jumped out of the car and immediately went at Crimmins with his club. It was said, although he was in citizens' clothes and was not on duty.

Lawyer O'Connell and Lawyer John H. Meagher were witnesses of this action, and at the request of Miss Crimmins they followed the officers and Crimmins into the station house, where it was testified Kenney again attacked Crimmins while he was washing the blood from his face, caused by a scalp wound inflicted by Officer Fogarty's club. Words followed the second attack and the officers hustled Crimmins behind a partition into the cell room, where the two lawyers said they heard more blows.

Crimmins was booked on a charge of drunkenness, but this was changed the next morning to assault on an officer. Fogarty claiming that Crimmins assaulted him after he had placed him under arrest. Judge Stobbs heard the charges against Crimmins in the district court on Aug. 1 and ordered Crimmins discharged. He also suggested to Chief Matthews that it would be a good thing to have the stories told about the officers investigated. This was done and Kenney and Fogarty were suspended from duty. Crimmins then swore out warrants against the officers on a charge of assault, and Lawyer Meagher was brought into the case as counsel for him.

During the hearing today Walter M. Hunt told of riding on the trolley car with Kenney and seeing him get off and push his way through the crowd. He thought Fogarty was in need of assistance, as Crimmins was struggling and the crowd was closing in on him. William J. O'Toole and George J. Boldes testified they saw Fogarty struggling with Crimmins and that they saw Crimmins strike Fogarty. Police Surgeon Richard J. Shanahan testified to treating a cut in Fogarty's lip after the fracas. Special Officer Louis G. Estabrook said he saw Crimmins strike Fogarty in the mouth twice.

Officer Fogarty said Crimmins called him vile names when he ordered him from the dance hall, and struggled with him all the way to the station. He said he felt called upon to use his club, as Crimmins was acting badly and the crowd was closing in on him in what he considered a threatening manner. He denied that either he or Kenney struck Crimmins in the stomach. In summing up the case, Judge Stobbs said: "I am satisfied that before Kenney appeared on the scene there must have been some provocation for Fogarty. It is hard for me to say just what extent he was justified in using force. I ought to say both a word of commendation and criticism. Fogarty was evidently trying to do his duty, but it was a mistake to book Crimmins on a charge of drunkenness. He should have been booked on a charge of disturbing the peace. I am certain that some of Fogarty's testimony on the stand was influenced from an idea of loyalty to a brother officer and that more happened at the station house at the lake than he would admit. I fail to find in all the evidence submitted any justification for Kenney striking the first blow as he left the car, and more especially for the blow struck at the station. He could have assisted Fogarty without using his club in such a vicious manner.

A BIG HAUL WAS MADE BY THIEVES AT BAR HARBOR

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 9.—With a successful robbery Sunday evening at the cottage of Edgar Scott of Philadelphia, in which jewelry to the value of several thousand dollars was taken, and an unsuccessful attempt to break into the cottage of Mrs. John S. Kennedy of New York yesterday morning, the authorities and summer cottagers were decidedly worried.

Jewel robberies in August have occurred for several summers, the thieves seeming to baffle all attempts at capture. Yesterday morning the New York watchman discovered a burglar near the main entrance to Kenardon lodge, Mrs. Kennedy's home, who fled in his stocking feet and took refuge in some thick woods, leaving a coat, hat, shoes and a complete set of burglar's tools behind.

The Scott robbery occurred Sunday night, but was not made public till yesterday. The thieves got in some time during the evening, taking a watch and several jeweled brooches from a drawer in Mrs. Scott's dressing table, and 15 scarf pins in a leather case lying on top of Mrs. Scott's chest. The two estates are adjoining and are among the largest at Bar Harbor.

SUIT FOR $800,000. ENTERED BY WOMAN She Says Husband Lost in Stock Deals

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Seeking $800,000 damages for losses which she alleges her husband sustained through stock transactions with the defendants, Mrs. Helen Augusta Clark widow of Geo. L. Clark, the administratrix of his estate, brought a suit in the superior court yesterday against Hawes, Tewksbury & Co., stock brokers.

Mrs. Clark claims her husband lost $594,735 in stock transactions with the defendant firm between Sept. 1, 1909, and Jan. 20, 1912. She seeks to recover this sum with interest.

The action of the plaintiff is brought under the revised laws relating to gaming or wagering contracts. Mrs. Clark alleges that the stock transactions were on margins and that her husband was mentally weak and incompetent by reason of excessive use of liquor during the entire period when he had dealings with the defendants.

George L. Clark left heir to the large estate of his father, Sheriff John M. Clark. He was reputed to be very wealthy and had been speculating in the market for some time past. He and Mrs. Clark lived at 119 Marlboro street, Back Bay.

Mr. Clark never kept any books or accounts and his widow is unable to state the exact amount and the dates of the various dealings with the defendants. She will file interrogatories in court with a view to compel them to disclose the information she seeks.

QUEEN WORTHY BEATEN BY SPEEDY ANNIE KOHL

Billy Burke Defeated Dudie Archdale—Babe and Shawby Winners

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 9.—The New England mare, Annie Kohl, driven by North Randall, was figured to be the best of the 2.12 trotters and he made good in straight heats. Derby Boy showed plenty of speed but was very unsteady, which spoiled his chances. Shawby won the first heat in slow time, but in the second, Murray stepped him home from the half in 1:01 1/2, the mile in 2:03, and hustled him for a faster record in the final, which he covered in 2:07 1/4.

The 2:09 pace was rather easy for the brown pacer Babe, driven by Fred Jamison, who repeated his Detroit and North Randall victories by taking the field into camp in straight heats, pacing the last quarter of each heat better than a two-minute gait.

The meeting closed yesterday with a program of four races, of which the free-for-all pacing class for a purse of $2000 is the feature. Evelyn W. who won at both Detroit and North Randall in the same class, Vernon McKinner, Don Deismore, Sir N. Independence Boy and Hal B. Jr. will be among the fast ones which will start. The free-for-all trot for a purse of $2500 attracted only four starters with Billy Burke and Dudie Archdale about equally well liked. Geers took the little black mare out in front in the first heat, but McDonald was only a half-length back with the stallion.

FIVE MEN TO DIE FOR MURDERING WOMEN

One Claims He is Not Guilty, but Governor Dix Refuses to Interfere

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The slayers of Mrs. Mary Hall, who was brutally killed at Croton lake last November by a band of foreigners, will go to the electric chair at Sing Sing Monday. The men are Angelo Guisto, Vincenzo Coma, Salvatore Demarco, Felipe Demarco and Lorenzo Calli.

Effects are being made to obtain a reprieve from Gov. Dix for Calli, who asserts he was not at the killing and can prove an alibi if he has opportunity. The governor probably will not interfere.

On Nov. 9, while Mrs. Hall and two other women were alone in the house, five men sprang in, robbed them, and because they were unable to get enough to satisfy them, killed Mrs. Hall. The chase was exciting. Six men were taken, and one, Zanza, has already met his fate in the electric chair.

Calli was surprised by the detectives in his room. As they entered they saw him go smashing through the window to the ground.

He had shaved off his mustache and was hardly recognized but by things found in his possession and afterward identified as belonging to one of the men who had been in the party. Calli was sent to Sing Sing.

A letter to a New York paper has been smuggled out of Sing Sing by a convict who is well known to the public, although his name cannot be divulged.

The whole thing is terrible enough for the 1500 men about them, those who made the coffins, who clean the cells, who run the machinery. It is hardening and embittering enough to know all the details of these horrible executions without having the certainty that this time one of the men is absolutely innocent and was sent to his death by the most cold-blooded official neglect on record. At the time of the murder Calli was at work in the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, where twenty fellow workmen will testify to his presence.

Calli knew one of the members of the gang intimately, having worked with him in Brooklyn. This man, knowing Calli's good character, gave him as a reference when under the third degree. The detectives understood the man's broken English to contain an implication of Calli as a participant in the murder. The witness who identified him was taken to see him six times before he would say he had been present. The others, admitting their own guilt, one and all say Calli had no hand in the matter.

G. Vicario, an editor of this city, appeared before Governor Dix in Albany, yesterday to plead for a reprieve. He was accompanied by the Rev. Father Bruno G. Baccelli, the Italian consul at Albany, and Patrick E. McCabe, Governor Dix said:

"I cannot see my way clear to upset the judgment of the courts. The decision of the court of appeals was unanimous in the case, and I cannot consistently set aside that judgment or grant a reprieve."

Confessed He Was Present
At the office of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company no trace could be found of Calli in the time records because practically all the workmen are designated by numbers and no track is kept of their names. Word was sent to Sing Sing to Calli, but he could not remember his name. He recalled, however, that the name of his "boss" was Theodore Pettit, of the repair department. Mr. Pettit had gone to summer camp at Far Rockaway beach and could not be found.

The district attorney declares the evidence was complete against Calli. He was positively identified by members of the Hall family after the murder and confessed to his share. To Coroner Squire he said he was at the home of Mrs. Hall, but had nothing to do with the killing.

It has been the creed of many persons, and there are some who still adhere to the old ideas, that when a woman reaches the age of 30 she must adopt the bonnet and shawl. But in telling (from a back view) whether a figure is that of a matron or of a debutante, so carefully is the dowager corrected.

This season's fashion rather favors the elderly woman's figure. Long, loose wraps, tunic dress lines, plaited skirts and fluted effects are all becoming to her. Charming hats that are youthful enough to be becoming, but with dignity and grace sufficient for women past middle life are shown in the shops.

One, a very pretty model of fine gray straw, was trimmed with plaitings of lace, gray tulle and a handsome black tulle ribbon. Another, a turban shape, has a crown made entirely of deep violet ribbon from which emanate Mercury wings. Still another model was of fine black hemp with medium sized brim and trimming of ostrich tips and black tulle ribbon.

The older woman, too, may wear a shirt waist, but it must be a shirt waist especially designed with a view to grace and harmony of effect. A beautiful blouse is made of gray cotton and white lace with trimming of black soutache.

Soft colors and graceful lines are the points that make the costume of the middle aged woman distinguished. Grays, deep blues, black, white, purple and sometimes a deep brown are the best shades for her to wear.

The tailored costume should fit well and be cut on loose, graceful lines. A pretty suit designed for fall is of black wool and silk mixture, trimmed with black satin and rat tail braid. The coat is in three-quarter length, and the clever tailoring conceals the defects of the matronly figure.

That the new pattern effect is adapted to even an elderly woman is seen by the tulle taffeta dress illustrated. Draped up in front, the waist is cut by a ribbon sash which forms the glide. Over this is draped, fluted effect, a scarf of white chantilly, embroidered in black and white beads. The scarf is brought over the shoulders to the back where it forms a graceful position. A beautiful black chiffon evening dress over white silk is also pictured. It has the long lines of the figure accentuated by the fascina and lace panel, which seems to be part of the fascina.

Of course many more simple styles exist on equally good lines. For the elderly woman who cannot afford a very good costume—though a splendid one may be bought for a few dollars today and redressed with little or even no extra charge—for the one whose figure is determined by long illness or by years of hard work the plaited skirt gives the best lines, is the easiest to fit and looks best.

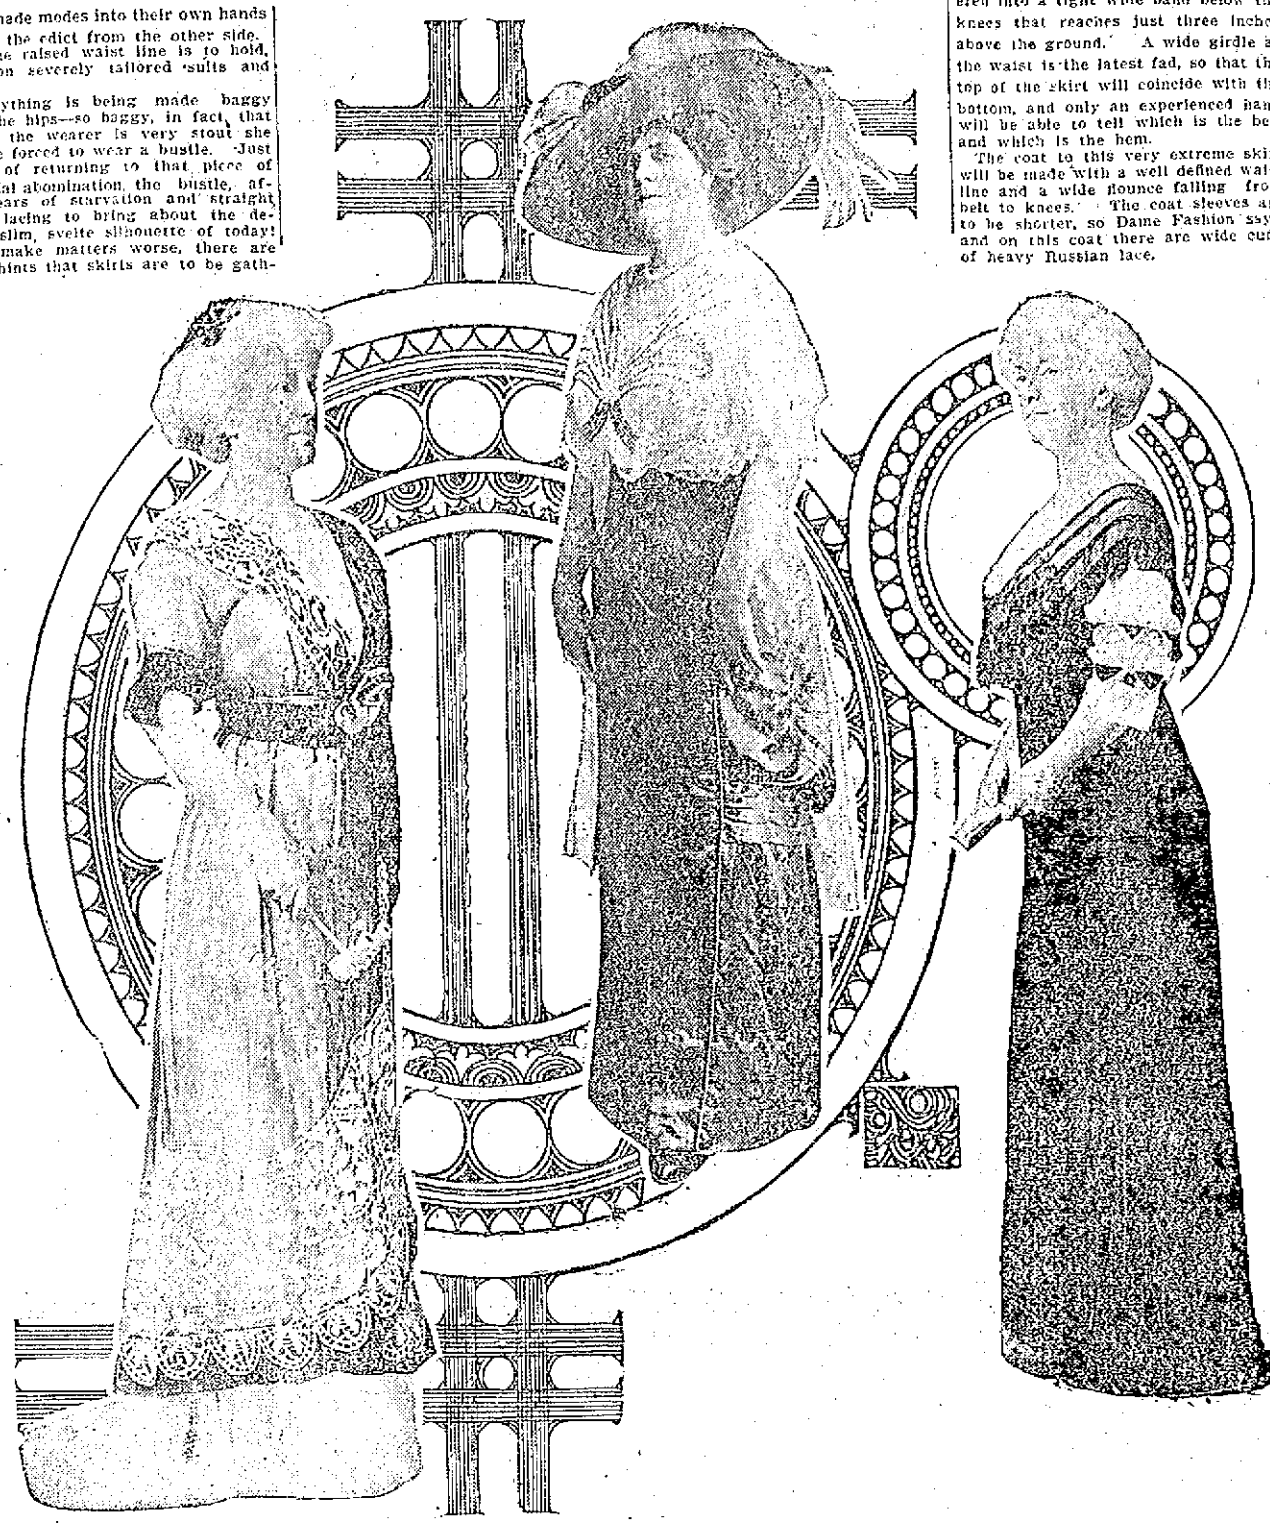

Then, too, the plain gored skirt, such as shown in the figure wearing the house gown, is very good. This gown is of satin charmeuse and is trimmed with silk fringe. It has a tucker and sleeves of white net, and the sleeves are trimmed with lace frills and black velvet inserts.

Indeed, there is every reason to believe that the stout, matronly woman is going to have things very much her own way this fall in the first place, for hips, or so say the fashion makers in this country who are taking the tallor made modes into their own hands despite the edict from the other side, that the raised waist line is to hold, even on severely tailored suits and frocks.

Everything is being made baggy over the hips—so baggy, in fact, that unless the wearer is very stout she will be forced to wear a bustle. Just think of returning to that piece of sartorial abomination, the bustle, after years of starvation and straight front, lacking to bring about the desired slim, svelte silhouette of today!

To make matters worse, there are even hints that skirts are to be gathered into a tight wide band below the knees that reaches just three inches above the ground. A wide girdle at the waist is the latest fad, so that the top of the skirt will coincide with the bottom, and only an experienced hand will be able to tell which is the belt and which is the hem.

The coat to this very extreme skirt will be made with a well defined waist line and a wide flounce falling from belt to knees. The coat sleeves are to be shorter, so Dame Fashion says, and on this coat there are wide cuffs of heavy Russian lace.

"HOODOO" FOLLOWS AMERICAN CIRCUS FOR OLYMPIC HEROES

That is Touring Maritime Provinces

MONCTON, N. B., Aug. 8.—An American circus which is touring the Maritime provinces has been unable to shake a "hoodoo" which has followed it for two weeks. The first ill-luck encountered was a long period of wet and unsettled weather.

While feeding a lioness in her cage at Point DuChene, Charles J. Carroll, an attendant, was bitten so seriously that death resulted. The circus manager claims that Carroll thrust his arm into the cage in a spirit of bravado and that he was responsible for his own death. The next ill luck which appeared overtook the show at Rebluck. Several flat cars ran down an incline to a wharf and hurled an empty car into the river, damaging a sleeping circus employee narrowly escaped a plunge into the river.

PRESIDENT VAIL

TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—President Theodore N. Vail of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and of the Western Union Telegraph Company, said yesterday that the proposed disability and accident insurance plan of the company would benefit more than 200,000 employees of both companies.

Mr. Vail says: "I believe that young men should be encouraged to stay in our employ. Old age pensions appear to me to be an actually realized benefit to the workmen. The hope is held out that some time in the future, if he is very faithful and escapes discharge for a long period of years, he may receive a solace in his declining years. This promise to care for the indigent worker is not always realized, for frequently the usefulness of an employee is found to be passed before the time set for his retirement and he is discharged."

"While we have not as yet decided on any complete system, I believe it will be possible to insure our employees after two years of service. After such two-year period I am convinced we will be able to pay a disabled employee at least half of his weekly wage during his entire absence from work, such payment to increase with the term of service, and after five years of continuous connection with either company, I think it will be possible to allow the full amount of their salary."

ROYAL WELCOME FOR OLYMPIC HEROES

Big Reception in New

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—America will pay high tribute to the good fellowship and true sportsmanship of Sweden at the public reception to be tendered the champion American Olympic team in this city on Aug. 24.

The Swedish ambassador at Washington and the Swedish consul general in this city will be in the reviewing party in front of city hall the morning of the parade. They will also occupy posts of honor at the guests' table during the banquet. All the local Swedish organizations have been invited to participate in the parade.

While the big public reception will be observed on Aug. 24, commencing with a monstrous parade in the morning, the victorious Olympic heroes will be guests of the city from Aug. 23 to 25. On the evening of the 23rd a theater party has been planned. Each of the 125 athletes is to be provided with two tickets so that he may have company if he so desires.

One of the features of the proposed parade will be the "stationary guard of honor." This will be composed of boys and girls, each provided with the flag of the republic. They will line the route of march from 42nd street to city hall, the boys on one side, the girls on the other. Chaper leaders will be assigned so that an impressive welcome may be voiced. At each street the stationary guard of honor will give the Olympic team's yell that made such a big hit in Stockholm.

The Hebrew orphan asylum band will precede the Division of the parade in which the athletes themselves will ride in automobiles. In the same division immediately ahead of the athletes, a band of marching guards of honor. The first will be made up of boys in costumes representing the 48 states of the Union. The second, also in costume, will represent the various nations which took part in the Stockholm Olympiad.

FINAL PLANS

FOR THE GREAT McMANUS PICTNIC ANNOUNCED

Constant John McManus announces the final arrangements for his great children's picnic. The outing will be held next Wednesday, Aug. 14th. The Lowell Cabot band will give a concert at Merrimack Square for an hour before the start is made for Mountain Brook, playing all the latest, popular selections. Special cars will leave Merrimack Square headed for the grounds at nine o'clock sharp. One of the great features of the usual list of sports will be in order for which suitable prizes will be given. The chief event of the day, the dinner, will come at noon. Children should bring dipper with them and John says that there will be enough to eat and drink for everybody and that no one will be left out. He hears on week 1093 gardeners, 160 gallons of milk and 200 gallons of lemonade, besides all the pies and doughnuts. There will be 14 police officers in attendance and the children are cautioned to keep away from the lake and on the cars. An early return home will be made and the success of other years is assured.

Mrs. O'Donnell, Alderman Barrett, Brown, Cummings and Donnelly will attend the outing.

CRAZED WITH JOY AT FINDING CHILD

Man Attempted to End
His Life

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 9.—After unexpectedly meeting his little daughter, who with her mother disappeared months ago, a man plunged into the ocean at Sea Isle City yesterday and attempted to end his life. He explained afterward that his mind had been suddenly unbalanced by the joy of meeting his little girl again.

On December 2 last, when there was six inches of snow on the ground, a two-year-old girl was found by a policeman at the corner of Third and Market streets in this city. She was taken care of by the police and a country-wide search for the persons who had abandoned her was begun, but it was without avail. The child became a great favorite with the police. She did not know her name, so the police christened her "Mary."

The child was given to the Children's Home society of New Jersey, which in turn, placed the little girl in the care of a family said to be wealthy and residing in Merchantville, near this city. The family is spending the summer at Sea Isle City.

Yesterday the members of the family, accompanied by little "Mary," were on the boardwalk at Sea Isle City, when a man who was passing suddenly stopped, looked earnestly at the child, threw up his arms and cried: "My God, it's Dorothy!" and then picked the little girl up in his arms and kissed and hugged her. The child seemed to recognize him, as she repeatedly called out, "Papa," and returned his caresses.

The man got the address of the child's guardians and said he would call on them last evening, but immediately after leaving them and the child he ran down to the beach and, plunging into the surf, tried to drown himself.

When the lifeguards went out in a boat to save him he fought them off, but he was overpowered after a hard struggle and was brought ashore. He was taken to the police station, where he said that the only way he could explain his attempt at self-destruction was that his mind had become suddenly unbalanced by his meeting with his little daughter.

The man said he was Fritz Funk, of Docketown, Pa., and that he was a traveling salesman for an electrical concern in New York. He said that four years ago he married Mary Winslow, of Norristown, Pa., a year later a child was born to them.

Funk said that when he had come home on the night of December 2 last, he found his wife had disappeared and had taken the child with her. There had been no trouble between himself and his wife, he said, and he could not understand her going away.

Funk was held at the police station for the night.

CHILD IS PLEASED TO RETURN HOME

Mine Owner Wanted Her to Go to Alaska

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—"I wanted to come back home because I was afraid I would have to eat dog meat and live in a house made of ice like the Eskimos do. And I read in my school books that there is just a wilderness of ice in Alaska, and that the sun seldom shines. Such a dreary prospect made me homesick."

Tears of joy trickled down the cheeks of fourteen-year-old Elizabeth Arnault as she reached the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Jensen, 829 Third avenue, Brooklyn, last evening, and explained why she had so suddenly discontinued a journey that she began last Saturday with T. H. Beaumont, a wealthy mine owner.

"When I decided to go with Mr. Beaumont, who wanted me to be a companion to his wife, I thought they lived in San Francisco," said the girl. "On the way to Washington Mr. Beaumont told me we would remain in San Francisco only two weeks, and would go from there to the Yukon district in Alaska."

"As soon as we arrived in Washington I wrote to my sister, asking her for money to get home. I thought they lived in San Francisco," said the girl. "On the way to Washington Mr. Beaumont told me we would remain in San Francisco only two weeks, and would go from there to the Yukon district in Alaska."

happy. I cried most of the time after I heard we were going to Alaska. He told me conditions there were not so terrible as I had read in my school books, and that the people really have many comforts. He said I had got my facts mixed, and that I must have been thinking of Greenland and the far Arctic region. But I didn't want to take any chances."

Mr. Beaumont became acquainted with Elizabeth Arnault two weeks ago by answering an advertisement. Her sister had inserted in local papers as a nurse. Mr. Beaumont said the girl impressed him so favorably that he would make her a member of his family.

After learning the child was homesick Mr. Beaumont bought a return ticket for her, and was about to send her home when the police of Washington took her in custody. They did so at the request of the New York authorities, who had been appealed to by Mrs. Jensen when she received the letter from her sister.

Mr. Beaumont put the girl on a train yesterday morning and telegraphed to Mrs. Jensen that she was coming. "This was my first and last trip away from home," said Elizabeth.

JAILED FOR TAXES

HE WOULD NOT PAY

Man Owes Hawthorne, N. J., $3.39 and Town Wants the Money

HAWTHORNE, N. J., Aug. 9.—Not since Mayor George Sammis of Sound Beach, Conn., had to hold a rummage sale and strawberry festival in his backyard to replenish the empty Sound Beach treasury and so pay the police, fire, street cleaning, school and health departments of Sound Beach and his own salary has a municipality been so down in its luck as this town is now.

Yesterday Hawthorne was driven to the extreme of looking up citizens accused of being delinquent taxpayers and of holding them in the town cage-house until they ease some money into the Hawthorne treasury.

Chief of Police Dick Keefe decided to make an example of some one and he decided that it might as well be George Forrester of Park avenue, Hawthorne, as any one else. The chief told George that that little matter of George's taxes for 1910 and 1911, amounting to the whole and entire and complete sum of $3.39 if paid now would help the borough fathers a whole lot, inasmuch as if George paid up the borough would then only have to raise $3,995.61 of the $29,000 sadly needed for borough improvements.

George Forrester thought Chief Keefe was joking. One word led to another and finally the chief said flatly that if George didn't pay up the chief would lock him up in the Paterson jail and throw the key away. Sure enough Chief Keefe yesterday took George to Paterson and locked him up. On the commitment papers there isn't a word about how long George is to stay in jail. He can't earn money to pay taxes in Hawthorne while in jail at Paterson, and he can't get out to get the money to pay his back taxes, and there you are. So folks say that they think Chief Keefe thinks that maybe George will never get out because his back taxes will keep on piling up faster than time itself. "Pay up or shut up" is the slogan of Chief Keefe and the other policeman in the department and lots of folks are worried.

Wagons and automobiles were pressed into service by patriotic taxpayers yesterday to race to the tax collector's office.

Despite this outburst of patriotism, however, there's a feeling here that some of Hawthorne's leading patriots will be behind the Paterson iron bars instead of in front of the Hawthorne mahogany bars before the week is finished.

"Well keep it up," said the chief last night. "Somebody's been fooling George and told him he didn't have to pay, but I showed him. He's committed until he pays up, even if it takes forever."

MRS. BROKAW SUES FOR ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

Second Suit in Three Years

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—For the second time within three years, the domestic troubles of the W. Gould Brokaw are to be aired in open court. The first time was in 1910, when Mary Blair Brokaw sued for separation. This time she has sued for an absolute divorce.

Three co-respondents are named—Estelle Perry, who, the complaint alleges, was with Brokaw on the yacht "Spartan" between July 10 and 13, 1908; Mrs. Susan Setty, who was on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. between April 6 and 15, 1909; and Mabel Werke, who in September, 1908, was with Brokaw in the Hotel Carlton in Stamford, Conn.

Notice for service by publication in two Nassau county papers, and signed by Supreme Court Justice Van Sleeten, was filed in the county clerk's office at Minnola yesterday.

Attached to the notice of publication was the complaint of Mrs. Brokaw, signed before she left for Europe in May.

On May 18 of this year it was announced that Brokaw had been served at the New York Athletic club, but this he, as well as his counsel, Eugene L. Rusche, denied, while counsel for Mrs. Brokaw, Arthur Baldwin, was equally as emphatic in his assertion that the clubman had been served.

Attached to the papers was the affidavit of Howard A. Fluckinger, dated May 18, 1912, in which he stated that he and another employee of the Baldwin office, stood outside the residence of Mrs. H. Brannan Gilbert, Brokaw's sister, at No. 40 West Fifty-seventh street, for two days and that he had finally seen a lone brown coat get out, who answered exactly the description as well as the photograph which he had of Brokaw; that he had asked him if he was W. Gould Brokaw, and the man had replied that he was not. Fluckinger had been positive in his identification, however, and had served him at that time, but the papers had been thrown in the street, with the words, "I am not Brokaw, I am his brother." A second time the papers were thrown in the street, and Fluckinger walked away.

LOWELL MOTORBOAT CLUB A FLOURISHING ORGANIZATION

Great Sport Enjoyed by the Members—Some Fast Boats Owned by the Club

One of the most progressive and energetic, as well as the most recently created social organizations in this city, is the Lowell Motorboat club.

This club was the result of the successful outcome of a series of motorboat races last summer, suggested on the spur of the moment and held independently of any organized authority.

Upon witnessing the interest shown in these races which were held on the Merrimack river in the vicinity of the Pawtucket boat house, those participating in them easily saw the advantage of forming a club and making the event an annual occurrence. It was thus that Lowell came to have a motorboat club.

That the newly created institution was destined to prosper became almost immediately evident. The members at once set out to locate a site for their club house. They finally succeeded in purchasing a boat house on the river just beyond the old Vesper club house. This was accomplished last April. The building was remodeled, generally repaired and new wharves constructed.

The Lowell Motorboat Club at present comprises about 65 members and this number is constantly increasing, there being a number of new applicants daily. The officers are as follows: Commodore, Harvey Gamble; vice commodore, Dr. Harry Knapp; secretary and treasurer, Harvey Bradford; directors, F. W. Holmes, H. C. Taft, Willis Morse and Dr. Knapp.

A regatta will be held on Labor day and the committee on races comprises the following members: Dr. Knapp, chairman; J. H. Walker, Edward Jones, H. C. Peters, and Charles Golding.

About 25 or 30 entries are expected in the different events, some of them from out-of-town. The boats will be placed in classes according to the power of their engines, and prizes of cups will be awarded the winners.

Labor day should prove to be a banner day in the history of the Lowell Motorboat club, for a great deal of enthusiasm is manifested in the coming regatta. Several of the members have built new boats especially for this occasion and the races promise to be closely contested. In order to insure fairness and put all on an equal footing at the start, the events will be handicapped, this duty being in the hands of the committee of arrangements.

One of the most talked about craft in the club is the hydroplane of F. W. Holmes. It is probably the first of its kind to be seen in the vicinity of Lowell and it is indeed well worth a journey to the club house to behold this odd craft. The forward end rises completely out of the water when the plane is in motion and somewhat resembles the flight of a wild duck over the surface of the water. Besides this there are several other speed boats, most prominent among them being Dr. Knapp's "Maria Louise," "Doris III," owned by Mr. Holmes, and "Nemo," owned by A. C. Brooks. The latter was the winner of the races last summer and will figure prominently this year in spite of the fact that several new craft have been constructed to wrest the honors from Mr. Brooks.

Special new events are in the process of arrangement by the committee to take place at this year's regatta. An attempt is being made to introduce such features as swimming and canoe races.

The number of motorboats owned by Lowell men has experienced a vast increase over that of the past. People of this city have seemed in former years to be of the opinion that the value of the Merrimack river extends no farther than its commercial efficiency. The river in the vicinity of the club house presents a most beautiful appearance in addition to being a most favorable spot for the holding of a racing meet and even now its pleasure resources are too little appreciated.

The starting place of the races will be located directly in front of the club house. The course will be to Tynes's island and return, in all, a distance of approximately eight miles.

Each evening the members of the organization gather at the club house to talk over the affairs of the society and watch the boats being tried out on the river. A great deal of friendly rivalry is found among the competitors. Some of the boats are said to travel at a rate of 15 and 20 miles an hour. Mr. Holmes's craft carried a 30-horse power engine, while that of Mr. Golding is 18 horse power. Mr. Walker has a pleasure boat of 14 horse power.

The members of the club hold a social gathering on the second Tuesday of each month, and they are very largely attended.

SHOE WORKERS

OUT ON STRIKE FOR $15.50 A WEEK

LYNN, Aug. 9.—Two hundred shoe workers employed in nine upshift factories struck today when their demand for a day wage of $15.50 a week and a nine hour workday was refused by the manufacturers. The manufacturers agreed last night to pay the flat wage demanded but refused to consider a nine hour work day. Labor leaders say that there is a possibility of a general strike of 600 shoemaker workers.

JEWELRY RECOVERED

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 9.—Placer miners in the ashes of the burned Durac hotel at Loch Arbor have resulted in the recovery of $25,000 worth of jewelry lost by guests. The ashes were washed through three screenings. About $2000 worth of jewelry is still missing.

THE EAGLES

ELECTED OFFICERS AND ADMINISTRATION SLATE WON

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 9.—The administration slate is believed to have gone through unbroken in the choice of officers of the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, in annual convention in Cleveland. The balloting took place yesterday, but it was not expected that the count would be completed until the small hours of today. The slate that is thought to have won was:

Grand worthy president, William J. Brennan, Pittsburgh; grand worthy vice president, Thomas J. Cogan, Cincinnati; grand worthy chaplain, William L. Grayson, Savannah, Ga.; grand secretary, John S. Barry, San Francisco; grand conductor, Thomas P. Gleason, Minneapolis; grand trustees, James F. Kelly, Cleveland; Fred C. Naeve, Davenport, Ia.; John J. Bohl, Stamford, Conn.; and Conrad H. Mann, Milwaukee.

Award of prizes was made last night for performances of various aeries contesting in the parade. Pittsburgh won first prize, $400, for best appearance, while the same position and the same amount fell to Buffalo, with Dayton second, in the contest for attendance among cities more distant than 150 miles from Cleveland.

THE MOOSE CARNIVAL

Last night a contract was signed by the officers of the Lowell lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose and Victor D. Levitt, representing the Col. Francis Ferrari, united shows for a grand exhibition and outdoor carnival, commencing Labor day, Monday, September 2nd, and ending Saturday night, September 14th, inclusive.

This will be more than a circus; there will be ten shows, featuring Col. Francis Ferrari's trained wild animal arena. In this collection of trained wild animals, there will be found all of the animals that were saved from the fire at Dreamland, Coney Island, last summer. There will also be in the aggregation, Wild West, Old Plantation, Native Village, Royal Hippodrome, Mysterious Egypt, Minnie Hafla, the Mirror Maze, the Diving Girls, and Dupont, the most beautiful horses in the world, and many other interesting features.

Then there will be a Merry-go-round, a Ferris wheel, the Ocean Wave, and the Joy Wheel. Besides these attractions there will be the contest for prizes; such as the "Queen of the Carnival Contest," for a diamond ring, a silver toilet set, and other premiums.

SAYS HE STOLE FOOD FOR STARVING FAMILY

Brooklyn Man Admitted Guilt and Was Sent Away to Prison Cell

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Yesterday morning was just the same as every other morning of the last two months in the barren, three-room flat on the third floor of No. 46 Noll street, Brooklyn, where Otto Moisky lived with his wife and their five children.

There were the naked floors, the one bed, the two chairs and the usual three cents worth of stale buns. The only difference yesterday was that it was the last three cents worth of buns. For nine months the father had been out of work, and for nine months the small savings of his eight years of steady labor had been going out, frugally but steadily, to feed his wife and children.

During the last few weeks the husband and wife had starved themselves to make the final pennies serve the children to the uttermost day.

Staggered Away for Food

The little ones, ranging from fifteen months to ten years in age, had all the food yesterday. And so it was that Moisky reeled and staggered as he went down the steps of the dingy tenement and took to the streets on his final quest for work—and life.

"Papa, we like some other food," his six-year-old boy, Tom, had pleaded as he left the flat.

"I'll get it, Tommy," the father answered, but he had no hope of getting it.

It was very early in the morning. The milkmen's wagons were the only vehicles on the streets, and the grocers' boys, carrying hot bread and supplies to the doors of customers, were the only other pedestrians along his way.

Harry Herskowitz, whose father keeps a grocery at No. 115 Ralph avenue, saw the thin, pallid man moving slowly along Putnam avenue. Harry had just left a bag of supplies at No. 373, and he happened to turn around just in time to see Moisky leap into the doorway, seize the bag and start on a run for his own home.

Brought Back a Feast

To the little flat in Noll street came the sound of rapid footsteps on the stairs, and presently Moisky burst through the door, breathless, excited, but triumphant with the treasure he carried.

There were potatoes, sugar and bread—even butter, a thing unknown in the house for months. And there were three bananas.

The children fell upon the food like the famished little animals that they had grown to be. Even the wife, who is soon again to be a mother, consented to share such plenty. There was veritable festivity in the gloomy flat.

Two hours later a policeman opened the door and took Moisky away. In the flat was unmistakable evidence of the robbery. The stolen food had been worth $1.52, and the young Herskowitz had made a vigorous complaint.

But there was no shame in the attitude of the prisoner as he stood before Magistrate McGuire in Gates avenue court.

Confessed Without Shame

"Yes, I took the things," he said simply. "I have five children and a wife. We are starving. I took the things." The magistrate looked at Herskowitz.

"Of course, you can withdraw this complaint," he said. "Otherwise I must hold the prisoner."

"Sure hold him," said the plaintiff. "I understand he's been arrested for vagrancy. He ought to be sent away."

So they sent Moisky away to a cell.

A reporter called at the Noll street flat last night.

"Here's papa; here's papa," came the eager shout of a baby voice from behind the door. But the little chap covered into a corner when he found a stranger was the caller.

The reporter did not have the heart to tell the sick mother that her husband was in jail. There was not a scrap of food in the place.

Later last night a wealthy resident of the neighborhood visited the flat. He gave money to the mother with which to purchase necessities, and then sent one of the children for the grocer who had been robbed. After a talk the latter, it is said, agreed to withdraw the complaint in the morning.

PROF. KEMP

SENT TO PANAMA CANAL TO MAKE OBSERVATIONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Prof. Jas. F. Kemp, head of the department of geology at Columbia university, has gone to the isthmus of Panama, at the invitation and expense of the canal commission, to give the engineers the benefit of his expert knowledge.

While the object of his visit has not been made known, it is understood he will try to obviate the trouble encountered by the canal engineers in the Culebra cut, where great slides of rock and earth still interfere with the work. Prof. Kemp usually spends the summer at Hulet's Landing, Lake George, doing field geological work in the neighboring Adirondacks. A few days ago, without any public announcement, he received the invitation of the canal commission and left at once.

Another matter that may engage his attention is the outburst of gases along the canal cut, first reported to be of volcanic origin and therefore causing uneasiness, but which have recently been attributed to other and more local causes. The canal officials have always denied that the landslides or the gaseous outbursts indicated any permanent obstacle.

THREE WITNESSES

MONSIGNOR TEELING MET WITH ACCIDENT

He Was Thrown from a Taxicab

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 9.—Monsignor A. J. Teeling, aged 67, of Lynn, Mass., was injured here in an automobile accident late Wednesday night. He was traveling to Cincinnati after a short stay at Mt. Clemens. At the Brush street depot he entered a taxi with Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gurburt of St. Louis, the machine starting for the St. Clair hotel.

The driver went up Randolph street at such speed that when he saw a trolley car crossing ahead of him he could not stop. The taxi crashed into the side of the car and was overturned, the occupants being thrown violently to the pavement. The driver disappeared.

A policeman sent in a call for an ambulance, which took the injured clergyman to St. Mary's hospital. Mr. Teeling's injuries are not serious and he will be able to continue his journey in a few days.

GOV. WILSON

TO POSE AGAIN TODAY FOR PORTRAIT

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Governor Wilson expected to spend most of the day posing for a special portrait to be used in the national campaign. Regarding reports that he might not go on a stump tour during the campaign Governor Wilson said:

"I don't know exactly what the method of campaign will be as yet, but my speaking engagements will probably not begin before the first of September."

Asked if he would read his campaign speeches as he did his speech of acceptance in the notification exercises, Governor Wilson remarked, "No, I will never read another speech again if I can help it."

As governor of the state of New Jersey and president of Princeton university, Governor Wilson has always spoken extemporaneously. He said this morning that reading a speech was "like poison" to him.

P. A. B. WIDENER

TO GIVE HARVARD A $1,000,000 LIBRARY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—P. A. B. Widener will erect a million dollar library building for Harvard University as a memorial to his grandson, Harry Elkins Widener, who lost his life when the Titanic sank at sea. This was announced yesterday by Horace Trumbull, an architect, who has been commissioned to design the building.

Harry Elkins Widener in his will left his library of 3000 volumes of rare books to Harvard University, "when the university provided a suitable building for the same."

Mr. Widener immediately conceived the idea of providing this suitable structure, but did not announce his intention, as he desired the gift to be a surprise.

The building will be known as the Harry Elkins Widener Memorial Library and will be of brick and marble, to conform with the style of the University buildings at Cambridge. It will be three stories high, 272 feet long and 210 feet wide. One room will be set apart to hold the collection of books catalogued by the Harvard librarian.

Ground for the building will be broken next month.

ROXBURY MAN

MOURNED AS DEAD—RETURNED TO HIS HOME

HAVERHILL, Aug. 9.—While seated at a window of her son's home on Washington street of this city yesterday, Mrs. Joseph Lipsky of Roxbury, was astounded to perceive her husband, whom she had given up for dead, step from a car and enter the house.

Firmly convinced that she had seen an apparition, the woman ran screaming through the house, and it was not until Lipsky himself walked in and calmly asked the nature of the trouble, that the relatives of Mrs. Lipsky learned what had caused her outbreak.

A week ago Lipsky, who is 58 years old and of feeble health, disappeared from his son's home, and a joint search by police of Boston and Haverhill failed to locate him. His wife resigned herself to the belief that he was dead, and attired in mourning, came to this city to mingle her tears with those of her son.

Lipsky said that when he left his son's home he started for the Hilo hospital where his daughter-in-law is confined with pneumonia. He lost his memory, however, before arriving, and for a week was unable to tell his name or where he came from.

When he recovered his memory he found, he said, that he had been cared for by unknown persons who live near the hospital who directed him to his son's home.

YOUNG'S WILL

PROVIDES THAT JEWELRY WILL BE MELTED

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Protestant Episcopal diocese of northern New Jersey is residuary legatee of the estate of William Patterson Young, a wealthy Newark bachelor, who died suddenly at Atlantic City July 27. The church will get $500,000, it is said. Young's will was probated in Newark yesterday by Edward S. Leary, who was Young's counsel, and the Fidelity Trust company, which was named as executor, Stanley M. Walker, a cousin of the testator, receives an annuity of $600, and Corneilia B. Patterson, another cousin, gets an annuity of $300. St. Barnabas' and St. Michael's hospitals, the Eye and Ear Infirmary, the Home for Crippled Children, the Free Public Library, all Newark institutions, are given $500 each, and a like amount is given to the New Jersey Historical society.

Young devised that an Episcopal church must be built on the site of the Young homestead, at Second avenue and Parker street, Newark, the homestead to be shifted to another part of the plot to be used as a rectory for the proposed church. The church is to be erected as a memorial to his mother.

A clause in Young's will directs that all of his jewelry, rings, cases of his watches, his chains and any other gold jewelry of which he died possessed shall be melted and sold as bullion "in order to forever destroy the identity of all jewelry of which I may die seized."

The estate is said to be worth $700,000.

PRES. HERRMAN

NOT IMPRESSED WITH PROPOSED PLAYERS UNION

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 9.—President Herrman of the Cincinnati National Baseball club does not think much of the latest effort at a baseball players union. He does not believe any of the Reds are interested in the affair and adds that there is nothing new about it. "The new national agreement is much more favorable to the players," Herrman said, "and I don't think there is any dissatisfaction. I haven't heard anything lately about the players' organization and, of course, can't discuss it officially as a member of the national commission."

O'Sullivan's Arch Support Shoes are wonderful agents in banishing all foot troubles. The speed with which they relieve tired, aching feet and ankles, remedy the dreaded "broken arch" and make nervous people forget their nerves, is truly remarkable.

ONE OF THE FIRST SYMPTOMS of a breaking down arch is a feeling of weariness when on your feet for a considerable period. The feet become tired and ache, smart and burn. There is a pain in the arch and around the ankle and sharp twinging pains often extend up the calf, knee, thigh and back, bringing on those dreaded pain rackers—Neuritis, Sciatica, Rheumatism, etc. If you are troubled with aching feet don't neglect the warning signals. Get a pair of O'Sullivan's Arch Support Shoes at once and don't take substitutes.

HUMPHREY O'SULLIVAN INVITES DEMOCRATS

To Great Picnic to be Held at
on August 24

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Mayor John F. Fitzgerald told the members of the democratic state committee yesterday afternoon that after talking with prominent republicans and democrats he doubted if the electoral vote of a single state would be given to President Taft.

In the opinion of the mayor, the contest is between Theodore Roosevelt and Gov. Woodrow Wilson, and he counseled the democrats to look to the colonel as their opponent rather than the nominee of the republican convention.

Mayor Fitzgerald discussed the national campaign with the members of the committee yesterday afternoon by invitation, and he quoted statements made to him by republicans, democrats and followers of Roosevelt of national prominence. He said that the best opinion he could gather was that the progressive party was to be the successor of the republican party, that Theodore Roosevelt would this year eclipse President Taft, and thereafter the progressive party would be the one with which the democracy must reckon.

In 1916, Mr. Fitzgerald said the men now at the head of the progressive party would lead, with the present republicans following. Therefore, the mayor said in this campaign the democrats must not take Theodore Roosevelt too lightly, for he would win electoral votes.

The mayor said he was satisfied that Col. Roosevelt would sweep the west. He doubted if a serious contest would be made in California, for example, in behalf of President Taft. West of the Mississippi, Mr. Fitzgerald said, the electoral votes of nominally republican states would be given to Col. Roosevelt.

Senators Not an Issue

The mayor appeared at the meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon principally to inform the members of the situation as he had found it with respect to the senatorial and representative districts. He said he had ascertained that certain districts heretofore neglected could be carried if democratic candidates were nominated.

The committee decided to have a candidate in each representative district, and in districts entitled to two or more representatives to nominate no more than one if it were deemed advisable to concentrate the opposition to the republican candidates in that way. How many candidates should be nominated in double and triple districts is to be determined by the local committees.

The question whether the state committee should endorse the candidacy of Mayor Fitzgerald for the United States Senate was raised while the mayor was present. Mr. Fitzgerald objected to the committee passing any vote, although he is at present the only candidate. The mayor said he did not intend to ask any candidate for the senate or house to pledge himself, nor did he contemplate becoming a factor in any district.

Mr. Fitzgerald said if any candidate for the senate or for representative wished his help during the campaign it would be extended, and no promise of support would be exacted. If any democrat thought the support of Mr. Fitzgerald would injure his chances of election, the mayor said he proposed to remain outside of the district in question. The mayor said he would not have his candidacy for the senate made an issue in the state campaign if he could prevent it.

Committee Debts All Paid

Most of the 28 members of the state committee present expressed themselves as favoring Mayor Fitzgerald for the senate, but they agreed to inject that issue into the campaign. The mayor said he would contribute liberally of his time, energy and money to the campaign in behalf of a democratic legislature.

Chairman Thomas P. Riley broke the cheering news to the members of the committee that all of the old obligations of the organization had been discharged. Inasmuch as some of the bills contracted in the campaign of 1910, as well as in 1911, were unpaid a week ago, the announcement that all incumbrances had been removed was a happy little surprise for the committeemen.

Judge Riley, in proclaiming the glad tidings, did not disclose the source of the contributions that had cleaned the slate, for he said he did not know who had "come across." All he knew, and he made no delicate inquiry, was that the secretary of the committee had received a message from the governor's office to the effect that the state committee debts had been paid.

Chairman Riley had refused to receive contributions this year from democrats who desired to help the organization, on the ground that it would be unfair to accept funds for the coming campaign while bills of previous campaigns were not discharged. He accepted only enough money from members and from candidates of a year ago to take care of the current expenses of the committee. Judge Riley held out for the clean slate, and now he has won his point. All contributions henceforth accepted can be applied to the expenses of the pending campaign.

To Contest Council District

The state committee has arranged for the nomination of a candidate for the executive council in every district. Yesterday the entrance of Dr. John P. Rutledge and C. W. Guy as candidates in the second district of William Barter in the fourth, of J. K. Meyers in the sixth, of Arthur Seagraves in the seventh and of John Clark in the eighth was announced. The Boston democracy will supply candidates in the third, which is the democratic district, and democrats are to be induced to run in the first and fifth districts. Chairman Riley yesterday received assurance from members of the committee that complete county tickets will be nominated. In Bristol, Michael Reagan is to be a candidate for treasurer and John C. Byrne is to run for county commissioner. In Plymouth, E. P. Boynton is to be the party candidate for treasurer.

Blankets have been sent to county and town committees and with the request that signatures be obtained and the nomination papers filed for candidates for county officers and for senators and representatives. Replies received yesterday by Chairman Riley indicated that democrats were carrying out the instructions of the committee.

Gov. Wilson to Be Invited

At the request of Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell and Paul Hanrahan of Lawrence, the state committee yesterday agreed to send out invitations to the democratic picnic which the two men are giving at Canobie lake on Aug. 24. Democrats of Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth counties are specially invited, and Mr. O'Sullivan and Mr. Hanrahan have asked the democratic mayors of New Hampshire cities, the democratic organizations of New England and all officers of city and town committees in Massachusetts to be their guests.

The state committee voted to invite Gov. Woodrow Wilson to deliver an address in Massachusetts after the Maine state election.

MARRIAGE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Williston of 167 Third street were surprised by a party of friends last Monday evening on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of their wedding. The couple were married on Aug. 5, 1872, in New Brunswick and have resided in Lowell about 20 years. Nine of their 11 children are still living and they have 17 grandchildren.

Thomas Williston, on behalf of the children, presented Mr. and Mrs. Williston with a purse of gold; afterwards the refreshments were served and the couple received the good wishes of all. Miss Myrtle Wadsworth read the following, which was written for the occasion by Miss Burgess:

Forty years have passed by since you first joined hands.

And so bravely life's journey began.

Forty years with their trouble, their toll and their care.

With their lessons, their pleasure and plans.

Years though crowded with duties yet brightened by mirth.

With a mingling of pain and of joy.

For the Lord in His wisdom, His patience and love

Sends not all bliss without some alloy.

Happy home and kind friends, and the blessing of health

And with children to brighten the way.

Some are near, some are far, but all gladly unite.

And send greetings on this festive day.

With the hope that the future may bring much joy.

And, as onward your journey you wend.

May your lives be made happy and crowned with peace

HEARING HELD ON THE PROPOSITION TO SEIZE SALISBURY BEACH

HAVERHILL, Aug. 9.—The commission appointed by Gov. Foss to take over Salisbury beach as a state reservation held a public hearing at Turner hall last night for the purpose of hearing the opinions of the cottagers of the Merrimack Valley regarding the purchase and management of the beach.

Chairman George H. Dole of this city presided and Rev. Jacob H. Spaulding of Salisbury and Frank E. Stanley of Lawrence were present.

Some 20 residents of Lawrence, Haverhill and suburban towns were in attendance. Counsel outlined the situation and expressed opinions regarding the legal entanglements.

Chairman Dole assured the cottagers that it was the intention of the commission to take over the beach and that the present plan is to appraise the land and seize it. He said the commission had met and drawn up a list of questions which it was unable to answer and submitted them to Atty. Gen. Swift three weeks ago, and that the commission awaited an answer, and that until it was instructed it felt unable to act.

Dr. Spaulding said that the members of the commission had pledged themselves to act as a unit and that whatever the opinion of any one member might be, the decision of the majority should rule and the position of any one member would never be disclosed. He said there had already been talk that he had said out and was on the fence, but he warned the cottagers not to heed such rumors and predicted that there would be more before there were less.

TO RAISE CAMPAIGN FUNDS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—Plans for the raising of funds for the democratic national campaign will be made next week by Mayor Wells, treasurer of the democratic campaign committee. "Until I have seen Governor Wilson and thoroughly understand his views on the manner of conducting the campaign I cannot report what position or action I will take," said Mr. Wells. "I intend to be guided by Governor Wilson's suggestions, so cannot yet outline a policy."

SEX IN IMMIGRATION

President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard is home from a globe-circling tour in which he acquired and disseminated various new notions. Among them is the idea that there should be some regulation of immigration on the basis of sex. He is disturbed, as others have been, at the preponderance of the masculine element among the newcomers in recent years. It was not so in the old days, when immigrants came in families very generally, and when unmarried persons were more nearly divided as to sex. Now the official reports show that the men of all races outnumber women about two to one.

This is clearly not desirable. It would be better if the immigrants brought their families along with them or sent for them as soon as they were able to do so. This would make for their quicker assimilation into the American people who were here before them and be of benefit to themselves and the country. Unfortunately a large proportion of the immigrants do not come with the intention of remaining. They intend to "make their pile" and then go back, and their places are taken by others with a similar purpose.

But the thing can scarcely be regulated by law. Dr. Eliot would prohibit a preponderance of more than five per cent. of men in any one year, and it is obvious that the enforcement of such a rule would be difficult. As a matter of fact, there is more labor for men than for women, and here an economic law applies. Such a restriction on immigration is not likely to be enacted for some time, whatever others may be.

THE MEAT PROBLEM

Until the supply and demand for meat products even up, prices are bound to be high. That they should be lower everybody is convinced, but how to bring it about it is not so easy to say. Mayor Fitzgerald and others would put a boycott on meat, but that is scarcely feasible, at least in an absolute sense. However, there is manifestly a falling off in the demand for meats, which if it continue long enough may effect the end desired. The records show that the Chicago packing houses sold 25 per cent. less in June than in the same month last year. That represented a drop of no less than 55,000,000 pounds. For the half year the falling off was noteworthy. At the same time there was a reduction of more than 50 per cent. in the livestock exported.

As these figures would imply, there was a gain in the available supply of meats in Chicago. Diminished demand had its inevitable effect, and the stock for the six-month period increased. Before long, the rising tendency should be reversed and prices begin to recede. There are, however, many influences operating on the meat industry which tend to interfere in this regard so that meat is likely to continue pretty dear.

For people generally it will do no harm if they so modify their diet as to get along with less beef, mutton and pork. Such food cannot be dispensed with altogether, but less of it will serve. There are other things good to eat quite as nourishing and very much cheaper. The modification suggested would mean a very material saving to those who properly complain of the high cost of living.

THAT SHOE TRUST

There are lots of things more to be desired than a merger of the shoe factories of New England. It is said to be contemplated by New York interests, which propose to make a little $75,000,000 combine and take in all the principal concerns in this section. It is to be hoped that they will do no such thing. The shoe industry, like cotton manufacturing, has so far kept out of trust control, and it has been well for both industries. Shoe factories have increased in number all over this section and communities have been glad to get them. Our own city has several and would welcome more. They provide employment for many workers and helpfully diversify our industries. We probably would not be "in it" with a shoe trust in control.

Besides, the public has grown very tired of these big combinations of capital, inundated with water, whether they are in restraint of trade or not. It wants no more trusts, even "good" ones. The trusts profess to secure economies in operation but they don't always, or usually, carry out their professions. The business of shoe manufacturing as it is done in New England at present would better be left alone.

PERUVIAN RUBBER

There is nothing like rubber for maintaining human slavery. It was so in the Congo in King Leopold's time and it is true now in a part of Peru. The rubber gatherers appear to have no rights that anybody is bound to respect. On both continents they have been victims of worse atrocities than any known in our slavery times, according to all reports. These barbarities have been ended in Africa and they will be in South America. Just how is not definitely known. The Peruvian government declines to accept the entire responsibility for the happenings in the rubber country of Putumayo and insists that the English concessionaries and England herself must bear their share of blame for the atrocities. The poor Indians fared as ill as the poor negroes in Africa. However, the investigations now making are pretty sure to effect an improvement. That will be in part accomplished by sending Roman Catholic missionaries into the district. They can help all around in bringing in better conditions.

A STATELY PROCESSION

What a stately procession was that in the harbor of New York the other morning, when between 7 and 9 o'clock six ocean liners passed slowly up the stream to their docks! Later in the day others came, making a new record for the port or for any port on the planet. The great ships brought all the passengers they could carry. The arrivals were 1506 first class, 2015 second class and 5736 steerage, a total of 9257, or about 560 better than on any previous day. This country still attracts thousands from the other side of the ocean and fortunately at present there is something to do for all who come, provided they go where labor is wanted. Many of them can get jobs in the western harvest fields or the steel regions, where the dearth of labor is really serious.

The line-up of candidates for congress is apparently not yet completed. The new district is somewhat of a commotion, and republicans who would otherwise like to run are afraid to risk the battle where the outcome might be disastrous. This is a democratic year and a strong candidate should be able to score a victory in the "new fifth."

FOOLISH SEASON

Summer-Tan-Fool.

SEEN AND HEARD

When Col. William H. Howard, now a member of the tariff board, was electing one of his constituents in bygone days, he struck a backwoods country in Georgia, and not very busy talking only to the voters. He was much concerned about a man named John, who was now for him, then against him, and always changeable.

"What's the matter with John?" the colonel asked one of his constituents. "Aw, you can't tell nothing about John, colonel," was the assurance. "He is the smart little man you ever see. Why, he has had religion so many times, and been baptized in the creek do a here so often that the bullfrogs know him every time he's 'messed'."

There is a new science called mnemonics, which is trying to get itself introduced into our public schools. We have no kick on this science—only it seems to us to be a roundabout way of arriving at facts that you ought to remember right off the bat. It appears to work something in this manner:

"When was Lincoln born?" asks the teacher. "I—I forget," whines the pupil. "Naturally you do. Go at it right. How many Muses are there in mythology?"

"Nine." "Right. Now double that number." "Twice-nine—eighteen." "Right again. Multiply it by 100." "1800."

"Good. Add the number of Muses to that 1800."

"1809." "Aha! That's when Lincoln was born. Why don't you learn the scientific way of getting at these things?"

As we said in the first place, it's a noble science, but we'd rather remember dates.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The noble red man! On hearing this expression how the mind fills with pictures of scalp locks and tomahawks and snake dances and all such appendages of Indian life. Then do we think of King Philip of Massachusetts, of Pontiac of the Great Lakes, of Tecumseh, the famous Canadian war chief, and of Geronimo and Saganawdo, the mythical heroes of the Leatherstocking tales. We follow them along the broken trails of the Mohawk valley, faintly hearing the crack of their rifles when they bring down fat bucks, watch them as they push their birch barks against the currents of the Hudson, and gaze with horror when they attack and burn some isolated settler's cabin and torture its unfortunate occupants. Then when we read Francis Parkman's splendid history of the heroic life of Pontiac, Washington Irving's graphic sketch of the career of the brave King Philip, or Fenimore Cooper's masterful portrayal of his ideal Indian, Uncas, doesn't the pulse beat faster, the eyes glister and the heart warm towards these noble Americans as one dwells upon their valor in battle and upon their Spartan courage in defeat?

These were the kind of thoughts I carried with me when, while in Maine, recently, I visited one of the few remaining Indian villages in the United States, that stood on an island near Oldtown.

"One bit, a slice, it's the fare, fellah," this was the request made of me by the man who had rowed me across to the island, a young Indian.

"One bit!" "Fellah!" A Boweryite could not have used more clichéd slang. Shades of Pontiac, of Philip, of Tecumseh! Was it possible that the blood of these far-famed war chiefs might be flowing through the veins of this modern-day grabbing ferryman? Truly my admiration for the noble red man received a severe jolt through the intercourse with this specimen of later day Indian. Moreover, it could not be denied that the young Indian was a real one, for he had high cheekbones, black beady eyes, swarthy complexion and straight, black hair. But this, his "bean," was his only Indian characteristic. In an absent minded manner, I had half expected to see such a young native decked out in deerskin pants, moccasins, and a skin shirt, with a shaven crown about a long scalplock and a ring stuck through his nostril. Instead, this "son of the forest" wore outing trousers, red and green striped stockings, a pair of patent leather low-cut, a dirty red-striped green shirt with its attached soft collar, a four-in-hand washable tie that apparently he had named, and a straw hat with its red and green band. Indeed, I'll bet dollars to doughnuts, that he wore even garters.

After I had paid young Chief Swat-the-Fly his "one bit," I strolled over to the village. This I had half expected to see made up of a large number of deerskin tents with smoke rising from their top holes and possibly a larger "lodge" in the center of the primitive community wherein resided Chief Kill-Forty-Nine-Panthers. But I was disappointed. What I did see was a collection of tumble-down shanties, each and every one of which looked to have received its previous coat of paint about thirty years ago. In most of these buildings the street doors were open, so through them I could see a part of the interiors. Every room had

OLIVE OIL FOR CONSTIPATION

If you only knew how easy it is to get rid of constipation, you would become a convert to the Pompeian Olive Oil habit immediately. While more people suffer from this trouble, and are compelled to almost daily resort to the use of cathartics, purgatives and pills of all kinds, this is possibly the easiest trouble to correct. Olive Oil, if it is absolutely pure, is the best laxative known, and the one which thousands of physicians recommend.

Pompeian Olive Oil you get the purest possible, being from the first pressing of selected, hand-picked, ripe Italian olives. It is not chemically treated or adulterated in any way. Simply the pure olive oil itself. That is why Pompeian gives you the sweet, nutty flavor lacking in other kinds, and without the least greasy taste.

A teaspoonful of Pompeian Olive Oil taken with each meal acts as a gentle laxative. The bowels will be kept open naturally and you will not suffer any more from constipation. In addition it is the greatest health-food known, will keep away many diseases, build up the body, keep your complexion clear and give you health and strength. Thousands of healthy men, women and children today owe their health to the use of Pompeian Olive Oil.

Pompeian Olive Oil is sold by druggists and grocers. Full one-half pint cans, 25 cents; full pint cans, 50 cents; full quart cans, 90 cents.

FELL SIX STORIES CHILD DROPPED TO BOTTOM OF AIRSRAFT INJURY

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Reuben Glickfeld, 4 years old, flying a kite on the roof of a six-story tenement building in the East Side, plunged through an airshaft to the basement yesterday. In his descent Reuben carried with him several hundred feet of clothesline and the accumulated laundry of a score of families, hung in the airshaft for drying.

When Reuben was unwrapped from the pathetic bundle he was breathless but unhurt, until an excited fourth-floor occupant dropped a milk bottle on his foot, cutting it slightly.

Abraham Levy, 4 years old, also leaped too far out of a window to investigate and fell. As Reuben had cleaned up the washing, Abraham was seriously hurt.

Laura Galls, 12 years old, was fatally hurt yesterday when a clothes pole on the rear of her home fell and the top snapped off, striking the child on her head. At the time she was carrying her 3-months-old brother, John, but managed to shield him.

Although painfully hurt, the child smiled her thanks to an ambulance surgeon when he told her the baby had entirely escaped injury. Laura was acting as "Little Mother" to four younger brothers and sisters at the time of the accident, both her father and mother having gone out to work.

BENJAMIN KATZ

SAYS MEN IN AUTO TRIED TO ROB HIM

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Benjamin Katz, a railroad manufacturer, of No. 13 East Twenty-first street, occupying a left on the second floor, reported to the police late yesterday that he had been threatened by five men, one of whom, with a revolver, attempted to enter his place of business. Katz was looking out of the window when a dark touring car, containing the men, drove up and stopped in front of it. The five men, according to Katz, got out of the machine and crossed to the opposite side of the street, taking a position directly across the way from his place. Katz says they shouted to attract his attention and then one of them, pulling a revolver from his pocket, ran over to the building and up the stairs. Katz asserted he kicked the door of his left and telephoned the police. After several efforts to break in the door, according to Katz, was called to the street by his companions. The five then drove away. Katz said he could give no explanation why the men should attempt to rob him. He says the police, the number of the automobile, Captain Morris questioned Traffic Policeman Lebeck. The policeman told the captain that he had seen an automobile answering the description given by Katz and bearing the same number.

COUNTY CHAIRMEN

TO DISCUSS CAMPAIGN WITH STATE OFFICERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Republican county chairmen from this state met at state headquarters here today to discuss campaign matters with State Chairman Barnes and Morton E. Lewis, chairman of the executive committee. In addressing the assembled chairmen, Mr. Barnes laid stress on the fact that the selection of a republican nominee for governor was an open question, in which he said, "Personally I have no interest whatsoever." He continued: "Our opponents very naturally will try to make it appear that because of the earnestness with which I advocated certain principles of government and opposed others that I believe superior to the coming convention more than my due share of political influence. The republican party of New York state is not the asset of any one man and never will be. I am entirely indifferent as to who is the nominee for governor, provided he is a man whose thought runs clear and who knows his own mind."

BITTEN BY FISH

MAN IS IN FEAR OF HYDROPHOBIA

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Whether a fish can have hydrophobia is the question that Fred Henry of Hancock street, Brooklyn, would like to have settled, and for that reason he has sent to the Eastern Institute in Brooklyn the head of a pike that bit him yesterday at Seward's lake, near Newton, N. J. Henry was fishing with his boat which he had just bought, and he was fishing in the lake when he was bitten. He caught a pike which weighed about three pounds, which he dropped about in the bottom of the boat and finally fastened its teeth in his big toe. He had to use the handle of his landing net to pry open the fish's jaws before he got free. The toe began to swell and Henry became worried. He fears the pike may have had hydrophobia and has sent its head to the Eastern Institute.

JACK JOHNSON MANAGER RAMSEY PITCHER KEATING

SAID TO BE LOOKING FOR FIGHTS IN AUSTRALIA MUST RETURN $500 TO THE ALTOONA CLUB COURT SAYS LAWRENCE DIRECTORS HAD RIGHT TO SELL HIM

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Alderman Al Tearnay last night said that Jack Johnson had agreed to fight Sam Langford and Sam McVea in Australia under certain conditions, as yet not completed with by Promoter W. H. McIntosh. "Johnson told representatives of McIntosh that their offer of $10,000 for a fight with Langford and McVea would be acceptable to him provided he were given $5000 for training expenses and three round-trip tickets to Australia, and provided that $10,000 were deposited with me," Tearnay said. "He chose me as stakeholder because I had guided him in business investments. I have no connection with promoting the fight other than that of stakeholder. "After Johnson had issued his ultimatum, McIntosh's representatives came to me for references. That is the last I heard of the proposition. Johnson refused to affirm the report that he would re-enter the ring. He said he would fight if it would be a personal favor to Tearnay."

THE PROSECUTOR

SAYS THAT HE HEARD GRACE SHOT FIRED

ATLANTA, Aug. 8.—An amazing aftermath of the Grace case came yesterday when Solicitor General Hugh Al. Dorsey, who led the prosecution of Mrs. Daisy E. Grace, declared that while lying dead in his apartment across the street from the Grace home, at No. 23 West Eleventh street, he heard the shot which wounded Eugene Grace and that it was fired between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Grace testified that Grace was shot after 11 o'clock on the morning of March 5. Mr. Dorsey declares he would have sworn upon the witness stand to give this evidence, which could have contradicted Mrs. Grace's story, but was advised not to do so by eminent judges for ethical reasons. Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey were in bed in their rooms just across from the Grace home when Mr. Dorsey heard the shot. They thought some one in the Grace home was shooting at a cat. "Curiously enough," said Mr. Dorsey, "if I thought we were the shot until two days afterward, when officers consulted me about the case and gave into my possession the two 'alibi' letters they seized in the Grace home and I ordered Mrs. Grace arrested. "The prosecution of Mrs. Grace devolved on me, and I knew my evidence regarding the time of the shot would destroy her defense. But the very fact of being prosecutor placed me in a remarkable position."

BRITISH SUBJECTS
AND THEIR DUTYDiscussed at the Hearing of Charges That Alien Labor
Law Was Violated

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—"It is the duty of British subjects to help each other," declared Francis E. Willey of Bradford, England, when asked by Assistant District Attorney Garland today if he had authorized anyone to furnish bail for Arthur Saville of Bradford, who is charged with importing English mill operatives. Mr. Willey said he had no recollection of authorizing a salesman to furnish bail, but "if I did," he added, "I would do so again."

He then expressed his opinion on the duty of British subjects.

Willey was the principal witness at today's session of the hearing of the charges against Saville before U. S. Commissioner Grinnell. Willey is the son of Francis Willey, head of the wool firm of Francis Willey & Co. of Bradford, where the federal government charges operatives were engaged to work in Barre, Mass., where the senior Willey controls mills.

Willey testified that he was a member of the Willey firm of which his father is the head. So far as he knew he said the firm was not interested in the mills at Barre. He said he is now treasurer of the Barre Woolcombing Co., and that his father is a stockholder.

BECKER MAY TELL
ABOUT POLICE GRAFTPrison Keepers Say Accused Police Official Is On Verge of Breaking Down

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Tombs prison keepers seemed to think today that Police Lieutenant Becker was "on the point of break-down" and there were reports at the public prosecutor's office that the police officer under indictment for the murder of Herman Rosenthal might turn state's evidence.

District Attorney Whitman conferred with John F. McIntyre, counsel for Becker, but said no terms for a confession were discussed. Whitman said: "I have hopes that Becker who is a shrewd man, may decide that his best interests will require him to tell the whole truth. If he should do that I would have to think over pretty carefully what my attitude should be. While murder is a graver crime than blackmail it might be that I would decide in the event of a confession to ask some clemency for Becker. One of the greatest accomplishments for the good of the community would be to find out who are the big blackmailers in the police department and to abolish forever that treacherous, and wicked system."

The grand jury is said to have learned many things to show that

Becker has made money very rapidly within the last few months. In one year, bank Becker was found to have $3000 on deposit, while the prosecutor has been told of other savings bank accounts which will be investigated.

"Bald Jack" Rose in his confession says that Becker told him that he cleaned up $50,000 in four months.

Within a few days the grand jury will hand down about six additional indictments. These will be drawn against Louis Rosenzweig, "Whitey" Lewis, Harry Horowitz, Frank Ciroli and probably Jack Sullivan and Sam Scheneps. Indictments against certain police officials for grafting will be drawn later.

NEW INDICTMENTS

EXPECTED IN THE ROSENTHAL
MURDER CASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Six more indictments for murder in the Rosenthal case will be handed down by the grand jury in a few days. The new indictments are expected to show that

The biennial state convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will be held in Springfield on Aug. 22 and will be attended by about five hundred and fifty delegates from all over the state. The event will open with a solemn high mass at the cathedral which is expected Cardinal O'Connell will attend. The meeting will be called to order at the close of the mass and important business is scheduled, but the feature of the convention will be the election of officers.

President John Dillon of Boston will not be a candidate for re-election, but the contest for the presidential chair will be between Mr. John J. O'Connor of Holyoke, state treasurer of the order, and Attorney William I. McLaughlin of Worcester, at present vice president of the order and license commissioner of the latter city. Mr. O'Connor is optimistic of his chances though he realizes that he has the fight of his life on his hands to get the majority of the votes of the 550 delegates who will attend the state convention. Mr. O'Connor might have his present position, that of treasurer, without opposition, or the vice presidency either on the same grounds if he would agree to stay out of the big fight, but he has already been endorsed for the office as the progressive candidate of the order in the four western counties and feels that he would not be serving the best interests of the order unless he made his fight.

He will have for a nucleus the 120 delegates from his end of the state solidly and expects to pick up enough to

PRESIDENT TAFT
VETOED THE BILLFor the Revision of the Wool TariffWILL ALSO VETO THE COTTON BILLAs Well as the Steel Measure

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—For the second time within a year President Taft today vetoed a bill to revise the wool tariff—Schedule K of the Payne-Aldrich law.

With a message of disapproval the president returned to congress the bill evolved as a compromise between the house and senate, holding that its low rates would bring disaster to home industries. It appeared to congress, however, not to adjourn until it had enacted a measure to "substantially reduce unnecessary existing duties" without destroying protection for the wool industry in the United States.

The president's disapproval of the wool bill is to be followed with similar vetoes of the steel bill and the cotton bill. The sugar bill is likely to be vetoed, as is the excise tax bill, the latter probably on the ground that the president believes it unconstitutional.

"I shall stand by my pledges to maintain a degree of protection necessary to offset the differences in cost of production here and abroad, and will heartily approve of any bill reducing duties to this level," wrote Mr. Taft.

While the bill vetoed today and the one disapproved last year were identical in terms, the president's reasons differed. He vetoed the former bill because it had been framed before the tariff board's report—the latter because he said it had been framed with disregard for the board's findings.

"Most of the rates in the submitted bill," wrote the President, "are so low in themselves that if enacted into law, the inevitable result would be irreparable injury to the wool growing industry, the enforced idleness of much of our wool combing and spinning machinery and of thousands of looms, and the consequent throwing out of employment of thousands of workers."

The bill sent to the White House imposed an ad valorem duty of 22 per cent. on raw wool and on cloths of 49 per cent. Both rates Mr. Taft held were insufficient to protect the wool grower and the manufacturer.

It was predicted today that the wool bill might be passed by the house over Mr. Taft's veto, but there was some doubt as to its fate in the senate. Republican leaders were inclined to believe that it would fail of passage there as it did 12 months ago.

The president declared in his message that he was anxious to see Schedule K revised downward and that he would be glad to see congress remain in Washington until a bill he considered proper was sent to the White House. He found it impossible, he said, in view of the platform on which he was elected, to approve the submitted measure, but declared one agreeable to his views had been drafted by minority members of the house ways and means committee.

"I strongly desire to reduce duties," read the message, "provided only that the protective system be maintained and that industries now established be not destroyed. It now appears from the tariff board's report and from bills introduced into the house and senate, that a bill may be drawn so as to be within the requirements of protection and still offer a reduction of 20 per cent. on most wools and of from 20 per cent to 50 per cent on cloths."

"I cannot act on the assumption that a majority of either house will refuse to pass a bill of this kind. I therefore urge upon congress that it does not adjourn without taking advantage of the plain opportunity, thus substantially to reduce unnecessary existing duties. I appeal to congress to reconsider the measure, which I now return without my approval, and to adopt a substitute therefor, making substantial reductions below the rates of the present act, which the tariff board shows possible, without destroying any established industry, or throwing any wage earners out of employment, and which I will promptly approve."

"Despite the efforts that have been made to discredit the work of the tariff board, their report on this schedule has been accepted with scarcely a dissenting vote by all those familiar with the problems discussed, including active representatives of organizations formed in the interest of the public and the consumer."

The message sent to the house today was drawn after conferences between the president and Chairman Emery of the tariff board. It was submitted to the cabinet yesterday at a special meeting. Reports that two members of the president's official family urged him to approve this measure were denied at the White House.

On the Charge of Stealing
Them

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Jewelry and precious stones valued at $20,000 were found in a barn at 1711 Carroll avenue by detectives last night and Adolph Dumont was arrested on a charge of having stolen them.

The jewelry was identified as that stolen under the eyes of Patrick McDermott in front of the Silversmith building on July 18. McDermott had been employed to carry a suit case containing jewelry for a salesman for an eastern manufacturing firm. The salesman left McDermott outside of the building while he went inside to call on a customer. When he returned the suitcase was gone and McDermott could offer no explanation for the disappearance of the valuables.

TO ARREST REBELS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The sudden appearance at Bisbee, Ariz., last night of about 300 Mexican rebels has sent a detachment of American troops to that point. If the rebels have not retreated across the line when the troops arrive they probably will be arrested and interned. The news is regarded as confirmation of the report that the rebel forces are rapidly disintegrating.

A NEW BRIDGE
MAY BE BUILTAcross the Wamesit Canal—The
of Lawrence St.

The city, the Bay State Street Railway company and the Wamesit Power Co. are considering a proposition for a new bridge across the Wamesit canal in Lawrence street opposite the premises of the U. S. Cartridge Co. The proposition includes the widening of the street about ten feet at that point. The paving work in Lawrence street has been held up pending the decision of the parties concerned as to the feasibility of building a new bridge. The bridge would cost about $11,000 and the expense would be divided between the city and the companies interested.

Permits for the erection of the new building on the Chalfoux estate in Merrimack square and a reinforced concrete store house in Summer street were issued at the office of the inspector of buildings at city hall this afternoon. The Chalfoux building will be of steel construction and will be four stories high. The estimated cost is $35,000. The contract, it was stated, has not yet been awarded. The store house will be built by Matthew Connor for John F. Saunders. The store house will be four stories and the estimated cost is $12,000.

CANAL BILL VOTE
THIS AFTERNOONWill be Taken in the
U. S. SenateRAILROAD-OWNED
SHIPS OPPOSEDMr. Brandeis Called Professional Agitator

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—With a vote on the Panama canal bill and all amendments to it set for five o'clock this afternoon, the senate began final consideration of that measure with a renewal of the fight against railroad-owned ships.

The committee amendment providing that a railroad-owned vessel might pass through the canal provided that the fifty per cent of its cargo was destined to foreign ports was the chief subject of discussion.

Control of New England steamship lines by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad provoked another lively debate between Senator Polinder and Senator Lippitt, who had clashed in last night's session. Senator Polinder read a letter from Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, declaring New England was in the grip of an "intolerable railroad monopoly."

"Mr. Brandeis is a professional agitator," interrupted Senator Gallinger. "He is not a business man. He is always in the limelight when the question of railroads, steamships or monopolies is under discussion."

Senator Lippitt declared that the sentiment of New England cannot be founded on mis-statements.

Senator Polinder retorted that officials of the New Haven system had given testimony at variance with statements by Senator Lippitt and that it was a question of "choosing between the statements of the officers of the New Haven road and the statements of the senator from Rhode Island."

LOCAL NEWS

Messrs. Trefle Thibault of Manchester, N. H., Wilfrid Thibault of Sherbrooke, Que., Emery Thibault of St. Albans, Vt. and Lucien Thibault of Grandby, Que., are all at the home of their sister, Mrs. Marcel Hebert in Billerica, where they were called to the bedside of their mother, Mrs. Israel Thibault, who was stricken with a paralytic shock, and who is in a critical condition.

The many friends of Mrs. Eloise Chenevert of Lakeview avenue will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from the severe shock she received, caused by a fall down a flight of stairs at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Martin Flaherty.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses McKelvey and son, Harold, of 17 Bourne street, are stopping at the Lowell cottage, Hampden beach for the next two weeks. During the stay they will entertain Mrs. McKelvey's mother, Mrs. John Hallett of London street.

DEATHS

GIPA—John, aged 8 months, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Essie Gipa, died this morning at the Lowell hospital. The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker Napoleon Bliedean and later to the home of the parents, 155 Suffolk street.

BOY WAS DROWNED
IN THE CANALNear the Lowell Machine Shop
This Afternoon—The Victim
Was Walter Lewis

Walter Lewis, aged five years and son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollo E. Lewis of 20 Broadway, was drowned in the water in the wheel pit of the Lowell Machine shop about 2 o'clock this afternoon. The body was recovered about an hour after the accident happened.

The true cause of the accident is not known, for boys who were present at the time tell conflicting stories. "Two of them state that the little fellow was watching the boys bathing in the canal when another boy pushed him into the water. Several say that the unfortunate boy was fooling with another boy and, losing his balance, fell into the water, while still others state that there was no one near the boy when he went through the opening."

Shortly after two o'clock Herbert Lewis, aged seven years, and a brother of the boy who was drowned, rushed into the police station and with the tears running down his cheeks informed Capt. Brosnan that a boy had pushed his brother into the canal. Inspector John Walsh and Warrant Officer Peter Cawley, accompanied by a representative of The Sun, hurried to Dutton street where a crowd of people had gathered and questioned a dozen or more boys who had been swimming in the canal and witnessed the accident.

Midway between the Dutton street entrance to the Lowell Machine shop and the railroad bridge which leads into the Bigelow Carpet mill, is a waterway where the water flows from the canal to the water wheel pit. There is a heavy screening in front of the pit and a wooden platform about six feet in width and the apparatus used for lowering and hoisting the gates. There is an opening of a foot or more between the platform and the wall and it was through this opening that the lad fell to his watery grave.

NEW JERSEY LAW

LIMITS PIG OWNERS TO THREE EACH

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—An ordinance recently passed by the Belleville (N. J.) board of health, which goes into effect September 1, providing that no more than three pigs may be kept by one person, is causing trouble to the owners of "porkers."

John Omulsky, who has twenty-five pigs, told the board its members would have to purchase his surplus pigs as he saw no other way of getting rid of them. There are several tenements in Silver Lake, each of which contains six families, each family owning from two to ten pigs. According to the new law they cannot keep even one pig each.

A Silver Lake resident owns eleven, several of them only four days old. He says it would be impossible to sell them before September 1. The board, however, declares the ordinance must be obeyed. The health of the community, they claim, demands it.

TO HELP ROOSEVELT

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Western men who "ran" cattle with Theodore Roosevelt in North Dakota 30 years ago and who are wealthy business men in Montana, Idaho, and other states today gave pledges of fealty to the colonel in interviews with Senator Dixon at progressive headquarters today. It was a neighborhood gathering for Senator Dixon. All of the men called him "Joe" and talked of the folks at home.

Although the active campaign practically has been launched Senator Dixon said that the executive committee would not be completed until after a meeting to be held in New York next week. The senator will remain here until Saturday.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 9.—An earthquake of considerable dimensions was registered on the seismographs of the state museum last evening between 8:40 and 9 o'clock. The force of the disturbance was probably not less than 5000 miles from Albany.

The most accurate story that the writer could learn came from James Welsh of Fulton street and Thomas Tooley of Lakeview avenue. They were in bathing at the time and afterwards dropped into the wheel pit and tried to rescue the boy but their efforts proved fruitless.

Welsh said: "There were about a dozen of us in the water and I saw young Lewis walk along the bank and crawling under the high fence which separates the two properties climbed to the platform. The last I saw of him he was sitting on the railing near the wall. All of a sudden I heard a shout and looking around saw the boy's legs going through the opening. Tommy Tooley and I ran along the bank and upon reaching the platform I dropped through the opening and fell around the water for several minutes but it was so dark that I could not stay in there long; and I was unable to locate the little fellow."

Among others who were present and questioned were George Hunt of West Fourth street and Robert Richardson of 51 West Third street.

A couple of boys gave the name of another boy who they claimed pushed the little fellow into the water, but it is felt that they were excited and thought that such had been a fact.

Officials at the machine shop were notified and after the water gate had been lowered a search was made for the body which was recovered about 3 o'clock.

After the body was recovered it was removed in the ambulance to the funeral parlors of Undertaker John A. Weinbeck in Market street.

The father of the boy, who is employed as a moulder in the Lowell machine shop was notified of the accident and was almost prostrated by the sad news.

RED CROSS SOCIETY TO AID STARVING Will Help the People in Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Conditions among the poverty-stricken and revolution-ridden people of Nicaragua have become so acute that the American National Red Cross authorized the expenditure of $1000 of its funds yesterday for the purchase of food supplies for destitute Nicaraguans. This is virtually the first time that the Red Cross has found it necessary or desirable to relieve distress in Central America not arising from the conflicts of revolution or disaster such as earthquakes.

It was announced at the state department that, as a result of continued crop failures and drought greatly augmented by the financial exhaustion which the regime of President Zelaya bequeathed to Nicaragua, the situation has become serious in that country, amounting in some districts to famine. It is expected the present revolutionary disturbance fomented by Gen. Mon, the former minister of war, will accentuate this condition.

Accordingly the Red Cross has cashed $1000 to Panama to be expended in the purchase of rice, beans, corn, flour, potatoes and other necessities to be taken to Nicaragua. These supplies will be purchased from the commissary department of the Isthmian canal commission at the lowest prices and sent to Corinto, Nicaragua, on the Collier Justini, which is going to carry 350 burlap bags to that port from the canal zone. The distribution of the supplies will be under the supervision of United States Minister Wetzel, aided by other Americans in the country.

It is feared further contributions of money and food supplies will be necessary if the present desperate situation is to be alleviated. Reports received in the last few days from Honduras indicate that similar conditions prevail in that country. The prices of beans, corn and flour have risen to four and five times normal figures, and destitution and suffering are widespread. The Honduras government is endeavoring to meet the situation with the distribution of such supplies as it can obtain, but it is stated authoritatively that the government is not in a situation to lend much substantial aid to its people owing to the emptiness of the national treasury in face of incipient revolutionary disturbance.

While shortage of crops is one cause of the suffering in both Nicaragua and Honduras, it is said the situation of the people is in a large measure due to the stagnation of business and industry which followed the shelving by the United States senate of the Nicaragua and Honduras loan conventions. The governments of these two countries waited for more than a year in the confident expectation of the ratification of the loan treaties by the senate. Business men in both the republics were holding on almost solely in the hope of their ratification. With their shelving, however, demoralization of commerce and industry set in at once, and it was then predicted that the two republics would be in dire straits within two months. These predictions are now fulfilled by actual conditions in both countries, especially in Nicaragua. In the latter republic the revolution which it was feared would follow the rejection of the treaties, has begun under the leadership of Gen. Mena, who called his followers into the field last week when his resignation was demanded.

Commander Terhune cabled the navy department Wednesday that there is little change in the situation as regards the revolution in Nicaragua. Railroad and telegraph communications between Managua and the capital, where the 1000 blue jackets from the gunboat Annapolis are stationed, and Corinto, the seaport, have been broken. No apprehension is felt for the safety of the American navy. Efforts are still being made by Minister Wetzel to induce Gen. Mena to cease his hostilities.

PEOPLE ON SHORE LAUGHED AT CRIES FOR HELP

WINTHROP, Aug. 9.—Thomas F. Waters, an employee of the Custom House service at Long wharf, Boston, who lived at 64 Prospect avenue, was drowned at noon yesterday, and his companion, John A. Roan, who is employed as a deck hand by the B. & N. railroad, was rescued in the nick of time when their canoe capsized in a choppy sea about 400 yards off shore.

Both young men were poor swimmers. They started out shortly before 11 with the intention of paddling along the shore. When about 400 yards out, just off Locust street, their frail craft was swamped. According to Roan, Waters was very cool and together they attempted to right the canoe.

Suddenly Waters was swept away by the current and sank before those on the beach, who only laughed at his cries for help realized that it wasn't a joke. Roan struck out to save his chum, but his strength failed and he sank twice. On coming to the surface the second time he made a final grab for the overturned canoe and fortunately got a hold.

Henry A. Dolan of 305 Winthrop street and Albert Pulsifer of Hawthorne avenue set out in a canoe and rescued Roan as he was about to sink. Roan was taken ashore and was so affected by the death of his chum and his exertions that he became unconscious.

FINE CONCERT

GIVEN BY THE LOWELL MILITARY BAND LAST NIGHT

The Lowell Military Band rendered the second of the series of municipal concerts on the South common last evening, with William Regan as director.

The program was nicely chosen and the attendance was large. Mr. Regan showed excellent taste in the arrangement of his program and selected a pleasing variety of melody, including a brilliant mingling of popular music and the classics. Most of the former came from the composer, Lamp, and Theo. Mendix's melody was also rendered.

Among the pieces were Balfe's "Rochester Girl," "Morning Noon and Night," "I Dreamt I Dwell in Marble Hall." The program also included several snappy marches. The trombone and cornet solos of Messrs. Furstenberg and Dolan were highly appreciated.

60TH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING

Lowell Residents

METHUEN, Aug. 2.—With their grandchildren and great-grandchildren present, but without any formal celebration, owing to the poor health of Mrs. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ezra Wood yesterday observed the 60th anniversary of their marriage at their home at 193 Oakland avenue. While there were no formalities, the occasion was made pleasant for the aged couple by many congratulatory letters and postcards and by the personal visits of many of the townspeople who knew of the occasion.

Although Mrs. Wood is unable to leave the house owing to rheumatism, Mr. Wood enjoys good health and is remarkably active for one of his age, he being in his 81st year. He is janitor at the Baptist church, and, although he has had to travel nearly two miles to the church edifice, often in heavy snow storms, he has not missed a church service Sunday or week night, nor a session of Sunday school in the nearly 15 years that he has served as janitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood have resided in Methuen for 22 years. They were married in Biddeford, Me. Mrs. Wood, whose maiden name was Rebecca Hodgdon, was born in Stark, Vt., in 1833, and her early life was passed there. When a girl she removed to Biddeford, Me., where she first met Mr. Wood.

Mr. Wood was born in Biddeford, Me., and in early life he learned the mill business in his town. He remained in the business up to 15 years ago. From the Laconia mills in Biddeford he went to Lowell, where he held responsible positions in the Tremont & Suffolk mills from 1855 to 1868. He took a position with the Salmon Falls Manufacturing company in Lowell and later went to the Beacon mills in West Boylston. He next went to the Troy mills in Fall River as overseer of carding, and in 1872 went to Richard Borden's mill in Fall River as superintendent. He stayed 17 years, going from there to Lowell to become superintendent of the Tremont & Suffolk mills. In 1890 he came to Methuen to take a position as overseer of the carding department at the Methuen cotton mills, retiring after several years of service. Mr. and Mrs. Wood have two grandsons, William H. Wood, who is married and has two children and lives at Forest Hills, and George H. Wood, who is married and lives in Methuen. Both sons and the two daughters of William Wood visited the aged couple yesterday.

LOWELL VETERANS

HAVE RECEIVED CHECKS FOR $125 FROM STATE TREASURER

Eleven veterans of the Civil war who reside in Lowell and vicinity have received checks, each good for $125, from the state treasurer, in payment of their claims under the "gratuity bill" which was passed by the legislature at the last session. These payments are made to veterans who never received a bounty from the state or from any city or town for the service they rendered during the war.

The reason for making these payments is fully explained in the first section of the bill which reads as follows: "For the purpose of promoting the spirit of loyalty and patriotism, and in recognition of the sacrifice made both for the commonwealth and for the United States by those veteran soldiers and sailors who volunteered their services in the Civil war, and for the purpose of promoting the public welfare, by giving visible evidence to this generation and to future generations that it is the duty of the nation and the state to care for those who have sacrificed for the nation and the state, the following shall be paid to the veterans of the Civil war who have rendered service to the state and the nation, and who have not received a bounty from the state or from any city or town for the service they rendered during the war: Those living in Lowell and vicinity who have received the checks are as follows:

SHOT BY HUSBAND WOMAN MAY DIE

Man Says That He Thought
and He Used Revolver

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Matthew O'Callaghan, a cotton merchant, living in a fashionable section of Brooklyn, was taken into custody early today on the charge of shooting his wife, Lillian, who, he declared, he mistook for a burglar. Mrs. O'Callaghan said that her husband was intoxicated and that the shooting was deliberate. She is suffering from three bullet wounds. Her condition is critical.

Mrs. O'Callaghan is 37 years old. She told the police that she arose early this morning and as she was leaving the room her husband threatened to shoot her. She said she saw that he was drunk and decided to hurry to her son-in-law's apartment on the top floor. Mrs. O'Callaghan said that her husband fired three times through a glass door panel at her. She said she had been married six years and had never had any trouble with her husband. O'Callaghan told the police that he thought his wife was a burglar. He is 50 years old.

DEPOT NEWS

To quote the expression of one of the prominent officials, affairs at the Boston and Maine railroad station "are holding the even tenor of their way."

Summer traffic still continues large. Thus far the beaches have been the most favored haven of rest of the vacationists, who seem to choose them in preference to the mountain resorts. This has usually been the case in the early part of the season. However, at present the travel to the White Mountains is on the increase and bids fair to exceed that of the beaches. Of the latter traffic, the greater part has been to the Maine resorts, Old Orchard and Bar Harbor, the tourists coming to a great extent from New York city and vicinity. Trains going to New York carry no more than the ordinary business but those from New York to the East are crowded daily and much difficulty is experienced in checking and disposing of the baggage.

STEAMER HELD UP

ANTWERP, Aug. 9.—The German steamer Hermina, from Hamburg, was detained by the authorities here today in consequence of the discovery of great quantities of cartridges, gunpowder and other explosives among her cargo destined for Turkey. The munitions were found hidden in bags of rice.

Six of the Injured
May Die

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Six of the 40 passengers injured yesterday when an inbound train on the Plymouth division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad was derailed in Dorchester were in a critical condition today. The death of Mrs. A. G. Nowditch of Braintree shortly before midnight, brought the death list to four. Those dangerously injured are:

Miss Blanche Drinkwater of Braintree; Miss Stella Davie of East Braintree; Miss E. J. Eithier of Stamford, Conn.; Mrs. Daniel J. Griffin and Rev. George Bullen and Mrs. Bullen.

Investigations into the cause of the wreck were begun by police and railroad officials.

WM. ROCKEFELLER

TO ALLOW HIS NAME TO REMAIN ON TABLET

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 9.—William Rockefeller has changed his mind, and will allow his name to remain on the tablet which is to be placed on the Irving memorial bridge. The cost of constructing the bridge was defrayed by Mr. Rockefeller but he declined a few days ago to permit that fact to be told on the bronze tablet which the town committee donated. His decision to accept the honor surprised his neighbors.

More Endorse New Remedy

SAYS VAR-NE-SIS CURED
HIS AILMENTS

Many prominent people have come forward to endorse this new remedy Var-ne-sis which Mr. W. A. Varney, the discoverer, is introducing to the people of Lowell at the Dows' drug store, corner of Merrimack and Central streets. Yesterday was a busy day at his headquarters and it was explained that this remedy is not a cure-all, but intended for several forms of stomach trouble and rheumatism. The numerous testimonials he has from people in this city and the surrounding towns are almost beyond belief.

Mr. Haddock, associate of medical men through his position as official fumigator of Lawrence, Mass., says: "Until such time as I had taken your medicine, Var-ne-sis, I believe as many others undoubtedly do, that there was no cure for rheumatism after it had reached a certain stage. For 18 years I suffered with articular rheumatism; every joint in my body was affected, and at times it was an utter impossibility to get my hands to my head. My stomach was in a very bad condition and I suffered from indigestion and constipation. The rheumatic medicines that I tried seemed to increase my stomach trouble."

When I commenced to take Var-ne-sis I was confined to my bed, my hands and feet were swollen to three times their natural size and what I suffered can only be understood by one who was afflicted as I was. This medicine not only cured my rheumatism, but I am today free from stomach trouble and constipation and can eat anything I care to without distress. Mr. Haddock lives at 135 Marston street.

Mr. Varney said: My headquarters are at Dows' drug store, Merrimack and Central streets and the doctor will be pleased to tell the public more about this remedy every day from 10 in the morning to 6 at night.

HURLED FROM TRAIN MAN BADLY HURT

BOSTON, August 9.—While his train was making up lost time and running at the rate of 35 miles an hour, Sylvester O. Cheney of Hyde Park avenue, Boston, the baggage man, lost his balance and fell through the baggage car door of the 9.35 Providence to Boston local to the roadbed near Green Lodge station on the New Haven road last night and suffered a fracture of the left arm and multiple contusions of the head and body. His absence was not discovered until the train arrived at Readville. The Merchant's Limited, the following train, which was delayed, picked up Cheney and brought him to Boston.

Grand Lodge is a flag stop, and Cheney was leaning out of the car door peering ahead to see if the stop light was displayed at the station. A sudden lurch of the train sent him headlong to the roadbed and he rolled over and over. At Readville, where baggage was waiting to be loaded, his absence was discovered and it was immediately surmised he had fallen off. His wife, who was on the train, made anxious inquiries, but her fears were allayed by the trainmen, who told her he had been left behind at the last stop.

Telegraph and telephone wires were used to locate the missing man by the train dispatchers and searchers finally located Cheney grittingly making his way toward Green Lodge station, his left arm hanging useless and his head covered with blood.

The Merchant's Limited from New York was late and with a car track was making up time fast when flagged by the trainmen. Behind time and with no timetable restrictions the engineer of the Limited started station agents and operators on the way to Boston with the speed with which he drove his train by stations.

Again Cheney showed his grit on arriving at the South station. Although suffering agony from his hurts he disdained the use of a stretcher and was wheeled in a chair to an ambulance.

SHOT IN NECK

MAN DID NOT KNOW THAT GUN WAS LOADED

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—George S. Fraser, 28, of 69 South Huntington avenue, Roxbury, a bartender in the Parker house, accidentally discharged a 44-calibre rifle he was cleaning yesterday noon, sending a big slug through his neck. He is at the City hospital in a critical condition.

Without examining the weapon to see if it was loaded, Fraser started to clean and off it. He was rubbing vigorously around the lock when his fingers released the hair trigger, which was set. The report that followed brought persons from all over the block. Mrs. Fraser rushed to her husband's side. She is a trained nurse, and stopped the flow of blood, but he would have died in a few moments.

Dr. Adams of 1629 Tremont street ordered Fraser's removal to the City hospital. Mrs. Fraser assisting the doctor until the arrival of the police ambulance.

Two priests administered the last rites as Fraser lay on the stretcher. Mrs. Fraser was restrained with difficulty from entering the ambulance with her husband.

Examination at the hospital revealed an ugly wound.

CHURCH BURNED

ANCIENT STRUCTURE A COMPLETE LOSS

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The West Farms Presbyterian church, the oldest Presbyterian church building in New York city was burned to the ground last night. The old wooden steeple sent up a pillar of flame visible for miles around.

The church was built in 1815 on a hill top, which was then surrounded by farms and woodland. Now the entire district is a mass of tall apartment buildings.

You are not expected to pay a profit in August. It's the one month in the year we are willing to take a loss.

LAWRENCE SALOONS GIVEN SHAKING

Stringent Orders Issued by Board

LAWRENCE, Aug. 9.—Following a meeting at which a transfer of the liquor license at the Hotel Nordham was made from Daniel P. Sullivan & Co., formerly of Boston, to Thomas J. Buckley and Thomas D. Butler, also of Boston, the license commissioners yesterday made a tour of licensed places.

In a communication to the Board City Solicitor Murphy advised that the commission could only charge a maximum fine of $5, as fixed by statute, for common victuallers' licenses.

A number of radical changes were ordered by the commission in the manner of conducting the licensed premises. Vestibules provided for women, side rooms and screened inclosures were ordered abolished and steps taken to eliminate obstructions, thereby permitting a clear view of bars.

EIGHT YEARS OF MISERY WITH ITCHING HUMOR

Resinol Gave Instant Relief
and Cured in Two Weeks

Here is proof indeed of what Resinol can do for sufferers from itching, burning skin eruptions. This Pittsburgh woman writes: "I had tetter eight years, and it itched and burned so bad that I did not sleep a wink at night. I had eight years of misery and torture. It affected my hands and feet so bad that at times I could not put my shoes on. My feet would fester and then they would all split open and they would bleed so bad at times that I would try and get relief by scratching, and that would just make matters worse. Then I would have to suffer. Night after night I would have to walk the floor, and though I tried many salves I was not helped at all until I sent for a sample of Resinol Soap and Ointment, and found instant relief. I used two boxes of Resinol Ointment, and two cakes of Resinol Soap, and in two weeks it disappeared and have not had it since. And today I am entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. R. D. White, 120 Larimer Ave., East End, June 1, 1912.

Resinol Ointment stops itching instantly, and with the aid of Resinol Soap is the ideal household remedy for skin eruptions, pimples, blackheads, dandruff, burns, sores and rashes. True Resinol Soap (Resinol Soap & Ointment Co.), but for a free sample of each, write to Dept. 54, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

BIG LOAN CONCERN SUSPENDS BUSINESS

State Commissioner Walker Says
There May be a Shortage

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—The Continental Building and Loan association did not open its doors for business today. An investigation conducted by John S. Walker, state building and loan commissioner, with the aid of President Edward Sweeney of the association, resulted late yesterday in Walker's throwing the concern into immediate liquidation. This can be done under California laws, which also give the directors the right to show cause in court within ten days why the action should not be permanent. Sweeney is superintendent of the San Francisco mint. Walker, in a statement made public today, says an expert's report, showing a shortage of $300,000 "is not far out of the way." The shareholders are mostly persons of small means.

This report, Walker adds, shows that investors not only have been defrauded in the past but this has continued up to the present time. Today the accounts show, according to the report, that the borrowers also are being mulcted and the amounts placed to their credits on retainments are short more than $50,000. People have been "fined" out without any authority of law. Liabilities have been concealed and assets have been padded.

The members of the board of directors are responsible for these conditions only to the extent that they have lent their respectable names to the association and failed to keep posted on what was going on. The president of the association, Mr. Sweeney, went out of his way to aid this association.

Gavin McNabb, attorney for the association, said: "A majority of the directors, including myself, have had no financial interest in the Continental Building and Loan association with the idea of working it into a more prosperous condition. They decided themselves that it would be wise to liquidate."

JAMES H. HORSFALL CALLED BEFORE THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—An investigation into the second fatality caused by the automobile of James H. Horsfall of Lowell was begun Tuesday by the highway commission, in an effort to determine what part Mr. Horsfall had in the accident on Tuesday, when the machine crushed out the life of Rosie Pearl, aged 5, of 513 Main street, Woburn.

Horsfall lost his driving license a year ago when his car ran over and killed an aged woman at Wilmington. Since then he has used a chauffeur. On the result of the inquiry will depend whether Horsfall will lose his car license.

FREED FROM HUSBAND OF MANY NAMES

He Already Had Three
Wives

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—In granting yesterday the annulment of the marriage of a young woman to a man who had been married three times before under three different names, Supreme Court Justice McCall directed that the minutes in the case be sent to District Attorney Whitman.

The suit was brought by Grace L. Wood, under her maiden name, against Frank Hardy, known also as Frank LeRoy, Lawrence Hamilton and Francis Volter. The defendant married Miss Wood under the name of LeRoy, but at the time he had been going also under the name of Volter. He was served with the papers at the Hotel Pfister in Milwaukee. While he was in New York the defendant gave characteristic sketches in vaudeville.

In her complaint Miss Wood said she married the defendant on Jan. 9, 1910, as the result of fraud, at which time she was 21 and he was 26 years old. He represented that he was an orphan and that there was no stain upon his character, but Miss Wood says she has learned that his real name was Frank Hardy and that he assumed the name of LeRoy "to conceal various crimes and misdemeanors committed by him in the United States and elsewhere."

The complaint states that Hardy was married at St. Paul in 1892 to Rebecca Wilmon and lived with her until 1895, when he deserted her and their infant daughter. He went to New Orleans and assumed the name of Hamilton. He was married there in 1897 to Margaret Hall, and lived with her until the next year, when she got a divorce. In order to escape paying alimony it is alleged that he left New Orleans and came to New York, assuming the name of Volter. He studied French, associated with French people, and posed as a Frenchman.

The complaint alleges that Hardy was married at Cambridge, N. Y., in 1900, to Lois E. Jones, and lived with her until 1903, when she learned of his record and had her marriage annulled by Supreme Court Justice Davis. His daughter by his first marriage is now living in Detroit and is 18 years old. Miss Wood said that because of the defendant's deception she "suffered in the eyes of her friends and acquired shame and humiliation amounting to ignominy." She said that Hardy abused her and forfeited her respect, and that she left him as soon as she learned of his previous marriages.

HELD AS FUGITIVE

OF MAN

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Burton H. White, alias Gilbert Brazzell, 34, formerly engaged in the electrical business in Washington, D. C., was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Tighe and Police Inspector Gaddis, yesterday, on a warrant charging him with being a fugitive from justice from Washington. There, it is claimed, White is under indictment on the charge of non-support of his wife and child.

Before United States Commissioner Grinnell the defendant pleaded not guilty and was held in $300 for a hearing on Aug. 12. White told Deputy Tighe that he was never married, and again he is alleged to have told the arresting officers that he had a wife.

White claims to have spent $2200 in the last three months. White some time ago bought a horse and carriage at Auburn, Me., for $300 and drove to Boston. He made stops at different cities and towns and took life easy. As his funds were growing low he sold the outfit to a Char-don street man. Word was passed to the police of the sale and, as it was suspected that the rig was stolen, Chief Inspector McGarr was asked to notify the Portland police.

McGarr for more than a week had a complaint to arrest White on the non-support charge, and he at once recognized the name of the man who sold the horse and ordered him apprehended and held for the federal officers. White was taken to the East Cambridge jail. He has been living at 9 Blackwood street, South End.

ROSENTHAL CASE

ments will accuse Jack Sullivan, Sam Schepers, Louis Rosenzweig, (Lefty) Louis, Frank Muller (Whitey Lewis), Harry Horowitz (Gyp the Blood), and Frank Crofford (Dago Frank).

Only complete confessions can save Sullivan and Schepers from first degree indictments.

A new witness, Giovanni Stanich, identified Jack Sullivan yesterday as the man he had seen standing with the four murderers, while they were firing at Herman Rosenthal.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollok testified that Schepers had been a go-between for Lieut. Becker and Jack Rose after the murder.

The district attorney learned also that shortly after Lieut. Becker employed Rose as his gambling house collector Becker had on deposit in the West Side Savings Bank $3000, the maximum permitted by the savings bank law. It was learned also that Becker had told Rose that his "cleanup" in four months was $30,000 for himself alone.

Corroboration of Rose

Much actual progress was made yesterday in corroborating Rose's confession and statement. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollok, who were grand jury witnesses, said that they had testified not only that Becker had called on Rose at their house, that Becker had sent John W. Hart and a notary public, named Burgard, to see Rose, but that Pollok, at Rose's request, had called on Becker at police headquarters to tell Becker that Rose wanted to see him.

The session of the grand jury yesterday was the most important since the unprecedented night meeting that resulted in the indictment of Lieut. Becker. There were sixteen witnesses before the grand jury—Mrs. Herman Rosenthal, Lieut. Dominick Reilly, Max Margolis, Mary Rose, a trained nurse employed by Jack Rose, Mary Storr and Anna Glatner, Rose's servants; Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, Giovanni Stanich, Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss, Harry Pollok, Mrs. Carrie Pollok, Louis Kreske, Dr. Otto H. Shultz, Policeman John J. Brady, Thomas Smith, head waiter at the Metropole; Joseph Clavin, bellboy at the Metropole; and Mrs. Herman Rosenthal.

All of these witnesses were called for the purpose of securing additional indictments for murder. It was necessary in laying the groundwork for six more indictments to present to the grand jury substantially the same evidence that had been offered against Lieut. Becker. But some of the witnesses gave information that was entirely new and about as sensational as anything that had previously developed.

Becker Had Bank Limit

Not from the grand jury proceedings, although it is probable that the grand jury has been apprised of the facts, it was learned that Lieut. Becker had been making money pretty rapidly while he was in command of the strong arm raiding squad.

The lieutenant and Jack Rose made an agreement about a year ago which was profitable according to Rose's story, for both of them. Shortly after Rose began work as a collector Becker began to deposit in the West Side savings bank. Within a few weeks he had on deposit there all that could be accepted in one account—$3600.

The district attorney, having heard that Becker had four other such savings bank accounts, began an investigation yesterday to locate these accounts. He has already questioned two officials of a savings bank and other bank officials will be subpoenaed. Jack Rose has already told something about Becker's savings bank accounts. Rose's story is that Becker had bragged of his success in getting money.

"I have cleared up $30,000 for myself in four months," Becker told Rose, according to the latter's story. Sixty for Stanich, the most important witnesses before the grand jury, were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollok. It is not known of course what they testified to inside the grand jury room, but after they left the grand jury they told a complete story of Rose's stay in their apartments at Riverside Drive and 157th street.

JACK SULLIVAN

PUT IN CELL NEAR ROSE AND WEBBER

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Jacob Reich, better known as Jack Sullivan, "King of the Newsboys," who has been a prisoner in the Tombs on a murder charge pending the Rosenthal investigation, was suddenly removed yesterday to the West Side prison, where Rose, Webber and Vallon are confined.

Reports spread at once that Sullivan had made a complete confession to the district attorney and was afraid to remain within the Tombs' walls.

Shortly afterward the report was circulated that new witnesses to the grand jury, who were attaches of the Hotel Lincoln and a West Side savings bank, had startling testimony to give concerning the $120 that Sullivan says he took to Sam Paul immediately after the Rosenthal murder.

It is understood, however, that Sullivan's removal to the West Side prison surprised him quite as much as any one. It was said District Attorney Whitman had received some new line from Rose, which decided him upon sending Sullivan to the prison where Rose was confined. It was intimated that Rose expected to influence Sullivan to give some startling corroborative information, and to get him to talk about alleged relations with Lieutenant Becker.

If such was the plan, it was defeated.

that Webber would have no part in it. But Harry Vallon is said to have agreed to aid Rose in his efforts to quiz Sullivan. Vallon yesterday retained James M. Sullivan, who has become a prisoner.

However, when Sullivan reached the West Side prison it is related that he was asked if he wished to be placed in a cell convenient to the three confessions—Rose, Webber and Vallon—and that he protested against the proposition.

"I do not want to go up there with those fellows or have anything to do with them," Sullivan is reported to have said to the prison keeper. "Just put me anywhere else that you please but not there."

It was said last night that the district attorney hopes to obtain from Sullivan, above all else, a positive identification of the men who actually murdered Rosenthal. Just why this expected was not revealed. In every story Sullivan has told he has declared he was not within sight of the actual shooting, but in a store around the corner.

Shortly after Sullivan was placed in his new quarters he received a visit from his counsel, Attorney Harford T. Marshall, former assistant district attorney. After a brief talk with Sullivan the attorney left. Later he said:

"Sullivan does not know why he was removed from the Tombs. It was not at his request. He told me again emphatically that he had nothing to add to the story he has told so often, and reiterated he knew absolutely nothing about the murder of Rosenthal. He said that as soon as he was placed in a cell on the first tier he found out that the three 'sneakers'—Rose, Webber and Vallon—also had been placed on the first tier. But I have advised Jack to refuse to talk about the case to anybody, and I am sure he will do so. If Rose or any one else tries to get him to stand for something that is untrue it won't work. Sullivan is innocent, and they have nothing on him."

Before leaving the Tombs Sullivan confided to a friend that he had no sympathy for the men who confessed and would have nothing to do with them. The outcome of his new incarceration may prove startling.

MAN SENTENCED

ARTIST PAINTER CHARGED WITH BEING FLIRT

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—John Hernandez, 38, of 117 East 122d street, who gave his occupation as "artist painter," was sentenced to ten days in the workhouse by Magistrate Krotel yesterday for annoying Mrs. Mary Wilson, an attractive young woman of 225 East 18th street.

Mrs. Wilson said Hernandez rode on the same elevated train from Harlem, and tried to attract her attention, even going so far as to press her foot with his. She got off the train at 25th street. Hernandez followed, and Mrs. Wilson called a policeman.

Hernandez admitted the allegations. "I had no bad intention, judge," he said. "Her face was so sweet and friendly looking I thought I would like to make her acquaintance."

CHILD INJURED

AND ACCIDENT LED TO TWO OTHERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A boy fell off a roof at No. 30 Pike street yesterday afternoon and an ambulance was called from Gouverneur hospital. Another boy on the top of the tenement house at No. 123 East Broadway looked over into the street to see what the ambulance was there for and fell to the roof of No. 11 Pike street. A man who ran into the street to see what the ambulance had dashed up for another was called for the second boy—slipped on a piece of banana peel and fractured his right leg, besides spraining his ankle.

The series of accidents started when Reuben Glickfeld, four and a half years old, tried to fly a kite from the roof of his home and stumbled into space. His hurts are not serious, a number of clothes lines breaking his six-story fall.

Abraham Levy it was who in his eagerness to see the ambulance fall from the roof of No. 123 East Broadway. His injuries are trivial.

Charles S. Rand, 56 years old, an inspector of the Empire City Subway Company, who lives at No. 333 Hendrix street, Brooklyn, rushed out on hearing the ambulance gong, and his fall on the sidewalk resulted in severe cuts and bruises.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The progressive party made its formal bow today in the senate. Senator Poindexter, as a member of the new party, asked that Colonel Roosevelt's speech at Chicago on Aug. 6 be printed as a public document.

The request followed one by Senator Brandegee that Senator Root's speech of notification and President Taft's speech of acceptance also be printed as a public document. Senator Culberson had asked that Senator-elect James H. Duff's acceptance speech and Governor Wilson's acceptance be printed as another document. All three requests were granted.

JACK JOHNSON TELLS OF PUGILIST ART

Jack Johnson, champion heavy-weight pugilist of the world, has made a confession. In Chicago recently he told the secret of his success in the prize ring for the first time.

"You want to know the real secret—that got me started right away back when I was a kid?" he asked. "I'll tell you. It was my father, who was a slave before the war and who drove a United States army wagon through almost all the struggle. He was the most perfect physical specimen I have ever seen, and he gave me the first lessons I ever had in taking proper care of myself, which is the basis of all physical culture. Father was not a giant in stature, but he was built like the old Roman gladiators. He could lift enormous weights and was a fairly good wrestler, but he never did any boxing. He died in Texas six years ago, eighty-four years old, and strong till the day of his death."

"When I got started on my career as a boxer I always used to remember that instruction he gave me. I had such admiration for his physical strength that whatever he said made a strong impression on me. I realize now that I got my real start toward success in those old days down south, watching my daddy and heeding the advice which he gave me."

The negro champion is interesting at all times, which is more than may be said of most heavy-weight champions. He keeps himself guarded like a cabinet officer against all attacks of the pad and pencil brigade, and it is necessary to pass a horde of zealous sentinels before one can get a word with him.

The champion welcomed his visitor with the softest British drawl ever heard in the "black belt." His pronunciation is almost fussy in its preciseness. He slurs his "r's" and says "eyether," and then elevates his eyebrows.

"I didn't intend to see any one at all today," he said, "but as long as you're here, why, stay as long as you like. Keeps me pretty busy here looking after my booze parlor, you see. Such a jolly big lot of things to worry about. What do you think of my place anyhow?"

The reporter declared his conviction that it was fine, whereupon Jack launched into a discussion of the reasons why he had chosen to enter business.

"I'm no millionaire, and I've got sense enough to know that Old Dame Nature is going to take the speed and strength away from Jack Johnson the same as she did from Sullivan, Jeffries and the rest of them. So I'm just getting ready for that time. When a man gets to my age the training grind gets to be too much of a strain on him anyway, which brings me to something I want you to say for me. From now on Jack Johnson is really through with the fighting game forever, and that goes. What's the use of risking sickness for the sake of a few dollars more or less?"

Jack admitted that life ran along pretty slowly for him when he could not find any one good enough to step into the ring with him.

"Between fights I did nothing at all," was his way of expressing it. "I would get up in the morning, take a run out to the park in my racer and come home to breakfast, then maybe I'd tinker with the car a little and take it out again. Usually I would pass the afternoon going around among my friends and at night my wife and I generally would visit. Now that I have something to look after and occupy my mind time will not be so burdensome."

"I have two hobbies now which take up lots of time, too," he went on. "One of them is the study of the tubercular germ, and the other an invention of mine, a triple compound cylinder for a steam engine which, I believe, ought to be a good thing. I've always been fascinated by machinery. When the Lake Shore and Pennsylvania first put on their eighteen hour trains between Chicago and New York I used to go down to South Bend often just to watch them go through, and it was on one of these trips that I conceived the idea of my invention. Some day I expect to put money into it and push it hard."

Johnson announced he was engaged in writing a monograph on the tubercular germ and how to exterminate it. Some years ago, when his wife was threatened with pulmonary trouble, he made an extensive study of this scourge, with the result that he has formed some positive opinions.

That Give Pleasure on Hot Days

Put four ounces of granulated sugar in a frying pan and stir over the fire until the sugar melts, turns brown, boils and smokes. At this point have ready one pint of boiling milk. Into this turn the burnt sugar and set it over the fire for one minute, then stand away to cool. When cold add a half pound of sugar, one quart of rich cream and one tablespoonful of vanilla extract. Mix well and freeze. When this is frozen remove the dasher, stir into the cream one pint of whipped cream, repack, cover and let it stand to ripen for two hours. This recipe will make enough for twelve persons.

Pineapple Ice Cream

Put one pint of thick cream in a farina boiler with a half pound of sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Then take from the fire and stand aside to cool. Pare one good sized pineapple, take out the eyes and core, then grate the rest, mix with it another half pound of sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add a pint of cream to the sweetened cream and freeze. Add the juice of one lemon to the pineapple and stir into the frozen cream, beat thoroughly and pack in the freezer to ripen for about two hours.

Orange Souffle (Frozen)

Cover half a box of gelatin with a half cup of cold water and soak one hour, then add half a cup of boiling water and stir until dissolved. Mix one pint of orange juice and one pound of sugar together until they form a syrup. Beat the yolks of six eggs to a cream. Whip one quart of rich cream. Now mix together the yolks of the eggs and the syrup in a tin basin and strain the basin into it and stir it up. It begins to thicken, then stir in last and lightly the whipped cream. Turn the mixture into an ice cream mold, pack in salt and ice and freeze two hours. This souffle should not be frozen as hard as ice cream.

Frozen Custard

Put one quart of cream on to boil in a farina boiler. Beat the yolks of six eggs with a half pound of sugar together until light and stir into the boiling cream. Stir continually until it thickens, take from the fire, add one tablespoonful of vanilla and stand aside to cool. When cold freeze. This amount will serve eight persons.

Bisque Ice Cream

Crush one-quarter of a pound of macaroons, kisses and lady fingers (which should be stale) through a colander. Put one pint of cream on to boil and add to it a half pound of sugar. Stir until boiling hot. Take the mixture from the fire and add one pint more of cream. When cold turn into a freezer and freeze. When frozen add one teaspoonful of vanilla and one teaspoonful of caramel and the crushed cakes and (if you use it) five tablespoonfuls of sherry. Beat the whole until perfectly smooth. Drain the water from the tub, add more salt and ice, remove the dasher, cover the freezer and let stand for three or four hours to ripen.

Alaska Bake

Take a quart brick of ice cream and cover thickly with a meringue made from the whites of six eggs and six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Stand the dish on a board and place it in a very quick oven to brown. The meringue acts as a nonconductor and prevents the heat from melting the ice cream. This is a very dainty and attractive dessert.

HOT WEATHER TIPS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

First.—Do most of the cooking in the earlier, cooler hours of the morning.

Second.—Use the fireless cooker for meats and vegetables which require long cooking. It will not only save fuel and money, but will keep the kitchen and consequently the whole house cooler.

Third.—Keep bottles of water in the refrigerator. Do not put ice in the water.

Fourth.—Squeeze lemon juice into a bottle and sweeten as desired. Cork the bottle and keep it on the ice. Then at any time lemonade can be made with very little trouble to host or guest.

Fifth.—When making tea allow for a surplus, which can be kept for iced tea.

Sixth.—The same rule can be applied to the making of coffee.

Seventh.—One egg shaken in a glass of milk with the addition of a scant powdering of cinnamon makes a comforting and wholesome warm weather drink.

Eighth.—Keep all the food covered. Food becomes a menace if subjected to the inroads of flies. A special effort should be made in this direction.

Ninth.—The new vacuum bottles, made in fancy styles, are convenient for cool drinks, as well as for hot. Especially useful are they in the sick-room and dining-room.

Tenth.—If your refrigerator is using up too much ice and if the chest is not cool enough why not look for a device which can be introduced to save ice and money?

Eleventh.—There are many good fly killers in the shops. Every housekeeper should be equipped with at least one.

TWO NOVEL BLOUSE SETS

Two novel designs in blouse sets are of comparatively inexpensive materials, and both are easily made. The more practical of these sets is in heavy white linen and includes a collar, undersleeves and cuffs. The collar, one of the innumerable plays upon the well known nautical model, forms a straight horizontal line across the middle of the back, covers the shoulders to the armpits and in front reaches barely to the tops of the collar bones, where the ends form two blunt squares that are separated by a V shaped chemise, also of heavy linen. The undersleeves fit the forearms closely and smoothly, at the inner side fasten blindly with tiny hooks and are finished at the wrists with narrow turned back cuffs, which also close at the inner side of the arm. The collar, the top of the stiff stock and the cuffs have hemstitched borders, which may be done in all white or with a colored thread.

For a V necked and elbow sleeved blouse there is a sailor collar which forms a perfect square at the back and from the shoulder tops halfway to the bust two other perfect squares. This sort of blouse set may be made up in white crepe de chine, charmeuse or chiffon cloth and edged all around with an inch wide band of black and white striped satin, but weighted across the lower edges at back and front with loops of the twisted plain material, terminating with tiny buttons covered with a matching fabric. The cuffs are merely straight, broad bands of crepe, charmeuse or chiffon cloth, top bordered with the striped satin, and where their two ends come almost together at the outer side of the elbow they are lapped joined by a series of three twisted loops and covered buttons.

AN EARLY FALL COSTUME

Wool ratine is a material that bids fair to be much used in the making of fall and early winter costumes. This fabric is particularly happy when employed for the one piece frock, and such a model is to be seen in the illustration. It is made of striped green and white ratine, with touches of black velvet. The natty little hat is an autumn shape that will be found serviceable for everyday wear. It is of hunter's green felt, soft and pliable, as are all the hats of the season, and it is trimmed with a tuft of green and black feathers where the shape turns up at one side of the front.

BOY ARRESTED

IS CHARGED WITH LARCENY OF CIGARETS

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Detained in Somerville, where he had been arrested by Patrolman Cummings on a charge of walking the railroad tracks in violation of the trespass law, Cyrus Girouard, 17 years of age, on whose person sixteen packages of cigarettes and a large quantity of tobacco were found at the police station, was yesterday arrested by Capt. Charles L. Stevens of the Dover, N. H., police, on a charge of breaking and entering a store in Dover on Tuesday night.

When the cigarettes and tobacco were found young Girouard was questioned by Chief of Police Kendall, and he claimed that he rode from Portland, Me., to Somerville on a freight car, and while en route another fellow got aboard the car at Dover with a bag and gave him the tobacco. Chief Kendall communicated with the Dover police and learned that a store had been entered and cigarettes similar to the ones in Girouard's possession stolen. He was held until the arrival of Capt. Stevens, who took him to Dover, N. H.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Woulia Cartara, aged 7 years, whose parents live at 310 Adams street, had a narrow escape from drowning late yesterday afternoon when he fell into the Suffolk canal while playing. Fortunately for the little fellow three men, James Leontis, Bill Soukaras and Costas Gorgakakos, arrived on the scene in the nick of time and succeeded in pulling him out.

Young Cartara, who is left alone at home, both his parents working, was playing on the banks of the canal at the corner of Suffolk and Merrimack streets, where a rope hangs over the water from the limb of a tree, and which is used by the many boys who occasionally take a dip in that place. After some time the little fellow decided he would try a swing at the rope and he did, but when his body remained suspended over the water he became frightened and cried for help.

WEAR RUBBERS

There was nobody in the immediate vicinity and the boy, not being able to hold on longer, dropped into the water. At that moment Leontis, Soukaras and Gorgakakos came along, having heard the outcries from Market street. They vaulted the fence and dived into the canal and reached the boy at a spot opposite St. Patrick's school, just as he was sinking for the third time. They managed to bring the boy to shore and the ambulance was called and removed the little fellow to his home.

BROCKTON WOMAN

ANTICIPATED ACTION IN A LIQUOR CASE

BROCKTON, Aug. 9.—"This is such a bother," said Mrs. Mary Wallow, 23, of 113 Ames street, as she appeared at the office of the police in the district court building yesterday. Mrs. Wallow held in her hand the sum of $75 in bills.

"I have come to pay my fine," she said.

Mrs. Wallow's house was raided by the police, who found and carried away five gallons of ale, besides numerous cases of beer and is quarters of whiskey. No complaint for Mrs. Wallow's arrest had been made and she had not even been summoned into court.

Inspector Long looked up from his desk.

"Your fine?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Wallow, "you raided my house yesterday, you know, and I suppose it's up to me to settle." She plunked the $75 down on the desk.

"Is that right?" she asked.

"There is just a little formality to be gone through before I can give you a receipt," said the inspector politely. "Just wait a minute."

He rushed over to the office of the clerk of courts and swore out a complaint against Mrs. Wallow. In 20 minutes she was tried, found guilty, and fined $75 for selling liquor against the law.

"I thought I was right about the fine," she said as she departed. "It is generally $75."

INSANE BRIDE

ALLOWED TO REMAIN TO TAKE SHIP FOR FRANCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Luceda Correa, the bride of Alberto Correa, a young chemist of Colon, Panama, both of whom arrived last week on a honeymoon trip on the United Fruit liner Cartillo, on which trip the young bride showed signs of being demented, will be allowed to stay in this country long enough to sail for France with her husband next Tuesday. She had been detained at Ellis Is.

land and was ordered deported by a special board of inquiry. Her husband was very anxious that she might be allowed to land in New York and go to a sanitarium, and offered to give bond that when she was better they would return to Colon, but this was refused. As a last resort he asked that they might be allowed to stay long enough to sail for Paris, where he has a cousin who is a specialist in mental diseases. As this was refused he got a New York lawyer, who took the matter up to Washington. The bridegroom notification yesterday from the secretary of commerce and labor that they might stay long enough to take the steamer sailing for Cherbourg next Tuesday if the United Fruit company would guarantee to take them back to Colon in case the French authorities at Cherbourg should refuse to allow them to land in France. The United Fruit company said they would agree to do that, and so the couple will sail for French next Tuesday.

POLICEMAN SENTENCED AND ENTERED APPEAL

Then He Resigned From the Department—Was Charged With Assault

WORCESTER, Aug. 9.—Police Patrolman Charles E. Kenney of the Worcester department was sentenced to serve two months in the house of correction yesterday by Judge Stobbs in the district court on a charge of assaulting with his club John J. Crimmins of 36 Suffolk street at Lake Quinsigamond the night of July 31. He appeared from the court sentence and was placed under $200 bonds for his appearance before the superior court. As soon as he was bailed he tendered to Chief David A. Matthews his resignation as a member of the police department.

Patrolman Patrick J. Fogarty, who was arraigned with Kenney on the assault charge, was discharged.

The arraignment of the officers grew out of a fracas in the Lincoln Park dance hall the night of July 31. According to the stories told to the court by Crimmins, his sister Katherine, Lawyer Charles J. O'Connell, Albert Fyberg and Irving Pengelly, Crimmins went to the lake with his sister, and between dances he leaned against a screen accidentally and tipped it over. Officer Fogarty, who was on duty in the park, ran up to Crimmins and ordered him to be more careful. Crimmins told the officer it was an accident, but in the argument which followed Officer Fogarty placed Crimmins under arrest and started him toward station 3 on Belmont street. Witnesses for Crimmins say that on the way the officer struck Crimmins with his club, when such action was unnecessary.

As the officer was taking Crimmins across the street, followed by a crowd, Kenney came along in a trolley, according to the Shrewsbury side of the lake. He jumped off the car and immediately went at Crimmins with his club. It was said, although he was in citizens' clothes and was not on duty.

Lawyer O'Connell and Lawyer John H. McGehee were witnesses of this action, and at the request of Miss Crimmins, they followed the officers and Crimmins into the station house, where it was testified Kenney again attacked Crimmins while he was washing the blood from his face, caused by a scalp wound inflicted by Officer Fogarty's club. Words followed the second attack and the officers hustled Crimmins behind a partition into the cell room, where the two lawyers said they heard more blows.

Crimmins was booked on a charge of drunkenness, but when he changed the next morning to assault on an officer, Fogarty claiming that Crimmins assaulted him after he had placed him under arrest. Judge Stobbs heard the charges against Crimmins in the district court on Aug. 1 and ordered Crimmins discharged. He also suggested to Chief Matthews that it would be a good thing to have the stories told about the officers investigated. This was done and Kenney and Fogarty were suspended from duty. Crimmins then swore out warrants against the officers on a charge of assault, and Lawyer McGehee was brought into the case as counsel for him.

During the hearing today Walter M. Hunt told of riding on the trolley car with Kenney and seeing him get off and push his way through the crowd. He thought Fogarty was in need of assistance, as Crimmins was struggling and the crowd was closing in on him.

William J. O'Toole and George L. Hadden testified they saw Fogarty struggling with Crimmins and that they saw Crimmins strike Fogarty. Police Surgeon Richard J. Shanahan testified to treating a cut in Fogarty's lip after the fracas. Special Officer Louis G. Estabrook said he saw Crimmins strike Fogarty in the mouth twice.

Officer Fogarty said Crimmins called him vile names when he ordered him from the dance hall, and struggled with him all the way to the station. He said he felt called upon to use his club, as Crimmins was acting badly and the crowd was closing in on him in what he considered a threatening manner. He denied that either he or Kenney struck Crimmins in the station.

In summing up the case, Judge Stobbs said: "I am satisfied that before Kenney appeared on the scene there must have been some provocation for Fogarty. It is hard for me to say just what extent he was justified in using force. I ought to say both a word of commendation and criticism. Fogarty was evidently trying to do his duty, but it was a mistake to book Crimmins on a charge of drunkenness. He should have been booked on a charge of disturbing the peace. I am certain that some of Fogarty's testimony on the stand was influenced from a sense of loyalty to a brother officer and that more happened at the station house at the lake than he would admit. I fail to find in all the evidence submitted any justification for Kenney striking the first blow as he left the car, and more especially for the blows struck at the station. He could have assisted Fogarty without using his club in such a vicious manner.

A BIG HAUL

WAS MADE BY THIEVES AT BAR HARBOR

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 9.—With a successful robbery Sunday evening at the cottage of Edgar Scott of Philadelphia, in which jewelry to the value of several thousand dollars was taken, and an unsuccessful attempt to break into the cottage of Mrs. John S. Kennedy of New York yesterday morning, the authorities and summer cottagers are decidedly worried.

Jewel robberies in August have occurred for several summers, the thieves seeming to baffie all attempts at capture. Yesterday morning the New York watchman discovered a burglar near the main entrance to Kenard lodge. Mrs. Kennedy's home, who fled in his stockings and took refuge in some thick woods, leaving a coat, hat, shoes and a complete set of burglar's tools behind.

The Scott robbery occurred Sunday night, but was not made public till yesterday. The thieves got in some time during the evening, taking a watch and several well-kept branches from a drawer in Mrs. Scott's dressing table, and 13 scarf pins in a leather case lying on top of Mrs. Scott's chiffonier. The two estates are adjoining and are among the largest at Bar Harbor.

She Says Husband Lost in Stock Deals

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Seeking $500,000 damages for losses which she alleges her husband sustained through stock transactions with the defendants, Mrs. Helen Augusta Clark, widow of Geo. L. Clark, the administratrix of his estate, brought a suit in the superior court yesterday against Hayes, Tewksbury & Co., stock brokers.

Mrs. Clark claims her husband lost $504,783 stock transactions with the defendant firm between Sept. 1, 1909, and Jan. 20, 1912. She seeks to recover this sum with interest.

The action of the plaintiff is brought under the revised laws relating to gaming or wagering contracts. Mrs. Clark alleges that the stock transactions were on margins, and that her husband was mentally weak and incompetent by reason of excessive use of liquor during the entire period when he had dealings with the defendants.

George L. Clark fell heir to the large estate of his father, Sheriff John M. Clark. He was reputed to be very wealthy and had been speculating in the market for some time past. He and Mrs. Clark lived at 119 Marlboro street, Back Bay.

Mrs. Clark never kept any books or accounts and his widow is unable to state the exact amount and the dates of the various dealings with the defendants. She will file interrogatories in court with a view to compelling them to disclose the information she seeks.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—After having substantially heard the application of the plaintiffs for an injunction in the case of the Gilmore Electric Co. against the General Electric Co., and having decided not to grant the prayer of the petitioner, Judge Loring of the supreme judicial court today remembered that he was a stockholder in the General Electric Co., and reversing the action he had taken said that the matter must be presented to some other judge. The Gilmore company claimed that the General Electric was trying to stifle competition and alleged a breach of its contract with the General Electric.

ANTIQUITY OF BASEBALL

Baseball is undoubtedly the great American pastime. For years an argument has been on as to the origin of the sport. Some claim that it is a development of the old game of "rounders," while others assert that it had its beginning otherwise.

No one has ever tried to trace it very far back, every student apparently assuming that it is modern in every detail. However, an expert has just come across a book which contains references to the game and leads one to the belief that some sort of baseball may have been played even before the Christian era.

In the Alleghany law library there is a volume entitled "The Roman Law of Damage to Property," being a commentary on the Aquilian law, with an introduction to the study of the Corpus Juris Civilis.

The Aquilian law was one of those codified by order of the Emperor Justinian as early as 529 A. D. and collected in four groups, known as the Corpus Juris Civilis.

One of the cases cited in the book and commented upon is that resulting from what was evidently a game of some kind of baseball, in course of which one of the players threw his ball, striking it too violently against the hand of a barber, who was just shaving a slave, and thus the throat of the latter was cut. An action under the Aquilian law seems to be applicable, and a discussion follows in the book as to whom it is to be sued. The commentator continues: "The decision of this question depends on further particulars, which, however, are not given. According to the facts stated, one would think that the person who had thrown the ball is liable. Proculus, however, says that the barber is liable. In this Ulpian agrees, if it was usual to play in the place or if the place was a frequented one."

The legal phases herein contained will probably not interest the average fan, but it is more than interesting to find reference to baseball in legal cases arising almost 1500 years ago, and probably even longer.

MARKET WAVED

DURING THE FINAL HOUR THIS AFTERNOON

When the Government Crop Report Was Made Public—Just Before the Close There Was An Active Demand for Some Leaders

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The speculative market for their strength at the opening of today's stock market. Stocks were strong in the early morning, but fell to almost two points, while changes in the active list were nominal with the usual mixture of gains and losses.

Prices shaded soon after the opening but support came at the lower level with resultant hardening. Stocks were strong in today's early market with gains greatest, however, in certain specialties, some of which failed to hold. Reading was again the feature of the active group, but failed to attain yesterday's high quotations. Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were relatively heavy, probably as a result of yesterday's statement of earnings and Hill issues also ruled under recent best prices. Canadian Pacific moved up on reported foreign buying, while Grangers were stationary.

During the dull noon hour, Canadian Pacific added to its advances and American Sugar was up a point with a similar gain for Atlantic Coast line and over two points for Louisville and Nashville.

The market closed strong. The market was inclined to waver after the publication of the government crop report which seemed highly favorable in most respects. Just before the close, however, an active demand for some of the leaders turned the tide, prices in some cases being the best of the day.

TO PLAY IMPORTANT PART IN PROGRESSIVE CONVENTION

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—William H. Holchis, provisional state chairman, issued a long statement this afternoon relative to the state convention of the progressive party. Gov. Johnson of California has been invited to attend the convention. Women are to play an important part in the proceedings, as was the case at Chicago.

Among the platform suggestions already received are the establishment of a state bureau of printing and free distribution of a daily report of legislative and committee proceedings; a demand for a constitutional convention at the earliest possible day, a demand that the state constitution be "federalized" by providing that only the governor and lieutenant governor be elected by the people, legislation to prohibit executive sessions of legislative committees and regulation of the power of the rules committee of the assembly requiring that all proceedings be public, and a permanent committee on legislative bills sitting throughout the year.

TWO OFFENDERS

IN JUVENILE COURT

Cases Continued for One Week

Two young boys, Ephraim Rendeau and Arthur Giguere, aged 16 and 17 years respectively, were arraigned before Judge Enright in the juvenile session of the police court on complaints charging them, Rendeau with breaking and entering the property of Deputy Chief Saunders and stealing therefrom 60 cookies, the property of D. H. Brand, while the Giguere boy was arraigned on a charge of being a stubborn child. They both admitted their guilt and the cases were continued for a week.

According to the boys' stories, they came with other boys about their age left home two weeks ago and boarded freight cars and "blind" baggage cars and went to Nashua and Manchester, N. H. They returned to Nashua and there they separated. Rendeau walked back to Lowell and in the middle of the night he felt hungry and broke into Brad's baker shop in White street by way of the bulkhead and stole some cookies. As he came out of Gage street, he was seen by Patrolman Ferris who shouted to him to stop, but instead the boy threw the bag of cookies into the street and started on a run. The officer in pursuit. He was apprehended in Decatur street and sent to the station.

When arraigned in court the boy pleaded guilty and inasmuch as he told the judge he wished to join the United States navy, but could not do it until February when he will be 17 years old, he was placed in the care of the probation officer until that time, providing he goes to work and does what is right in the meantime.

MARKET QUEEN WORTHY BEATEN

BY SPEEDY ANNIE KOHL

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 9.—The New

England mare, Annie Kohl, driven by the Boston trainer, James Carpenter, was the surprise of the fourth day's program of the Grand Circuit racing, and the Brunots Island track yesterday, as she landed first money in the final of the professional drivers' stake, took a record of 2:07 1/2 and defeated the hitherto unbeaten M. and M. winner, Queen Worthy, in a half-split heat race.

It was a clean-cut victory for the eastern mare, who clearly showed her superiority over Queen Worthy and the balance of the field.

It was a day of good racing, Billy Burke trotting the two fastest heats in a race this season in beating Dudie Archdale in the free-for-all trot, while the New York stallion Shawby showed himself to be one of the best trotters which has appeared this season, by winning the 2:12 trot and stepping to a record of 2:07 1/2 in the final heat.

The crowd was a record breaker for the track, being even larger than that of yesterday, when more than 5000 attended.

Queen Worthy the Favorite

With the handbook men, who operated freely on the lawn in front of the stand, Queen Worthy was a strong favorite for the professional drivers' stake, Ruth McGregor being the next in favor. Murphy took his mare out in front in the first heat and made every post a winning one, Ruth McGregor compelling the Long Island reinsman to hustle Queen Worthy along at the finish, though the latter won by a neck in 2:08 1/4.

In the second heat Annie Kohl, who had got away badly in the first round, was right up in her place and she hung onto Queen Worthy all the way. The clip was much faster than in the first, and at the short distance Murphy saw that his mare was beaten and took her back.

Ruth McGregor drove Annie Kohl out in 2:07 1/2, a new record for the New England mare. Murphy tried different tactics in the third heat, taking his mare behind Carpenter and using the latter as a wind-break to the three-quarters pole, where he pulled out for a drive, but Queen Worthy was not equal to the occasion.

One Claims He is Not Guilty, but Governor Dix Refuses to Interfere

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The slayers of Mrs. Mary Hall, who was brutally killed at Croton lake last November by a band of foreigners, will go to the electric chair at Sing Sing Monday. The men are Angelo Galata, Vincenzo Cona, Salvatore Demarco, Felipe Demarco and Lorenzo Calli.

Efforts are being made to obtain a reprieve from Gov. Dix for Calli, who asserts he was not at the killing and can prove an alibi if he has opportunity. The governor probably will not interfere.

On Nov. 9, while Mrs. Hall and two other women were alone in the house, five men sprang in, robbed them, and because they were unable to get enough to satisfy them, killed Mrs. Hall. The chase was exciting. Six men were taken, and one, Zanza, has already met his fate in the electric chair.

Calli was surprised by the detectives in his room. As they entered they saw him go smashing through the window to the ground.

He had shaved off his moustache, and was hardly recognized but by things found in his possession and afterward identified as belonging to one of the men who had been in the party. Calli was sent to Sing Sing.

A letter to a New York paper has been smuggled out of Sing Sing by a convict who is well known to the public, although his name cannot be divulged. He writes:

"The whole thing is terrible enough for the 1500 men about them, those who made the coffins, who clean the cells, who run the machinery. It is hardening and embittering enough to know all the details of these horrible executions without having the certainty that this time one of the men is absolutely innocent and was sent to his death by the most cold-blooded official neglect on record. At the time of the murder Calli was at work in the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, where twenty fellow workmen will testify to his presence. Calli knew one of the members of the gang intimately, having worked with him in Brooklyn. This man, knowing Calli's good character, gave him as a reference when under the third degree. The detectives understood the man's broken English to contain an implication of Calli as a participant in the murder. The witness who identified him was taken to see him six times before she would say he had been present. The others, admitting their own guilt, one and all say Calli had no hand in the matter.

G. Vicerio, an editor of this city, appeared before Governor Dix in Albany yesterday to plead for a reprieve. He was accompanied by the Rev. Father Bozani, G. Barcelli, the Italian consul at Albany, and Patrick E. McCabe, Governor Dix said:

"I cannot see my way clear to upset the judgment of the courts. The decision of the court of appeals was unanimous in the case, and I cannot consistently set aside that judgment or grant a reprieve."

Confessed He Was Present

At the office of the Brooklyn Union Gas company no trace could be found of Calli in the time records because practically all the workmen are designated by numbers and no track is kept of their names. Word was sent to Sing Sing to Calli, but he could not remember his number. He recalled, however, that the name of his "boss" was Theodore Pettit, of the repair department. Mr. Pettit had gone to summer camp at Far Rockaway beach and could not be found.

The district attorney declares the evidence was complete against Calli. He was positively identified by members of the Hall family after the murder and confessed to his share. To Coroner Squire he said he was at the home of Mrs. Hall, but had nothing to do with the killing.

Some Attractive Fashions for the Matron

That Are Proving to be Very Popular

It has been the creed of many per-tailor made modes into their own hands, and there are some who still adhere to the old ideas, that when a woman reaches the age of 50 she must adopt the bonnet and shawl. But in this advanced age one has difficulty in telling (from a back view) whether a figure is that of a matron or of a debutante, so carefully is the dowager corrected.

This season's fashion rather favors the elderly woman's figure. Long, loose wraps, tunic dress lines, plaited skirts and belted effects are all becoming to her. Charming hats that are youthful enough to be becoming, but with dignity and grace sufficient for women past middle life are shown in the shops.

One, a very pretty model of fine gray straw, was trimmed with plaitings of lace, gray taffeta and a handsome black paradise sash. Another, a turban shape, has a crown made entirely of violets and trimmed with a choux of deep violet ribbon, from which emanate Mercury wings. Still another model was of fine black hemp with medium sized brim and trimming of ostrich tips and black taffeta ribbon.

The older woman, too, may wear a shirt waist, but it must be a shirt waist especially designed with a view to grace and harmony of effect. A beautiful blouse is made of gray chiffon and white lace with trimming of black soutache.

Soft colors and graceful lines are the points that make the costume of the middle aged woman distinguished. Grays, deep blues, black, white, purple and sometimes a deep brown are the best shades for her to wear.

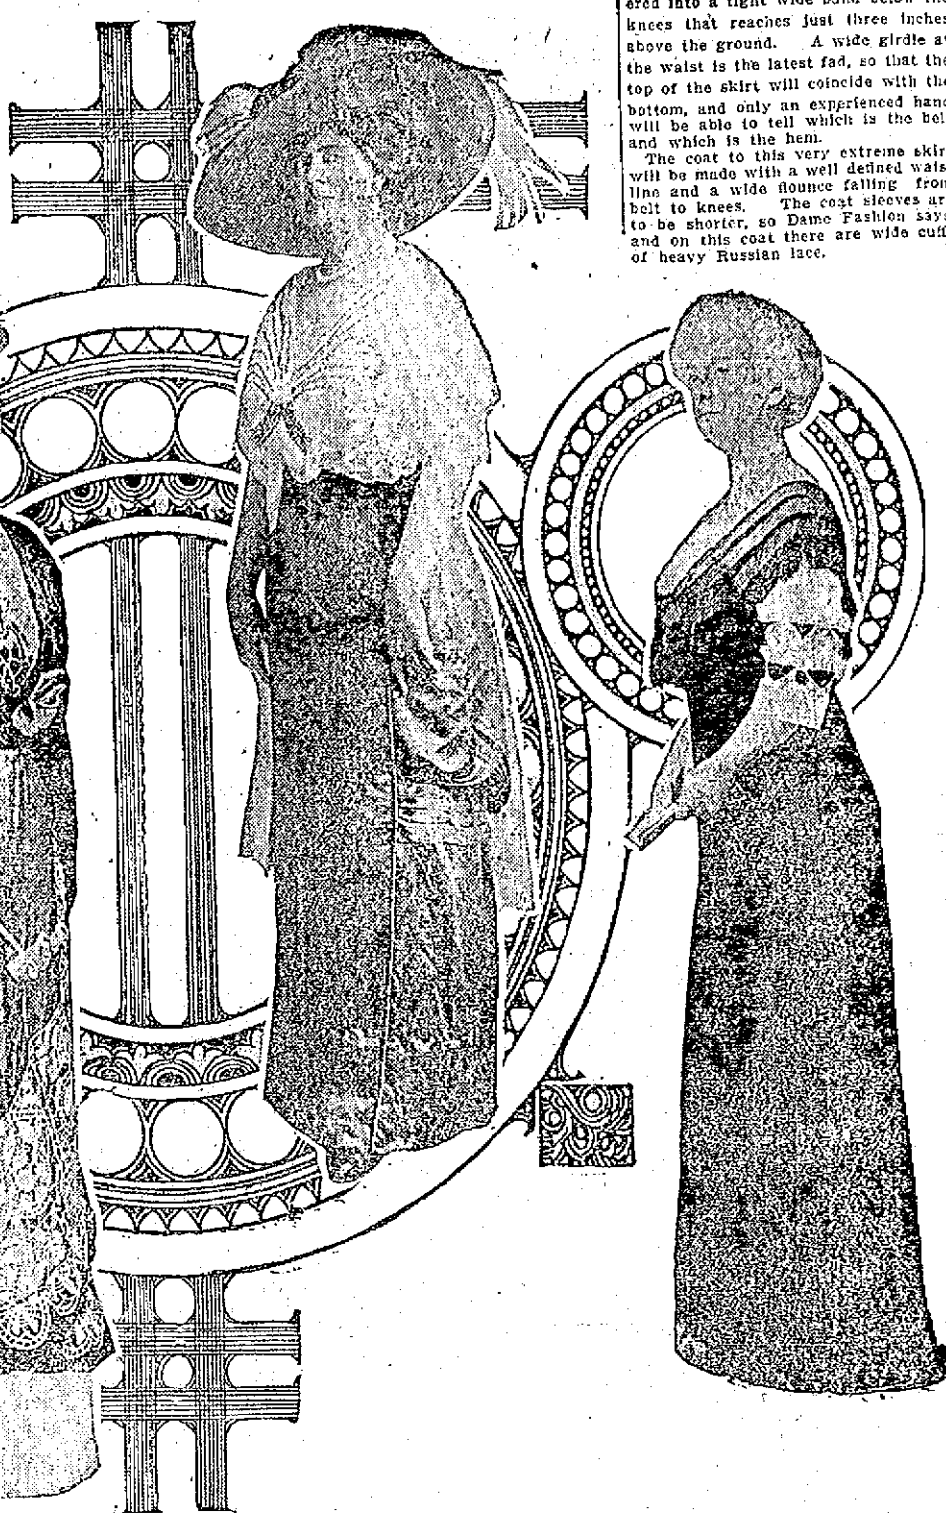

The tailored costume should fit well and be cut on loose, graceful lines. A pretty suit designed for fall is of black wool and silk mixture, trimmed with black satin and rat tail braid. The coat is in three-quarter length, and the clever tailoring conceals the defects of the matronly figure.

That the new panier effect is adapted to even an elderly woman is seen by the taupe taffeta dress illustrated. Draped up in front, the waist is cut by a ribbon sash which forms the girle. Over this is draped, fleche effect, a scarf of white chamois, embroidered in black and white beads. The scarf is brought over the shoulders to the back where it forms a graceful postillion. A beautiful black chiffon evening dress over white silk is also pictured. It has the long lines of the figure accentuated by the fischo and lace panels, which seems to be part of the fischo.

Of course many more simple styles exist on equally good lines. For the elderly woman who cannot afford a very good corset—though a splendid one may be bought for a few dollars today and refitted with little or even no extra charge—or for the one whose figure is deformed by long lines or by years of hard work the plaited skirt gives the best lines, is the easiest to fit and looks best.

Then, too, the plain gored skirt, such as shown in the figure wearing the house gown, is very good. This gown is of satin charmeuse and is trimmed with silk fringe. It has a tucker and sleeves of white net, and the sleeves are trimmed with lace fills and black velvet insets.

Indeed, there is every reason to believe that the stout, matronly woman is going to have things very much her own way this fall. In the first place, for hips, or so say the fashion makers in this country who are taking the ered into a tight wide band below the knees that reaches just three inches above the ground. A wide girle at the waist is the latest fad, so that the top of the skirt will coincide with the bottom, and only an experienced hand will be able to tell which is the belt and which is the hem.

The coat to this very extreme skirt will be made with a well defined waist line and a wide flounce falling from belt to knees. The coat sleeves are to be shorter, so Dame Fashion says, and on this coat there are wide cuffs of heavy Russian lace.

"HOODOO" FOLLOWS AMERICAN CIRCUS

That is Touring Maritime Provinces

MONCTON, N. B., Aug. 9.—An American circus which is touring the Maritime provinces has been unable to shake a "hoodoo" which has followed it for two weeks. The first ill-luck encountered was a long period of wet and unsettled weather.

While feeding a lioness in her cage at Point du Lac, Charles T. Carroll, an attendant, was bitten on the neck by a lioness. The circus management claims that Carroll thrust his arm into the cage in a spirit of bravado and that he was responsible for his own death. The next ill-luck which appeared overtook the show at Richibucto. Several cars ran wild down an incline to a wharf and hurled an empty car into the river, damaging a vessel. A passenger car containing sleeping circus employees narrowly escaped a plunge into the river.

PRESIDENT VAIL

PLANS INSURANCE FOR 200,000 TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—President Theodore N. Vail of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and of the Western Union Telegraph Company, said yesterday that the proposed disability and accident insurance plan of the company would benefit more than 200,000 employees of both companies.

Mr. Vail says: "I believe that young man should be encouraged to stay in our employ. Old age pensions appear to me to be an actually realized benefit to the workman. The hope is held out that some time in the future, if he is very faithful and escapes discharge for a long period of years, he may receive a salary in his declining years. This promise is not always realized, for frequently the usefulness of an employee is found to be passed before the time set for his retirement and he is discharged."

"While we have not as yet decided on any complete system, I believe it will be possible to insure our employees after two years of service. After such two-year period I am convinced we will be able to pay a disabled employee at least half of his weekly wage during his entire absence from work, such payment to increase with the term of service, and, after five years of continuous connection with either company, I think it will be possible to allow the full amount of their salary."

Big Reception in New York City

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—America will pay high tribute to the good fellowship and true sportsmanship of Sweden at the public reception to be tendered the champion American Olympic team in this city on Aug. 24.

The Swedish ambassador at Washington and the Swedish consul general in this city will be in the reviewing party in front of city hall the morning of the parade. They will also occupy posts of honor at the guests' table during the banquet. All the local Swedish organizations have been invited to participate in the parade.

While the big public reception will be observed on Aug. 24, commencing with a monstrous parade in the morning, the victorious Olympic heroes will be guests of the city from Aug. 23 to 25. On the evening of the 23rd a theatre party has been planned. Each of the 125 athletes is to be provided with two tickets so that he may have company if he so desires.

One of the features of the proposed parade will be the "stationary guard of honor." This will be composed of boys and girls, each provided with the flag of the republic. They will line the route of march from 42nd street to city hall, the boys on one side, the girls on the other. Cheer leaders will be assigned, so that an impressive welcome may be voiced. At each street the stationary guard of honor will give the Olympic team's yell that made such a big hit in Stockholm.

The Hebrew orphan asylum band will precede the division of the parade in which the athletes themselves will ride in automobiles. In the same division, immediately ahead of the athletes, will be two marching guards of honor. The first will be made up of boys in costumes representing the 48 states of the Union. The second, also in costume, will represent the various nations which took part in the Stockholm Olympics.

FINAL PLANS

FOR THE GREAT McMANUS PIC-NIC ANNOUNCED

Constable John McManus announces the final arrangements for his great children's picnic. The outing will be held next Wednesday, Aug. 14th. The Lowell Cadet band will give a concert at Merrimack Square for an hour before the start is made for Mountain Rock, playing all the latest, popular selections. Special cars will leave Merrimack Square headed for the grounds at nine o'clock sharp. Once the grove is reached the usual list of sports will be in order for which suitable prizes will be given. The chief event of the day, the dinner, will come at noon. Children should bring along with them and John says that there will be enough to eat and drink for everybody and that no one will be left out. He figures on using 4000 sandwiches, 100 gallons of milk and 100 gallons of lemonade, besides all the pies and doughnuts. There will be 14 police officers in attendance and the children are cautioned to keep away from the lake and to exercise care in getting off and on the cars. An early return home will be made and the success of other years is assured.

Mayor O'Donnell, Aldermen Barrett, Brown, Cummings and Bragdon will attend the outing.

CRAZED WITH JOY AT FINDING CHILD

Man Attempted to End His Life

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 9.—After unexpectedly meeting his little daughter, who with her mother disappeared months ago, a man plunged into the ocean at Sea Isle City yesterday and attempted to end his life. He explained afterward that his mind had been suddenly unbalanced by the joy of meeting his little girl again.

On December 3 last, when there was six inches of snow on the ground, a two-year-old girl was found by a policeman at the corner of Third and Market streets in this city. She was taken care of by the police and a country-wide search for the persons who had abandoned her was begun, but it was without avail. The child became a great favorite with the police. She did not know her name, so the police christened her "Mary."

The child was given to the Children's Home society of New Jersey, which, in turn, placed the little girl in the care of a family said to be wealthy and residing in Merchantville, near this city. The family is spending the summer at Sea Isle City.

Yesterday the members of the family, accompanied by little "Mary," were on the boardwalk at Sea Isle City, when a man who was passing suddenly stopped, looked earnestly at the child, threw up his arms and cried: "My God, it's Dorothy!" and then picked the little girl up in his arms and kissed and hugged her. The child seemed to recognize him, as she repeatedly called out, "Papa," and returned his caresses.

The man got the address of the child's guardians and said he would call on them last evening, but immediately after leaving them and the child he ran down to the beach and, plunging into the surf, tried to drown himself.

When the lifeguards went out in a boat to save him he fought them off, but he was overpowered after a hard struggle and was brought ashore. He was taken to the police station, where he said that the only way he could explain his attempt at self-destruction was that his mind had become suddenly unbalanced by his meeting with his little daughter.

The man said he was Fritz Funk, of Doylestown, Pa., and that he was a travelling salesman for an electrical concern in New York. He said that four years ago he married Mary Winslow, of Morrisville, Pa., a year later a child was born to them.

Funk said that when he had come home on the night of December 2 last he found his wife had disappeared and had been the child with her. There had been no trouble between himself and his wife, he said, and he could not understand her going away.

Funk was held at the police station for the night.

Mine Owner Wanted Her to Go to Alaska

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—"I wanted to come back home because I was afraid I would have to eat dog meat and live in a house made of ice, like the Eskimos do. And I read in my school books that there is just a wilderness of ice in Alaska, and that the sun seldom shines. Such a dreary prospect made me homesick."

Tears of joy trickled down the cheeks of fourteen-year-old Elizabeth Arnault as she reached the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Jensen, 823 Third avenue, Brooklyn, last evening, and explained why she had so suddenly discontinued a journey that she began last Saturday with T. H. Beaumont, a wealthy mine owner.

"When I decided to go with Mr. Beaumont, who wanted me to be a companion to his wife, I thought they lived in San Francisco," said the girl.

"On the way to Washington Mr. Beaumont told me we would remain in San Francisco only two weeks, and would go from there to the Yukon district in Alaska."

"As soon as we arrived in Washington I wrote to my sister, asking her for money to get home. I would rather live in Third avenue, Brooklyn, than in an ice-bound region where there are but few comforts. I don't want to wear fur clothes an inch thick and live on blubber and things of that kind."

"Mr. Beaumont discovered I was unhappy. I cried most of the time after I heard we were going to Alaska. He told me conditions there were not so terrible as I had read in my school books, and that the people really have many comforts. He said I had got my facts mixed, and that I must have been thinking of Greenland and the far Arctic region. But I didn't want to take any chances."

Mr. Beaumont became acquainted with Elizabeth Arnault two weeks ago by answering an advertisement her sister had inserted in local papers. They offered the services of Elizabeth as a nurse. Mr. Beaumont said the girl impressed him so favorably that he would make her a member of his family.

After learning the child was homesick Mr. Beaumont bought a return ticket for her, and was about to send her home when the police of Washington took her in custody. They did so at the request of the New York authorities, who had been appealed to by Mrs. Jensen when she received the letter from her sister.

Mr. Beaumont put the girl on a train yesterday morning and telegraphed to Mrs. Jensen that she was coming.

"This was my first and last trip away from home," said Elizabeth.

HE WOULD NOT PAY

Man Owes Hawthorne, N. J., $3.39 and Town Wants the Money

HAWTHORNE, N. J., Aug. 9.—Not since Mayor George Sammis of Sound Beach, Conn., had to hold a rummage sale and straw-berry festival in his back yard to replenish the empty Sound Beach treasury and so pay the police, fire, street cleaning, school and health departments of Sound Beach and his own salary has a municipality been so down in its luck as this town is now.

Yesterday Hawthorne was driven to the extreme of locking up citizens accused of being delinquent taxpayers and of holding them in the town calaboose until they ease some money into the Hawthorne treasury.

Chief of Police Dick Keefe decided to make an example of some one and he decided that it might as well be George Forrester of Park avenue, Hawthorne, as any one else. The chief told George that that little matter of George's taxes for 1910 and 1911, amounting to the whole and entire and complete sum of $3.39 if paid now would help the borough fathers a whole lot, inasmuch as if George paid up the borough would then only have to raise $19,595.81 of the $20,000 badly needed for borough improvements.

George Forrester thought Chief Keefe was joking. One word led to another and finally the chief said flatly that if George didn't pay up the chief would lock him up in the Paterson jail and throw the key away. Sure enough Chief Keefe yesterday took George to Paterson and locked him up. On the commitment papers there isn't a word about how long George is to stay in jail. He can't earn money to pay taxes in Hawthorne while in jail at Paterson, and he can't get out to get the money to pay his back taxes, and there you are. So folks say that they think Chief Keefe thinks that maybe George will never get out because his back taxes will keep on piling up faster than time itself.

"Pay up or shut up" is the slogan of Chief Keefe and the other policeman in the department and lots of folks are worried.

Wagons and automobiles were pressed into service by patriotic taxpayers yesterday to race to the tax collector's office.

Despite this outburst of patriotism, however, there's a feeling here that some of Hawthorne's leading patriots will be behind the Paterson iron bars instead of in front of the Hawthorne mahogany bars before the week is finished.

"We'll keep it up," said the chief last night. "Somebody's been fooling George and told him he didn't have to pay, but I showed him. He's committed until he pays up, even if it takes forever."

MRS. BROKAW SUES FOR ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

Second Suit in Three Years

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—For the second time within three years, the domestic troubles of the W. Gould Brokaw are to be aired in open court. The first time was in 1910, when Mary Blair Brokaw sued for separation. This time she has sued for an absolute divorce.

Three co-respondents are named—Estelle Perry, who, the complaint alleges, was with Brokaw on the yacht Sybarita between July 10 and 15, 1909; Anne Susan Setty, who was on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. between April 8 and 15, 1909, and Mabel Weeks, who in September, 1908, was with Brokaw in the Hotel Carlton in Stamford, Conn.

Notice for service by publication in two Nassau county papers, and signed by Supreme court Justice Van Siedlen, was filed in the county clerk's office at Mineola yesterday.

Attached to the notice of publication was the complaint of Mrs. Brokaw, signed before she left for Europe in May.

On May 18 of this year it was announced that Brokaw had been served at the New York Athletic club, but this he, as well as his counsel, Eugene L. Rushe, denied, while counsel for Mrs. Brokaw, Arthur Bolden, was equally as emphatic in his assertion that the clubman had been served.

Attached to the papers was the affidavit of Howard A. Fluckinger, dated May 16, 1912, in which he stated that he and another employee of the Baldwin office, stood outside the residence of Mrs. H. Bramhall Gilbert, Brokaw's sister, at No. 40 West Fifty-seventh street, for two days, and that he had finally seen a taxicab drive up, and a man wearing a long brown coat get out, who answered exactly the description as well as the photograph which he had of Brokaw; that he had asked him if he was W. Gould Brokaw, and the man had replied that he was not. Fluckinger had been positive in his identification, however, and had served him at that time, but the papers had been thrown in the street, with the words, "I am not Brokaw, I am his brother." A second time the papers were thrown in the street, and Fluckinger walked away.

LOWELL MOTORBOAT CLUB A FLOURISHING ORGANIZATION

One of the most progressive and energetic, as well as the most recently created social organizations in this city, is the Lowell Motorboat club. This club was the result of the successful outcome of a series of motorboat races last summer, suggested on the spur of the moment and held independently of any organized authority. Upon witnessing the interest shown in these races which were held on the Merrimack river in the vicinity of the Pawtucket boat house, those partaking in them easily saw the advantage of forming a club and making the event an annual occurrence. It was thus that Lowell came to have a motorboat club.

That the newly created institution was destined to prosper became almost immediately evident. The members at once set out to locate a site for their club house. They finally succeeded in purchasing a boat house on the river just beyond the old Vesper club house. This was accomplished last April. The building was remodeled, generally repaired and new wharves constructed.

The Lowell Motorboat Club at present comprises about 65 members and this number is constantly increasing, there being a number of new applicants daily. The officers are as follows: Commodore, Harvey Gamble; vice commodore, Dr. Harry Knapp; secretary and treasurer, Harvey Bradford; directors, F. W. Holmes, H. C. Taft, Willis Morse and Dr. Knapp. A regatta will be held on Labor day and the committee on races comprises the following members: Dr. Knapp, chairman; J. H. Walker, Edward Jones, H. C. Peters, and Charles Golding. About 25 or 30 entries are expected in the different events, some of them from out-of-town. The boats will be placed in classes according to the power of their engines, and prizes of cups will be awarded the winners.

Labor day should prove to be a banner day in the history of the Lowell Motorboat club, for a great deal of enthusiasm is manifested in the coming regatta. Several of the members have built new boats especially for this occasion and the races promise to be closely contested. In order to insure fairness and put all on an equal footing at the start, the events will be handicapped, this duty being in the hands of the committee of arrangements.

One of the most talked about craft in the club is the hydroplane of F. W. Holmes. It is probably the first of its kind to be seen in the vicinity of Lowell and it is indeed well worth a journey to the club house to behold this odd craft. The forward end rises completely out of the water when the plane is in motion, and somewhat resembles the flight of a wild duck over the surface of the water. Besides this, there are several other speed boats, most prominent among them being Dr. Knapp's "Maria Louise," "Doris III," owned by Mr. Holmes, and "Neena," owned by A. C. Brooks. The latter was the winner of the races last summer and will figure prominently this year in spite of the fact that several new craft have been constructed to wrest the honors from Mr. Brooks.

cess of arrangement by the committee to take place at this year's regatta. An attempt is being made to introduce such features as swimming and canoe races.

The number of motorboats owned by Lowell men has experienced a vast increase over that of the past. People of this city have seemed in former years to be of the opinion that the value of the Merrimack river extends no farther than its commercial efficiency. The river in the vicinity of the club house presents a most beautiful appearance in addition to being a most favorable spot for the holding of a racing meet, and even now its pleasure resources are too little appreciated. The Motorboat club, however, bids fair to enliven interest and give the city something to cherish and be proud of.

The starting place of the races will be located directly in front of the club house. The course will be to Ryug's island and return, in all, a distance of approximately eight miles. Each evening the members of the organization gather at the club house to talk over the affairs of the society and watch the boats being tried out on the river. A great deal of friendly rivalry is found among the competitors. Some of the boats are said to travel at a rate of 15 and 20 miles an hour. Mr. Holmes' craft carried a 30-horse power engine, while that of Mr. Golding is 18 horse power. Mr. Walker has a pleasure boat of 14 horse power. The members of the club hold a social gathering on the second Tuesday of each month, and they are very largely attended.

SHOE WORKERS

OUT ON STRIKE FOR $16.50 A WEEK

LYNN, Aug. 9.—Two hundred shoe workers employed in nine tollpit factories struck today when their demand for a flat wage of $16.50 a week and a nine hour workday was refused by the manufacturers. The manufacturers agreed last night to pay the flat wage demanded but refused to consider a nine hour work day. Labor leaders say that there is a possibility of a general strike of 600 soleleather workers.

JEWELRY RECOVERED

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 9.—Placer mining in the ashes of the burned Dunes hotel at Loch Arbor has resulted in the recovery of $25,000 worth of jewelry lost by guests. The ashes were washed through three screenings. About $3000 worth of jewelry is still missing.

THE EAGLES

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 9.—The administration slate is believed to have won the election for officers of the Grand Order of the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, in annual convention in Cleveland. The balloting took place yesterday, but it was not expected that the count would be completed until the small hours of today. The slate that is thought to have won was:

Grand worthy president, William J. Brennan, Pittsburgh; grandworthy vice president, Thomas J. Cogan, Cincinnati; grand worthy chaplain, William L. Grayson, Savannah, Ga.; grand secretary, John S. Barry, San Francisco; grand conductor, Thomas P. Gleason, Minneapolis; grand trustees, James F. Kelly, Cleveland; Fred C. Naeve, Davenport, Ia.; John J. Bohl, Stamford, Conn.; and Conrad H. Mann, Milwaukee.

Award of prizes was made last night for performances of various aeries contesting in the parade. Pittsburgh won first prize, $400, for best appearance, while the same position and the same amount fell to Buffalo, with Dayton second, in the contest for attendance among cities more distant than 150 miles from Cleveland.

THE MOOSE CARNIVAL

Last night a contract was signed by the officers of the Lowell lodge of the Loyd Order of Moose and Victor D. Levitt, representing the Col. Francis Ferrari united shows for a grand exhibition and outdoor carnival, commencing Labor day, Monday, September 2nd, and ending Saturday night, September 7th, inclusive.

This will be more than a circus; there will be ten shows, featuring Col. Francis Ferrari's trained wild animal arena. In this collection of trained wild animals, there will be found all of the animals that were saved from the fire at Dreamland, Coney Island, last summer. There will also be in the aggregation, Wild West, Old Plantation, Native Village, Royal Hippodrome, Mysterious Egypt, Minnie Hia, the Mirror Maze, the Diving Girls, and Dupont, the most beautiful horse in the world, and many other interesting features.

Then there will be a Merry-go-round, a Ferris wheel, the Ocean Wave, and the Joy Wheel. Besides these attractions there will be the contest for writers, such as the "Queen of the Carnival Contest," for a diamond ring, a silver toilet set, and other premiums.

SAYS HE STOLE FOOD FOR STARVING FAMILY

Brooklyn Man Admitted Guilt
Prison Cell

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Yesterday morning was just the same as every other morning of the last two months in the barren, three-room flat on the third floor of No. 46 Noll street, Brooklyn, where Otto Moisky lived with his wife and their five children. There were the naked floors, the one bed, the two chairs and the usual three cents worth of stale buns. The only difference yesterday was that it was the last three cents worth of buns. For nine months the father had been out of work, and for nine months the small savings of his eight years of steady labor had been going out frugally but steadily, to feed his wife and children. During the last few weeks the husband and wife had starved themselves to make the final pennies serve the children to the uttermost day. Staggered Away for Food The little ones, ranging from fifteen months to ten years in age, had all the food yesterday. And so it was that Moisky roared and staggered as he went down the steps of the dingy tenement and took to the streets on his final quest for work—and life. "Papa, we like some other food," his six-year-old boy, Tom, had pleaded as he left the flat. "I'll get it, Tommy," the father answered, but he had no hope of getting it. It was very early in the morning. The milkmen's wagons were the only vehicles on the streets, and the grocers' boys carrying hot bread and supplies to the doors of customers, were the only other pedestrians along his way. Harry Herskowitz, whose father keeps a grocery at No. 115 Ralph avenue, saw the thin, pallid man moving slowly along Putnam avenue. Harry had just left a bag of supplies at No. 973, and he happened to turn around just in time to see Moisky leap into the doorway, seize the bag and start on a run for his own home. Brought Back a Feast To the little flat in Noll street came the sound of rapid footsteps on the stairs, and presently Moisky burst through the door, breathless, excited, but triumphant with the treasure he carried. There were potatoes, sugar and bread—even butter, a thing unknown in the house for months. And there were three bananas. The children fell upon the food like the famished little animals that they had grown to be. Even the wife, who is soon again to be a mother, consented to share such plenty. There was veritable festivity in the gloomy flat. Two hours later a policeman opened the door and took Moisky away. In the flat was unmistakable evidence of the robbery. The stolen food had been worth $1.52, and the young Herskowitz had made a vigorous complaint. But there was no shame in the attitude of the prisoner as he stood before Magistrate McGuire in Gates avenue court. Confessed Without Shame "Yes, I took the things," he said simply. "I have five children and a wife. We are starving. I took the things." The magistrate looked at Herskowitz. "Of course, you can withdraw this complaint," he said. "Otherwise I must hold the prisoner." "Sure hold him," said the plaintiff. "I understand he's been arrested for vagrancy. He ought to be sent away." So they sent Moisky away to a cell. A reporter called at the Noll street flat last night. "Here's papa here's papa," came the eager shout of a baby voice from behind the door. But the little chap cowered into a corner when he found a stranger was the caller. The reporter did not have the heart to tell the sick mother that her husband was in jail. There was not a scrap of food in the place. Later last night a wealthy resident of the neighborhood visited the flat. He gave money to the mother with which to purchase necessities, and then sent one of the children for the grocer who had been robbed. After a talk the latter, it is said, agreed to withdraw the complaint in the morning.

PROF. KEMP

SENT TO PANAMA CANAL TO MAKE OBSERVATIONS

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Prof. Jas. F. Kemp, head of the department of geology at Columbia university, has gone to the Isthmus of Panama, at the invitation and expense of the canal commission, to give the engineers the benefit of his expert knowledge.

While the object of his visit has not been made known, it is understood he will try to obviate the trouble encountered by the canal engineers in the Culebra cut, where great slides of rock and earth still interfere with the work. Prof. Kemp usually spends the summer at Hudson's Landing, Lake George, doing field geological work in the neighboring Adirondacks. A few days ago, without any public announcement, he received the invitation of the canal commission and left at once.

Another matter that may engage his attention is the outburst of gases along the canal cut, first reported to be of volcanic origin and therefore causing uneasiness, but which have recently been attributed to other and more local causes. The canal officials have always denied that the landslides or the gaseous outbursts indicated any permanent obstacle.

Ginger Ale

The fresh juices of limes and lemons, with pure confectioners' sugar, give the food value and acidity so craved in summer, while the fresh Jamaica ginger gives stimulus and zest. Nor is there in the pleasing, grateful taste of Clicquot Club the slightest trace of that "burn" which characterizes the ordinary ginger ale. Clicquot Club is non-astringent, and of such delicious flavor that it is rightly characterized "the ideal beverage." Its sparkle and effervescence give it an added charm.

MONSIGNOR TEELING MET WITH ACCIDENT

He Was Thrown from a Taxicab

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 8.—Monsignor A. J. Teeling, aged 67, of Lynn, Mass., was injured here in an automobile accident late Wednesday night. He was traveling to Cincinnati after a short stay at Mt. Clemens. At the Brush street depot he entered a taxi with Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gurburt of St. Louis, the machine starting for the St. Clair hotel.

The driver went up Randolph street at such speed that when he saw a trolley car crossing ahead of him he could not stop. The taxi crashed into the side of the car and was overturned, the occupants being thrown violently to the pavement. The driver disappeared.

A policeman sent in a call for an ambulance, which took the injured clergyman to St. Mary's hospital. Monsignor Teeling's injuries are not serious and he will be able to continue his journey in a few days.

GOV. WILSON

TO POSE AGAIN TODAY FOR PORTRAIT

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Governor Wilson expected to spend most of the day posing for a special portrait to be used in the national campaign. Regarding reports that he might not go on a stumping tour during the campaign Governor Wilson said: "I don't know exactly what the method of campaign will be as yet, but my speaking engagements will probably not begin before the first of September."

Asked if he would read his campaign speeches as he did his speech of acceptance in the notification exercises, Governor Wilson remarked, "No, I will never read another speech again if I can help it."

As governor of the state of New Jersey and president of Princeton university, Governor Wilson has always spoken extemporaneously. He said this morning that reading a speech was "like poison" to him.

P. A. B. WIDENER

TO GIVE HARVARD A $100,000 LIBRARY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—P. A. B. Widener will erect a million dollar library building for Harvard university as a memorial to his grandson, Harry Elkins Widener, who lost his life when the Titanic sank at sea. This was announced yesterday by Horace Trumbull, an architect, who has been commissioned to design the building.

Harry Elkins Widener in his will left his library of 3000 volumes of rare books to Harvard university, "when the university provided a suitable building for the same."

Mr. Widener immediately conceived the idea of providing this suitable structure, but did not announce his intention, as he desired the gift to be a surprise. The building will be known as the Harry Elkins Widener Memorial library and will be of brick and marble, to conform with the style of the university buildings at Cambridge. It will be three stories high, 272 feet long and 110 feet wide. One room will be set apart to hold the collection of Harry Elkins Widener, which is now being catalogued by the Harvard librarians. Ground for the building will be broken next month.

ROXBURY MAN

MOURNED AS DEAD RETURNED TO HIS HOME

HAVERHILL, Aug. 8.—While seated at a window of her son's home on Washington street of this city yesterday, Mrs. Joseph Lipsky of Roxbury, was astounded to perceive her husband, whom she had given up for dead, step from a car and enter the house.

Firmly convinced that she had seen an apparition, the woman ran screaming through the house, and it was not until Lipsky himself walked in and calmly asked the nature of the trouble, that the relatives of Mrs. Lipsky learned what had caused her outbreak.

A week ago Lipsky, who is 68 years old and of feeble health, disappeared from his son's home, and a joint search by police of Boston and Haverhill failed to locate him. His wife resigned herself to the belief that he was dead, and at length in mourning, came to this city to mingle her tears with those of her son.

Lipsky said that when he left his son's home he started for the Hale hospital where his daughter-in-law is confined with pneumonia. He lost his memory, however, before arriving, and for a week was unable to tell his name or where he came from.

When he recovered his memory he found, he said, that he had been cared for by unknown persons who live near the hospital who directed him to his son's home.

YOUNG'S WILL

PROVIDES THAT JEWELRY WILL BE MELTED

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The Protestant Episcopal diocese of northern New Jersey is residuary legatee of the estate of William Patterson Young, a wealthy Newark bachelor, who died suddenly at Atlantic City July 27. The church will get $500,000, it is said. Young's will was probated in Newark yesterday by Elwood S. Leary, who was Young's counsel, and the Fidelity Trust company, which was named as executor.

Stanley M. Walker, a cousin of the testator, receives an annuity of $500, and Cornelia B. Patterson, another cousin, gets an annuity of $300. St. Barnabas' and St. Michael's hospitals, the Eye and Ear infirmary, the Home for Crippled Children, the Free Public library, all Newark institutions, are given $500 each, and a like amount is given to the New Jersey Historical society.

Young devised that an Episcopal church must be built on the site of the Young homestead, at Second avenue and Parker street, Newark, the homestead to be shifted to another part of the plot to be used as a rectory for the proposed church. The church is to be erected as a memorial to his mother.

A clause in Young's will directs that all of his jewelry, rings, cases of his watches, his chains and any other gold jewelry of which he died possessed shall be melted and sold as bullion "in order to forever destroy the identity of all jewelry of which I may die seized." The estate is said to be worth $700,000.

PRES. HERRMAN

NOT IMPRESSED WITH PROPOSED PLAYERS UNION

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 2.—President Herrman of the Cincinnati National Baseball club does not think much of the latest effort at a baseball players' union. He does not believe any of the Reds are interested in the affair and adds that there is nothing new about it.

"The new national agreement is much more favorable to the players," Herrmann said, "and I don't think there is any dissatisfaction. I haven't heard anything lately about the players' organization and, of course, can't discuss it officially as a member of the national commission."

HUMPHREY O'SULLIVAN INVITES DEMOCRATS

Canobie Lake Park
on August 24

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Mayor John F. Fitzgerald told the members of the democratic state committee yesterday afternoon that after talking with prominent republicans and democrats he doubted if the electoral vote of a single state would be given to President Taft.

In the opinion of the mayor, the contest is between Theodore Roosevelt and Gov. Woodrow Wilson, and he counseled the democrats to look to the colonel as their opponent rather than the nominee of the republican convention.

Mayor Fitzgerald discussed the national campaign with the members of the committee yesterday afternoon by invitation, and he quoted statements made to him by republicans, democrats and followers of Roosevelt of national prominence. He said that the best opinion he could gather was that the progressive party was to be the successor of the republican party, that Theodore Roosevelt would this year eclipse President Taft, and thereafter the progressive party would be the one with which the democracy must reckon.

In 1916, Mr. Fitzgerald said the men now at the head of the progressive party would lead, with the present republicans following. Therefore, the mayor said in this campaign the democrats must not take Theodore Roosevelt too lightly, for he would win electoral votes.

The mayor said he was satisfied that Col. Roosevelt would sweep the west. He doubted if a serious contest would be made in California, for example, in behalf of President Taft. West of the Mississippi, Mr. Fitzgerald said, the electoral vote of nominally republican states would be given to Col. Roosevelt.

Senators Not an Issue

The mayor appeared at the meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon principally to inform the members of the situation as he had found it with respect to the senatorial and representative districts. He said he had ascertained that certain districts heretofore neglected could be carried if democratic candidates were nominated.

The committee decided to have a candidate in each representative district, and in districts entitled to two or more representatives to nominate no more than one if it were deemed advisable to concentrate the opposition to the republican candidates in that way. How many candidates should be nominated in double and triple districts is to be determined by the local committees.

The question whether the state committee should endorse the candidacy of Mayor Fitzgerald for the United States senate was raised while the mayor was present. Mr. Fitzgerald objected to the committee passing any vote, although he is at present the only candidate. The mayor said he did not intend to ask any candidate for the senate or house to pledge himself, nor did he contemplate becoming a factor in any district.

Mr. Fitzgerald said if any candidate for the senate or for representative wished his help during the campaign it would be extended, and no promise of support would be exacted. If any democrat thought the support of Mr. Fitzgerald would injure his chances of election, the mayor said he proposed to remain outside of the district in question. The mayor said he would not have his candidacy for the senate made an issue in the state campaign if he could prevent it.

Committee Debts All Paid

Most of the 25 members of the state committee present expressed themselves as favoring Mayor Fitzgerald for the senate, but they agreed to inject that issue into the campaign. The mayor said he would contribute liberally of his time, energy and money to the campaign in behalf of a democratic legislature.

Chairman Thomas P. Riley broke the cheering news to the members of the committee that all of the old obligations of the organization had been discharged. Inasmuch as some of the bills contracted in the campaign of 1910, as well as in 1911, were unpaid a week ago, the announcement that all incurrences had been removed was a happy little surprise for the committee.

Judge Riley, in proclaiming the glad tidings, did not disclose the source of the contributions that had cleared the slate, for he said he did not know who had "come across." All he knew, and he made no indecorous inquiries, was that the secretary of the committee had received a message from the governor's office to the effect that the state committee debts had been paid.

Chairman Riley had refused to receive contributions this year from democrats who desired to help the organization, on the ground that it would be unfair to accept funds for the coming campaign while bills of previous campaigns were not discharged. He accepted only enough money from members and from candidates of a year ago to take care of the current expenses of the committee. Judge Riley held out for the clean slate, and now he has won his point. All contributions henceforth accepted can be applied to the expenses of the pending campaign.

To Contest Council District

The state committee has arranged for the nomination of a candidate for the executive council in every district. Yesterday the entrance of Dr. John P. Reilly and C. W. Guy as candidates in the second district, of William Barter in the fourth, of J. K. Meyers in the sixth, of Arthur Seagraves in the seventh, and of John Clark in the eighth was announced. The Boston democracy will supply candidates in the third, which is the democratic district, and democrats are to be induced to run in the first and fifth districts.

Chairman Riley yesterday received assurance from members of the committee that complete county tickets will be nominated. In Bristol, Michael Reagan is to be a candidate for treasurer and John C. Byrne is to run for county commissioner. In Plymouth, E. P. Boynton is to be the party candidate for treasurer.

Blanks have been sent to county and town committees and with the request that signatures be obtained and the nomination papers filed for candidates for county officers and for senators and representatives. Replies received yesterday by Chairman Riley indicated that democrats were carrying out the instructions of the committee.

Gov. Wilson to Be Invited

At the request of Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell and Paul Hanrahan of Lawrence, the state committee yesterday agreed to send out invitations to the democratic picnic which the two men are giving at Canobie lake on Aug. 24. Democrats of Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth counties are specially invited, and Mr. O'Sullivan and Mr. Hanrahan have asked the democratic mayors of New Hampshire cities, the democratic organizations of New England and all officers of city and town committees in Massachusetts to be their guests.

The state committee voted to invite Gov. Woodrow Wilson to deliver an address in Massachusetts after the Maine state election.

MARRIAGE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Williston of 197 Third street were surprised by a party of friends last Monday evening on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of their wedding. The couple were married on Aug. 5, 1872, in New Brunswick and have resided in Lowell about 20 years. Nine of their 11 children are still living and they have 17 grandchildren.

Thomas Williston, on behalf of the children, presented Mr. and Mrs. Williston with a purse of gold; afterwards refreshments were served and the couple received the good wishes of all. Miss Myrtle Wadsworth read the following, which was written for the occasion by Miss Burgess:

Forty years have passed by since you first joined hands,
And so bravely life's journey began,
Forty years with their trouble, their toil and their care,
With their lessons, their pleasure and pain.

Years though crowded with duties yet brightened by mirth,
With a mingling of pain and of joy,
For the Lord in his wisdom, His patience and love
Sends not all bliss without some alloy.

Happy home and kind friends, and the blessing of health
And with children to brighten the way,
Some are near, some are far, but all gladly unite,
And send greetings on this festive day.

With the hope that the future may bring much joy,
And, as onward your journey you wind,
May your lives be made happy and crowned with the peace
Which God in His goodness doth send.

HEARING HELD

ON THE PROPOSITION TO SEIZE SALISBURY BEACH

HAVERHILL, Aug. 8.—The commission appointed by Gov. Foss to take over Salisbury beach as a state reservation held a public hearing at Fanners hall last night for the purpose of hearing the opinions of the cottagers of the Merrimack Valley regarding the purchase and management of the beach.

Chairman George H. Dole of this city presided and Rev. Jacob H. Spaulding of Salisbury and Frank E. Stanley of Lawrence were present. Some 50 residents of Lawrence, Haverhill and suburban towns were in attendance. Counsel outlined the situation and expressed opinions regarding the legal entanglements.

Chairman Dole assured the cottagers that it was the intention of the commission to take over the beach and that the present plan is to appraise the land and seize it. He said the commission had met and drawn up a list of questions which it was unable to answer and submitted them to Atty. Gen. Swift three weeks ago, and that the commission awaited an answer, and that until it was instructed it felt unable to act.

Dr. Spaulding said that the members of the commission had pledged themselves to act as a unit and that whatever the opinion of any one member might be, the decision of the majority should rule and the position of any one member would never be disclosed. He said there had already been talk that he had sold out and was on the fence, but he warned the cottagers not to heed such rumors and predicted that there would be more before there were less.

"I intend to be guided by Governor Wilson's suggestions, so cannot yet outline a policy."

SEX IN IMMIGRATION

President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard is home from a globe-circling tour in which he acquired and disseminated various new notions. Among them is the idea that there should be some regulation of immigration on the basis of sex. He is disturbed, as others have been, at the preponderance of the masculine element among the newcomers in recent years. It was not so in the old days, when immigrants came in families very generally, and when unmarried persons were more nearly divided as to sex. Now the official reports show that the men of all races outnumber women about two to one.

This is clearly not desirable. It would be better if the immigrants brought their families along with them or sent for them as soon as they were able to do so. This would make for their quicker assimilation into the American people who were here before them and be of benefit to themselves and the country. Unfortunately a large proportion of the immigrants do not come with the intention of remaining. They intend to "make their pile" and then go back, and their places are taken by others with a similar purpose.

But the thing can scarcely be regulated by law. Dr. Eliot would prohibit a preponderance of more than five per cent. of men in any one year, and it is obvious that the enforcement of such a rule would be difficult. As a matter of fact, there is more labor for men than for women, and here an economic law applies. Such a restriction on immigration is not likely to be enacted for some time, whatever others may be.

THE MEAT PROBLEM

Until the supply and demand for meat products even up, prices are bound to be high. That they should be lower everybody is convinced, but how to bring it about it is not so easy to say. Mayor Fitzgerald and others would put a boycott on meat, but that is scarcely feasible, at least in an absolute sense. However, there is manifestly a falling off in the demand for meats, which if it continues long enough may effect the end desired. The records show that the Chicago packing houses sold 25 per cent. less in June than in the same month last year. That represented a drop of no less than 53,000,000 pounds. For the half year the falling off was noteworthy. At the same time there was a reduction of more than 60 per cent. in the livestock exported.

As these figures would imply, there was a gain in the available supply of meats in Chicago. Diminished demand had its inevitable effect, and the stock for the six-month period increased. Before long, the rising tendency should be reversed and prices begin to recede. There are, however, many influences operating on the meat industry which tend to interfere in this regard so that meat is likely to continue pretty dear.

For people generally it will do no harm if they so modify their diet as to get along with less beef, mutton and pork. Such food cannot be dispensed with altogether, but less of it will serve. There are other things good to eat quite as nourishing and very much cheaper. The modification suggested would mean a very material saving to those who properly complain of the high cost of living.

THAT SHOE TRUST

There are lots of things more to be desired than a merger of the shoe factories of New England. It is said to be contemplated by New York interests, which propose to make a little $75,000,000 combine and take in all the principal concerns in this section. It is to be hoped that they will do no such thing. The shoe industry, like cotton manufacturing, has so far kept out of trust control, and it has been well for both industries. Shoe factories have increased in number all over this section and communities have been glad to get them. Our own city has several and would welcome more. They provide employment for many workers and helpfully diversify our industries. We probably would not be "in it" with a shoe trust in control.

Besides, the public has grown very tired of these big combinations of capital, inundated with water, whether they are in restraint of trade or not. It wants no more trusts, even "good" ones. The trusts profess to secure economies in operation but they don't always, or usually, carry out their professions. The business of shoe manufacturing as it is done in New England at present would better be let alone.

PERUVIAN RUBBER

There is nothing like rubber for maintaining human slavery. It was so in the Congo in King Leopold's time and it is true now in a part of Peru. The rubber gatherers appear to have no rights that anybody is bound to respect. On both continents they have been victims of worse atrocities than any known in our slavery times, according to all reports. These barbarities have been ended in Africa and they will be in South America. Just how is not definitely known. The Peruvian government declines to accept the entire responsibility for the happenings in the rubber country of Putumayo and insists that the English concessionaries and England herself must bear their share of blame for the atrocities. The poor Indians fared as ill as the poor negroes in Africa. However, the investigations now making are pretty sure to effect an improvement. That will be in part accomplished by sending Roman Catholic missionaries into the district. They can help all around in bringing in better conditions.

A STately PROCESSION

What a stately procession was that in the harbor of New York the other morning, when between 7 and 9 o'clock six ocean liners passed slowly up the stream to their docks! Later in the day others came, making a new record for the port or for any port on the planet. The great ships brought all the passengers they could carry. The arrivals were 1506 first class, 2043 second class and 5736 steerage, a total of 9287, or about 500 better than on any previous day. This country still attracts thousands from the other side of the ocean and fortunately at present there is something to do for all who come, provided they go where labor is wanted. Many of them can get jobs in the western harvest fields or the steel regions, where the dearth of labor is really serious.

The line-up of candidates for congress is apparently not yet completed. The new district is somewhat of a conundrum, and republicans who would otherwise like to run are afraid to risk the battle where the outcome might be disastrous. This is a democratic year and a strong candidate should be able to score a victory in the "new fifth."

FOOLISH SEASON

SEEN AND HEARD

When Col. William H. Howard, now a member of the tariff board, was electing for congress one autumn in bygone days, he struck a backwoods country in Georgia, and got very busy talking softly to the voters. He was much concerned about a man named John, who was now for him, then against him, and always changeable.

"What's the matter with John?" the colonel asked one of his constituents. "Aw, you can't tell nothing about John, colonel," was the assurance. "He is the most fickle man you ever see. Why, he has had religion so many times, and been baptized in the creek down here so often that the pulpit folks know him every time he's 'mersed'."

There is a new science called mnemonics, which is trying to get itself introduced into our public schools. We have no lack on this science—only it seems to us to be a roundabout way of arriving at facts that you ought to remember right off the bat. It appears to work something in this manner.

"I-I-for-get," whines the pupil.

"Naturally you do. Go at it right. How many Muses are there in mythology?"

"Nine."

"Right. Now double that number."

"Nineteen-eighteen."

"Right again. Multiply it by 100."

"1800."

"Good. Add the number of Muses to that."

"1809."

"Aha! That's when Lincoln was born. Why don't you learn the scientific way of getting at these things?"

As we said in the first place, it's a noble science, but we'd rather remember dates.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The noble red man. On hearing this expression how the mind flits with pictures of scalp locks and tomahawks and snake dances and all such appendages of Indian life! Then do we think of King Philip of Pokanoket, of Pontiac of the Great Lakes, of Tecumseh, the famous Canadian war chief, and of Uncas and Sagamore, the mythical heroes of the Leatherstocking tales. We follow them along the broken trails of the Mohawk valley, faintly hearing the crack of their rifles when they bring down fat bucks, watch them as they push their birch bark against the currents of the Hudson, and gaze with horror when they attack and burn some isolated settler's cabin and torture its unfortunate occupants. Then when we read Francis Parkman's splendid history of the heroic life of Pontiac, Washington Irving's graphic sketch of the career of the brave King Philip, or Fenimore Cooper's masterful portrayal of his ideal Indian, Uncas, doesn't the pulse beat faster, the eyes glisten and the heart warm towards these noble aborigines as one dwells upon their valor in battle and upon their Spartan courage in defeat?

These were the kind of thoughts I carried with me when, while in Maine recently, I visited one of the few remaining Indian villages in the United States, that situated on an island near Oldtown.

"One bit, a dime, it's the fare, fellow," this was the request made of me by the man who had rowed me across to the island, a young Indian.

"One bit!" "Fellow!" A Boweryite could not have used more clichéd slang. Shades of Pontiac, of Philip, of Tecumseh! Was it possible that the blood of these far-famed war chiefs might be flowing through the veins of this money-grabbing ferryman? Truly, my admiration for the noble red man received a severe jolt through the intercourse with this specimen of later day Indian. Moreover, it could not be denied that the young Indian was a real one, for he had high cheekbones, black beady eyes, swarthy complexion and straight, black hair. But this, his "bean," was his only Indian characteristic. In an absent-minded manner, I had half expected to see such a young brave decked out in deerskin pants, moccasins, and a skin shirt, with a shaven crown about a long scalplock and a ring stuck through his nostril.

Instead, this "son of the forest" wore costly trousers, red and green striped stockings, a pair of patent leather low-cut, a dirty red-striped, green shirt with its attached soft collar, a four-in-hand washable tie that apparently bore its name, and a straw hat with its red and green band. Indeed, I'll bet dollars to doughnuts, that he wore even garters.

After I had paid young Chief Swat-the-fly his "one bit," I strolled over to the village. This I had half expected to see made up of a large number of deerskin tents with smoke rising from their top holes and possibly a larger "lodge" in the centre of the primitive community wherein resided Chief Kill-Forty-Nine-Panthers. But I was disappointed. What I did see was a collection of tumble-down shanties, each and every one of which looked to have received its previous coat of paint about thirty years ago. In most of these buildings the street doors were open, so through them I could see a part of the interiors. Every room had the appearance of bareness; a couple of chairs and a table seeming to fill the wants of their occupants in the furniture line. Neither had the red men any desire for carpets.

A listless, lazy demeanor distinguished the Indians I saw, while tidiness was a note the most pronounced characteristic of their wives and daughters. Among this tribe, at least, the traits which distinguished Philip or Pocahontas seem to have disappeared. The leading man in the village, or at any rate the most talkative one, was a middle aged gentleman dressed in a dirty cotton shirt, breeches, and a pair of greasy overalls. The belt which supported the overalls was a long one. It had to be, for this noble chieftain had an "alderman" on him which must have taken years of gallying along the primeval path to acquire. Yet this abdominal protuberance might be a capricious trick of nature, in fact this is probable, because the chieftain has been for many years a resident of Maine, a no-license state.

Altogether the trip to Indian Island was disappointing. It is said, and sometimes said truly, that "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." Such it was in my case, for though I became wise I did not derive any satisfaction from the newly acquired wisdom; in fact, like others whose illusions become shattered, wished that ignorance, as far as Indians are concerned, might again envelope me.

WOMAN AND MAN

For woman is not undeveloped man. But she is; could we make her as the man.

Sweet love were slain; his dearest bond is this:

Not like to like, but like in difference. Yet, in the long years, liker must they grow.

The man be more of woman, she of man.

He gain in sweetness and in moral height.

Nor lose the wrestling thwats that throw the world;

—Tennyson.

BEAUTY'S BOOTY

With bag on wrist Miladi strolls along. When suddenly among the bustling throng.

A cutpurse, pickpocket, or simple scoundrel.

A buttonhook, a glove, a couple blue.

A buttonhook, a glove, a couple blue. The notice of a bargain sale.

A buttonhook, a glove, a couple blue. A lot of little bits of stuff.

Oh, woe is mine! Miserable! Helas! Autolycus has robbed Autolycus!

CHILD DROPPED TO BOTTOM OF AIRSHAFT INJURY

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Reuben Gluckfield, 4 years old, flying a kite on the roof of a six-story tenement building in the East Side, plunged through an airshaft to the basement yesterday. In his descent Reuben carried with him several hundred feet of clothesline and the accumulated laundry of a score of families, hung in the airshaft for drying.

When Reuben was unwrapped from the phreathic bundle he was breathless but unhurt, until, on an excited fourth-floor occupant dropped a milk bottle on his foot, cutting it slightly.

Abraham Levy, 4 years old, also leaped too far out of a window to investigate and fell. As Reuben had cleaned up the washing, Abraham was seriously hurt.

Although painfully hurt, the child smiled her thanks to an ambulance surgeon when he told her the baby had entirely escaped injury. Laura had acting as "Little Mother" to four younger brothers and sisters at the time of the accident, both her father and mother having gone out to work.
